TRANSPORT

RAILWAYS

Indian Government Administration (Railway Board): New Delhi; Chair. KRIPAL SINGH.

The Indian Government exercises direct or indirect control over all railways in the Republic of India through the medium of the Railway Board.

STATE RAILWAYS

Northern: Delhi; Gen. Man. HARBANS SINGH.

Western: Bombay; Gen. Man. O. S. MURTHY.

Central: Bombay; Gen. Man. RATAN LALL.

Southern: Madras; Gen. Man. H. D. SINGH.

Eastern: Calcutta; Gen. Man. V. T. NARAYANAN.

South Eastern: Calcutta; Gen. Man. G. D. KHANDELWAL.

North Eastern: Gorakhpur; Gen. Man. V. T. NARAYANAN.

Northeast Frontier: Pandu; Gen. Man. JAGJIT SINGH.

ROADS

Ministry of Transport (Roads Wing): Jamnagar House, Shahjehan Rd., New Delhi 2; there were 398,000 miles of roads in 1961; by 1966 the total had risen to about 487,000 miles. India has a system of National Highways, with an aggregate length of about 15,000 miles running through the length and breadth of the country, connecting the State capitals and major ports and linking with the highway systems of its neighbours. This system includes 43 highways and they constitute the main trunk roads of the country. The first road link between Ladakh and the rest of the country was completed in August 1960 by constructing the 150-mile road from Kargil to Leh, the capital of Ladakh.

INLAND WATERWAYS

At present 1,557 miles of rivers are navigable by mechanically propelled country vessels and 3,587 miles by large country boats. Services are mainly on the Ganges and Brahmaputra.

CONSTITUTION

Sikkim is an hereditary monarchy, enjoying full autonomy. The present ruler, the Maharaja PALDEN THONDUP NAMGYAL, P.V., O.B.E., was proclaimed in December, 1963. He is Head of State and administers Sikkim through a government. Relations between India and Sikkim are governed by the Treaty signed in 1950 (q.v.). The Government of India is represented in Sikkim by the Political Officer, who is concurrently assigned to Bhutan.

Executive: The Executive Council consists of the Principal Administrative Officer (whose office replaced that of the Dewan in 1963) and a number of elected members of the State Council, who are chosen from time to time and hold office during the pleasure of the Maharaja. The Principal Administrative Officer is ex officio President of the State Council as well as the Executive Council. Elected members are in charge of Education, Public Health, Excise, Press, Transport, Bazaars, Forests, Public Works and Agriculture.

Legislature: The Sikkim State Council, under the Constitution of 1953, with amendments of 1958, consists of a President, nominated and appointed by the Maharaja, 14 elected members and 6 members nominated by the Maharaja at his discretion. Of the elected members, 6 seats are reserved for Bhutias and Lepchas, 6 for the Nepalese, one for Sangha (monks) and one general. The State Council with the assent of the Maharaja, enacts laws for the peace, order and good government of the State. The State Council cannot discuss or deal with matters relating to the Maharaja and members of the ruling family, external relations, particularly with the Government of India, and the appointment of the Principal Administrative Officer and members of the Judiciary.

The Sikkim State Council elected in 1958 was dissolved in 1962 at the end of its term. Fresh elections, due to be held in that year, were postponed because of the emergency following the Chinese attack on India. The elections could not be held in 1963 or 1964 because of mourning for the late Maharaja, Sir Tashi Nangyal.

INDO-SIKKIM TREATY OF 1950

Under this Treaty, Sikkim is recognised as a Protectorate of India, but enjoying full internal autonomy. India is responsible for Sikkim's defence and external relations, with the right to build and maintain communications. There is freedom of trade between the two countries and free movement of subjects.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The Judicial System in Sikkim is similar to that of India. The former system whereby landlords enjoyed certain civil and criminal powers was revoked in 1948 and now Magistrates and Judges administer the Judiciary.

High Court Judge: SHIV KUMAR PRASAD.

Chief Magistrate: J. P. AGARWALA.

RELIGION

Mahayana Buddhism is the State Religion. Most of the Buddhists are Bhutias and Lepchas. There are 67 monasteries and nearly 3,000 lamas. The main monasteries are at Pemiongchi, Tashiding, Phensung, Phodong, Rumtek and Ralong.

The immigrant Nepali are mainly Hindus, although a number are either Buddhist or animist. There are also Jains, Muslims and Christians. Christian Missions: Church of Scotland and Scandinavian Alliance Mission.

PRESS AND RADIO

There is no Sikkimese newspaper but the Government publish papers and bulletins from time to time. There is a printing press in Gangtok, printing in Tibetan, Nepalese, Hindi and English.

FINANCE

Local banking facilities are provided by Private Banks.

TRANSPORT

There is no railway or airport in Sikkim.

Roads: At the end of 1961, there were about 475 miles of roads open to vehicular traffic and 130 miles of village paths. During the Second Five-Year Plan it is proposed to add another 325 miles of roads.

Until trade ceased between Sikkim and Tibet in 1962 there was regular vehicle and mule traffic between the two territories.

A 72-mile road from Gangtok connects with the railhead at Siliguri in West Bengal (India) and an 80-mile road with the airport at Bagdogra.

Sikkim Nationalised Transport Service: Gangtok; State road haulage company.

Aerial Ropeway: a Ropeway, 13 miles long, links Gangtok to the foot of the Nathula Pass.

Himalayan Passes: The principal passes into Tibet are the Jelep La (14,000 ft.), the Nathu La (14,200 ft.) on the main routes to the Chumbi Valley. The Dongkya Pass (18,400 ft.) and the Chola Pass (14,500 ft.) also lead to Tibet.

TOURISM

There is a growing tourist industry, consisting mainly of European mountaineers and visitors on trekking holidays along the lower passes. Tourists are also attracted by the wide variety of flora—more than 600 varieties of orchid and 40 varieties of rhododendron.

The highest peaks are Kanchenjunga, 28,146 ft., the third highest mountain in the world, and Kabur, Pyramid Peak, Tent Peak, Talung and the Twin Peak, all over 24,000 ft.

REPUBLIC OF INDONESIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Indonesia consists of a group of over 3,000 islands between South-East Asia and Australia and stretching from Malaya to New Guinea. The principal islands are Java, Sumatra, Kalimantan (Borneo), Sulawesi (Celebes) West Irian (West New Guinea) and the Moluccas. The climate is tropical with an average temperature of 80°F (26°C) and heavy rainfall during most seasons. The official language is Bahasa Indonesian but more than 200 languages and dialects are spoken. About 85 per cent of the population are Muslims, and there are Hindu, Christian and Buddhist minorities. The flag consists of horizontal bands of red and white. The capital is Djakarta on the island of Java.

Recent History

Long under Dutch rule and occupied by the Japanese from 1942 to 1945, Indonesia was proclaimed independent by nationalist leaders in 1945, an independence recognised by the Netherlands in 1949. In 1962 West Irian (West New Guinea) was transferred by the Netherlands to the United Nations and subsequently handed over to Indonesia in April 1963. Indonesia opposed the setting up of Malaysia in September 1963, and in February 1965, Indonesia withdrew from the United Nations in protest against Malaysia's admission to the Security Council. Early in 1966 student demonstrations led to a Government reorganization and the removal of left-wing elements. Economic confrontation of Malaysia ended in August 1966 and Indonesia rejoined the UN in September. In February 1967 President Sukarno bowed to mounting criticism and surrendered his powers to General Suharto.

Government

Indonesia is a Republic with executive power resting with the President, who is also the Prime Minister and leader of the Cabinet. The Provisional People's Consultative Assembly elects the President and also lays down the outlines of national policy. Legislation is carried out by the House of Representatives in co-operation with the President. The Supreme Advisory Council of which the President is Chairman, advises the Government on important state matters.

Defence

The Armed Forces were combined as a single force in 1966. The total strength is about 234,000 men, Army 198,000, Navy 16,000 and Air Force 20,000. Military spending was drastically cut in the 1967 budget.

Economic Affairs

About three-quarters of the nation's wealth is derived from agriculture and more than 70 per cent of the working population are farmers. The richest island is Java. Peasant farming is mainly at subsistence level, cash crops being produced by small-holders and on larger state-owned and private plantations. The principal commercial products are rubber, tobacco, coffee, tea and spices. Petroleum and tin are valuable exports and some industry is being developed. All British-owned estates and companies have been nationalised, including oil and rubber companies, and centralization of the economy is proceeding apace. Many prestige projects were abandoned in 1966.

Transport and Communications

Inter-island shipping is in the hands of state and private shipping lines and there are many small craft. Three free trade zones and a free port at Sabang were established in 1963. There are railways on Java and Sumatra. In Java there are adequate roads but on most of the other islands traffic is by jungle track and river boat. Major highway schemes are under construction in Borneo and Sumatra. Domestic air services link the major cities and international services are provided by the state airline P.N. Garuda Indonesia Airways and eleven foreign lines.

Social Welfare

There is a limited state welfare service providing old-age pensions and medical care for Government workers. Malaria has been brought under control, but many endemic diseases persist. In 1964 a hospital expansion programme, with a target of 3,000 new beds a year, was announced.

Education

By 1964, eleven million primary school places had been provided for children between seven and fourteen. Illiteracy has been wiped out in all areas but West Irian. The six-year compulsory education programme will be extended to the whole country by 1969. There are twenty-six state and several private universities.

Tourism

Tourism is based mainly on the islands of Java and Bali. Java is famous for mountains and volcanoes and for Buddhist and Hindu temples. Bali is renowned for traditional dancing and religious festivals.

Sport

Organised sports include football, basketball, badminton and athletics. The 1962 Asian Games and the 1963 Games of the New Emerging Forces ("Ganefo") were held in Indonesia. Cock-fighting is popular, particularly in Bali.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (May Day), June 1 (Birth of Pantjasila), August 17 (Independence Day), December 25 (Christmas Day).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 2 (Id ul Fitri), March 10 (Id ul Adha).

Easter is not an official holiday but is observed by the Christian community. Several religious holidays are celebrated by Muslims.

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The unit of currency is the Rupiah (Rp.) of 100 Sen. Notes: 1, 2½, 5, 10, 25, 50, 100 Rp.

Exchange rate:

210 Rp. = £1 sterling (import rate)

75 Rp. = $1 U.S. (import rate)

280 Rp. = £1 sterling (export and tourist rate)

100 Rp. = $1 U.S. (export and tourist rate)

THE CONSTITUTION

Indonesia has had three Constitutions, all provisional: August 1945, February 1950 and August 1950. In July 1959, the Constitution of 1945 was re-enacted by Presidential decree.

POINTS OF THE 1945 CONSTITUTION

The President. Executive and Legislative Power are vested in a President, assisted by a Vice-President, both elected by the People's Consultative Assembly for a term of five years. The President is the Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces and may proclaim Martial Law.

The Provisional People's Consultative Assembly. The Assembly determines the broad lines of national policy. It consists of members of the House of Representatives and delegates of regional territories and of functional groups in the community. The Provisional People's Consultative Assembly must meet at least once every five years. All decisions are taken unanimously in keeping with the tradition of "musjawarah" (deliberation) and "mufakat" (unanimous consent).

The House of Representatives. The House meets at least once a year and every law is enacted in concurrence with the House. The President has the right of veto. In times of emergency the President may enact Ordinances which have the force of law. Such Ordinances must be ratified by the House of Representatives during the following session, or be revoked. The House consists of 130 members representing political parties and 152 representing functional groups.

THE GOVERNMENT

PROVISIONAL PEOPLE'S CONSULTATIVE ASSEMBLY (MPRS)

The Assembly, provided for under the 1945 Constitution, was inaugurated in November 1960. It consists of the members of the House of Representatives and delegates of regional territories and of corporations and other groups. It must meet at least once every five years. The President is responsible to the Assembly.

Chairman: CHAERUL SALEH.
Permanent Deputy Chairmen: Dr. ALI SASTROAMIDJOJO,
 IDHAM CHALID, Brig.-Gen. WILUJO PUSPOJUDO.

POLITICAL PARTIES

A Presidential decree of January 1960 enables the President to dissolve any party whose membership does not cover a quarter of Indonesia, or whose policies are at variance with the aims of the State.

The National Front: In March 1960, a committee of 30 names was announced, to set up a mass political organisation to be headed by the President.

The following parties are listed in the order of their strength in the Mutual Co-operation House of Representatives.

Partai Nasional Indonesia (Nationalist Party): 44 seats;
 Leader Dr. ALI SASTROAMIDJOJO.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Supreme Court. The final court of appeal.

High Courts in Djakarta, Surabaya, Medan and Makassar deal with appeals from the District Courts.

District Courts throughout the country try both civil and criminal cases.

Chief Justice: MADE LABDA.

There is one codified criminal code for the whole of Indonesia. The (Dutch) codified civil code applies to foreigners. For Indonesians the civil law is the uncoded or "Adat" (customary) law which varies from region to region. The work of codifying this law has been begun but in view of the great complexity and diversity of customary law it may be expected to take a considerable time to achieve.

IRAN

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Iran is situated in western Asia. It is bordered by the Soviet Union to the north, Turkey and Iraq to the west, the Persian Gulf and the Sea of Oman to the south, and Pakistan and Afghanistan to the east. The climate is one of great extremes. In summer temperatures of over 130°F (55°C) have been recorded, while in the winter, the great altitude of much of the country results in temperatures of 0°F (-18°C) and below. The official language is Persian (Farsi), but various dialects of Kurdish and Turki are spoken. The predominant faith is Shi'a Islam. The flag consists of green, white and red horizontal stripes, with a Lion and Sun Emblem on the central white stripe. The capital is Teheran.

Recent History

After the Second World War British and American occupying forces left Iran, Soviet forces remaining in Azerbaijan until 1946. In 1951 the Prime Minister, Mr. Mussadiq, nationalised the oil industry and in 1954 an agreement was reached with foreign interests whereby oil concessions were granted to a consortium of eight companies. Since 1949 Iran has placed great emphasis on economic planning, and is now in the third year of the Third Development Plan. Early in 1963 the Shah began an extensive re-distribution of large estates among small farmers. In the same year women were given the vote, despite opposition from traditionalists which culminated in the assassination of the Prime Minister, Mr. Mansur, in January 1965. Iran was host to delegations from Pakistan and Turkey for talks setting up the Regional Co-operation for Development (RCD) in 1964. In 1966 Iran joined the Colombo Plan.

Government

Iran is a constitutional monarchy, with executive power resting with the Shah. Legislative power rests with the Senate and the National Consultative Assembly (Majlis). The Senate has 60 members, half of whom are elected, and half are nominated by the Shah. The National Consultative Assembly consists of 200 elected members. Iran is divided into 14 provinces (Ostan), administered by Governors-General. These provinces are sub-divided into counties (Shahrestan), municipalities (Bakhsh), and rural districts (Dihستان).

Defence

The Iranian Army consists of six corps, comprising 12 divisions. Its estimated strength is 200,000. There are also naval and air forces. Iran is a member of the Central Treaty Organisation (CENTO) and has received considerable military aid from the United States.

Economic Affairs

Iran is the fourth largest oil producer in the world. The majority of the Iranian people, however, are engaged in agriculture. Most types of grain, sugar beet, fruit, nuts and vegetables are grown. Dairy produce, wool, hair and hides are also produced, especially by the nomads. There is a large fishing industry, both in the Caspian Sea, where caviar is obtained, and in the Persian Gulf. Forests, owned chiefly by the State, cover nearly 50 million acres. Oil refining is an important source of employment and a petrochemical complex has been set up near the Khuzestan oilfield in 1965-67. The largest industry, after oil, is the textile industry. At the initiative of the Shah, a programme of agrarian reform is now in progress, and about 2 million acres of land have been distributed to peasants. In November 1963, the U.S.S.R. agreed to give a 25 per cent tariff discount to Iranian goods in transit to Europe by the Russian route. A series of discounts have also been granted by Turkey. In 1965 a technical assistance agreement was signed with the U.S.S.R. under which a steel mill will be built at Isfahan in exchange for Iranian natural gas. The third Seven Year Plan, 1962-68, involves expenditure of $U.S. 2,660 million.

Transport and Communications

Communications are made difficult in Iran by the extensive mountain ranges, but there are over 3,500 km. of railways, and extensions are under construction. There are 35,000 km. of national and provincial roads, and, when completed, the CENTO highway will link Turkey, Iran and Pakistan. The principal ports on the Persian Gulf are Bushire, Lingah, Bandar Abbas, Khorramshahr and Bandar Shahpur. Ports on the Caspian Sea are Bandar Shah and Pahlevi. Iran National Airlines Corporation provides internal and international air services.

Social Welfare

Twenty-five per cent of the expenditure of the Third Development Plan is to be on the social services. The Pahlevi Foundation established in 1958 has received considerable gifts from the Shah for improving the education, health and social welfare of the poorer classes. National service draftees with medical experience have been formed into a Health Corps, bringing medical assistance to outlying areas of the country.

Education

Primary education is free and compulsory for both sexes, but this has not been implemented in rural areas. By 1967, 60 per cent of the children of the 7-13 age group will be at school. 426,000 pupils received secondary education in 1965, and there were 96 technical schools. There are seven universities. Vital to the campaign for literacy has been the conscription of young secondary school and college graduates as teachers in place of normal military service.

Tourism

Iran's chief attraction for the tourist is its wealth of historical sites—notably Isfahan, Resht, Tabriz, Susa, Persepolis—and its museums of Persian art and culture. Tourism is under the care of the Iranian National Tourist Organization, Teheran.

Visas are not required to visit Iran by nationals of Belgium, France, German Federal Republic, Greece, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Pakistan, Poland, Turkey and the U.S.S.R.

Sport

Wrestling is the national sport of Iran. Basketball and polo are also popular. Winter sports are drawing more visitors to the Elburz mountains.

Public Holidays

1967: May 30 (Arba'in), June 7 (Death of the Prophet), June 26 (Birth of the Prophet), August 5 (Constitution Day), August 19 (Uprising Day), October 18 (Birth of Imam Ali), October 26 (Shahanshah's Birthday), November 1 (Appointment of the Prophet), November 6 (Birth of Imam Hossein), November 18 (Birth of Twelfth Imam), December 12 (Azerbaijan Liberation), December 21 (Wounding of Imam Ali), December 23 (Martyrdom of Imam Ali).

1968: January 1 (Eide Fetr), January 25 (Death of Imam Jafar Sadegh), February 10 (Birth of Imam Reza), March 11 (Eide Ghorban), March 19 (Eide Ghadir), March 21-25 (Nowrouz—Iranian New Year), April 2 (Sidah Bezar), April 9 (Tassua), April 10 (Ashoura—Assassination of Imam Hossein).

THE CONSTITUTION

On August 15th, 1906, an Imperial Decree was issued to convoke a Constituent Assembly. This Assembly adopted the Constitution of Iran on December 30th of that year.

THE EXECUTIVE POWER

The executive power rests in the Shah. He appoints the Prime Ministers, who must be approved by the Majlis. In addition to their individual responsibility for their departments, ministers have a joint responsibility for the affairs of the country.

In 1949 a new amendment to the Constitution was made whereby the Shah was granted the right to dissolve the Majlis when it was deemed necessary, provided that a new election was ordered to take place soon afterwards.

THE LEGISLATIVE POWER

According to the Constitutional Law the legislative power comprises the Senate and the National Consultative Assembly. The latter Assembly consists of 200 members elected for four years. The Senate, which was convened for the first time in February 1950, comprises 60 Senators: 30 nominated by the Shah, 15 representing Teheran, and 15 representing the provinces. Senators must be Muslims. Their term of office is six years.

PROVINCIAL DIVISIONS

Iran is divided into fourteen provinces (Ostan). They are administered by Governors-General (Ostadar), who are directly responsible to the central Government. These provinces are sub-divided into counties (Shahrestan), municipalities (Bakhsh), and rural districts (Dihestan).

All towns have a municipality administration, the director of which is chosen by the town council. The nomination must be approved by the Ministry of the Interior.

THE GOVERNMENT

THE HEAD OF STATE

H.I.M. MOHAMMED REZA SHAH PAHLAVI, succeeded to the throne on the abdication of his father, September 16th, 1941.

PARLIAMENT

THE SENATE

President: Eng. SHARIF-EMAMI.

The Senate consists of 60 members, 30 of which are appointed by the Shah, and 30 are elected (15 from Teheran and 15 from the Provinces). Each year the Shah appoints 15 members for a two-year term, and 15 members are elected from Teheran and the Provinces for a two-year term.

NATIONAL CONSULTATIVE ASSEMBLY (The Majlis)

President: Eng. A. RIAZI.

Elections to the 21st session of the Majlis were held in September 1963. 180 of the 198 seats were won by a coalition of pro-government parties, the Union of National Forces. For the first time, women voted and stood as candidates.

POLITICAL PARTIES

Union of National Forces: f. 1963; a coalition of the Progressive Centre, New Iran Party, labourers, peasants, trade unions and women; forms the present government.

Progressive Centre: f. 1961; active in 1963 elections; Chair. AMIR-ABBAS HOVEIDA.

Mellioun Party (National Party): f. February 1958; government majority party until 1960, less important since; Sec.-Gen. Dr. AHMAD EMAMI.

Mardom Party (People's Party): f. 1957; programme includes agrarian reform, limitation of land ownership and labour welfare; during 1962 and 1963 there were many internal differences; Sec.-Gen. Y. ADL.

Tudeh Party: Communist; proscribed.

Prosecutor-General: Dr. ABDUL HUSSEIN ALIABADI.

SUPREME COURT

The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in Teheran includes disputes about the competence of Government departments in relation to the existing laws, and it also acts as a Court of First Instance when ministers are prosecuted, either for personal offences or in respect of the affairs of their department. It is also the highest court of appeal. In exceptional cases, at the request of the Prosecutor-General, the Supreme Court deals with criminal cases.

PROVINCIAL COURTS

Courts of Appeal and Central Criminal Courts are established in each province.

OTHER COURTS

There are Courts of First Instance in the towns. The Arbitration Council was established in 1966 to examine and rule on all petty offences. The courts of lowest jurisdiction are those of the Justices of the Peace, which are established in most villages and small towns and deal with small civil cases and petty offences.

SPECIAL TRIBUNALS

Special tribunals include Ecclesiastical Courts, which have a limited jurisdiction on matters of marriage and personal status; the Civil Servants' Criminal Court, in Teheran; and Permanent and Temporary Military Courts. Permanent Military Courts exist in all provinces and deal with treasonable offences; Temporary Military Courts are established whenever martial law is declared in a region, and are competent to hear certain cases which are normally within the jurisdiction of the ordinary courts.

RELIGION

MUSLIMS

The great majority of the Iranian people are Shi'i Muslims, and Iran with Iraq and the Yemen are notable as the only countries in the world where Shi'i adherents are in a majority. About five per cent of the population are Sunni Muslims, but there is complete religious toleration. Iran is thus in many ways the centre of the Shi'i faith, and pilgrimage to Iranian shrines is an important activity: Qum and Meshed are in particular regarded as holy cities.

ZOROASTRIANS

There are about 35,000 Zoroastrians, a remnant of a once widespread sect. Their religious leader is MOUBAD. Zoroastrianism was once the State religion of ancient Iran. Many adherents were compelled by Arab persecution to emigrate, and the main centre of their faith is now Bombay.

OTHER COMMUNITIES

Communities of Armenians, and somewhat smaller numbers of Jews, Assyrians, Greek Orthodox, Uniates and Latin Christians are also found.

Roman Catholic Archbishop of Urmia, Bishop of Salmas and Metropolitan of Iran: Archbishop's House, Rezaieh; Most Rev. ZAYA DACHTOU.

Anglican Bishop in Iran: Rt. Rev. HASSAN BARNABA DEHQANI-TAFTI, Bishop's House, Isfahan. Diocese founded 1912.

Synod of the Evangelical (Presbyterian) Church in Iran: Assyrian Evangelical Church, Khiaban-i Shapur, Khiaban-i Aramanch, Teheran; Moderator Rev. ADLE NAKHOSTEEN.

OIL

National Iranian Oil Company (NIOC), Takhte Jamshid Street, P.O. Box 1863, Teheran

NIOC

The National Iranian Oil Company (NIOC) was incorporated April 1951 on nationalisation of oil industry to engage in all phases of oil operations; auth. cap. 10,000 million rials, in 10,000 shares, 50 per cent paid up; all shares held by Iranian Government and are non-transferable; Chair. of Board and Managing Dir. H.E. Dr. MANOUTCHEHR EGHBAL; Deputy Managing Dir. H.E. Kh. HEDAYET; Dirs. H. E. A. K. BAKHTIAR, Dr. R. FALLAH and F. NAFICY.

In October 1954 an agreement was concluded between the Iranian Government and NIOC on the one hand and eight major oil companies (subsequently increased to seventeen) on the other, to operate the southern oilfields (as defined) on behalf of NIOC. These companies are collectively known as the Consortium, for which see below. The agreement is for twenty-five years with provision for three five-year extensions, at the option of the Consortium under specific terms and conditions. NIOC is responsible for non-industrial activities in the agreement area. It directly operates the Naft-i-Shah oilfield and the Kerman-shah refinery; it also carries out exploration and drilling in all parts of the country not subject to special agreements. Extensive fields of crude oil and gas have been found in the Alborz and Sarajeh areas, and plans completed for their exploitation. NIOC is solely responsible for internal distribution of petroleum products and has laid over 2,600 km. of pipeline throughout Iran. The Petroleum Act of 1957 empowered NIOC to divide Iran into a number of petroleum districts, to invite bids for their exploitation, and to sign agreements. NIOC has signed a series of agreements: in 1957 with Agip Mineraria (an Italian company); 1958 with Pan American Petroleum Corp.; in 1965 six groups listed below, for exploration of an offshore. In September 1966 agreement was reached with the ch state organization ERAP to operate as a contractor half of NIOC in exploration both on and offshore.

Société Irano-Italienne des Pétroles (SIRIP): Hoghooghi Avenue, Teheran; f. 1957; owned jointly by NIOC and Agip Mineraria.

Iran-Pan American Oil Co. (IPAG): Takhte Jamshid Avenue, Teheran; f. 1958; owned jointly by NIOC and Pan American Petroleum Corp.; to exploit Persian Gulf offshore deposits in their agreement area.

Iranian Marine International Oil Company (IMINOCO): Teheran; f. 1965; consists of Phillips Petroleum Co., AGIP (a subsidiary of the Italian ENI) and the Hydro-Carbon India Co.

Lavan Petroleum Company (LAPCO): Teheran; f. 1965; consists of Atlantic Refining Co., Murphy Oil Corporation, Sun Oil Co., and Union Oil Co. of California.

Dashtestan Offshore Petroleum Company (DOPCO): agreed to undertake offshore exploration 1965.

Farsi Petroleum Company (FPC): Paris; f. 1965; cap. 1m. frs.; consists of Société de Participations Pétrolières (Pétropar), Société Auxiliaire de la Régie des Pétroles (Auxirap), and Société Nationale des Pétroles d'Aquitaine (SNPA); Managing Company Bureau de Recherches de Pétroles (B.R.P.).

Iranian Offshore Petroleum Company (IROPKO): Teheran; f. 1965; consists of Tidewater Oil Co., and Cities Service Co., Kerr-McGee Oil Industries Corp., Richfield Oil Corp., Skelly Oil Co., Superior Oil Co., and Sunray D.X. Oil Co.

Persian Gulf Petroleum Company (PEGUPCO): Teheran; f. 1965; consists of Deutsche Erdoel, Preussag, Winter-shall, Deutsche Schachtbau und Tiefborgesellschaft, Gelsenkirchener Bergwerks Gewerkschaft Elwerath, and Scholven-Chemie.

IRAN—(OIL, TRADE AND INDUSTRY)

THE CONSORTIUM

Consortium members, with percentage shareholdings: Gulf Oil Corporation (7%), Socony Mobil Oil Co. Inc. (7%), Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) (7%), Standard Oil Co. of California (7%), Texaco Inc. (7%), The British Petroleum Co. Ltd. (40%), Bataafse Petroleum Maatschappij N.V. (14%), Compagnie Française des Pétroles (6%), the remaining 5 per cent being divided equally among the following nine American companies: The American Independent Oil Co., The Atlantic Refining Co., Signal Oil and Gas Co., Getty Oil Co., Richfield Oil Corp., The Standard Oil Company (Ohio), San Jacinto Petroleum Corp., Tidewater Oil Co. and Hancock Oil Co. (now merged with Signal Oil and Gas Co.). Two operating companies, both incorporated under the laws of the Netherlands, were formed by the Consortium:

Iraanse Aardolie Exploratie en Productie Maatschappij (Iranian Oil Exploration and Production Co.): P.O.B. 1065, Khiaban Shah, Kucheh Yaghma, Teheran; solely responsible for exploration and production in a defined area in south Iran; Chair. J. A. WARDER.

Iraanse Aardolie Raffinage Maatschappij (Iranian Oil Refining Co.): P.O. Box 1065, Khiaban Shah, Kucheh Yaghma, Teheran; solely responsible for the operation of the refinery at Abadan; Chair. J. A. WARDER.

While the NIOC owns the fixed assets of the oil industry in south Iran, the Operating Companies have the unrestricted use of them during the period of the agreement. The Operating Companies do not themselves buy or sell oil, their function being solely confined to producing and refining it. Each of the Consortium members is represented in Iran by a Trading Company which purchases crude oil from NIOC and resells it to customers for export, either as crude or as products. The Trading Companies deal individually and independently of one another. The net effect of the financial aspects of the sale of oil by the NIOC to the Trading Companies for export is to bring about an equal sharing between Iran and each Trading Company of the profits arising in Iran from the Trading Companies' operations.

The Iranian railway system includes the following main routes:

Trans-Iranian Railway runs 895 miles from Bandar Shah on the Caspian Sea, through Teheran, and south to Bandar Shahpur on the Persian Gulf.

Garmsar-Meshed Line connects Teheran with Meshed, via Semnan, Damghan, Shahrud and Nishapur.

Qum-Zahedan Line. When completed, this will be an intercontinental line linking Europe and Turkey, through Iran, with India. Zahedan is situated 91.7 km. west of the Baluchistan frontier, and is the end of the Pakistani broad gauge railway. The section from Qum-Kashan is open, and that from Kashan-Yazd is under construction.

Ahwaz-Khorramshahr Line. Connects the river-port of Khorramshahr with the Trans-Iranian railway at Ahwaz (76 miles).

Azerbaijan Railway extends from Tabriz to Julfa (146.5 km.), meeting the Caucasian railways at the Soviet frontier with a branch line connecting with Sharif-Khaneh on Lake Rezaiyeh; also administers shipping on Lake Rezaiyeh. This line will be connected to the Turkish frontier at Razi in 1967.

Bandar-Shah-Gorgan Line: 36.2 km. from Bandar-Shah to Gorgan; opened October 1960.

The total distance covered by railways in Iran was 3,915 km. in 1965, with a further 453 km. due to be completed in 1967.

IRAQ

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Iraq is an almost landlocked state in the Middle East with a narrow outlet on to the Persian Gulf. Its neighbours are Iran, Turkey, Syria, Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait. The climate is extreme, with hot, dry summers rising to over 110°F (43°C) and cold winters. Summers are humid near the Persian Gulf. The official language is Arabic, spoken by about 80 per cent of the population. Kurdish, Persian and Turkish are spoken by the tribesmen of the northern and eastern highlands. Ninety per cent of the population is Muslim. The flag is a horizontal tricolour, red, white and black, the white band charged with three green, five-pointed stars. The capital is Baghdad.

Recent History

A coup d'état by the army in 1958 resulted in the assassination of King Faisal and the establishment of a Republic under General Kassem. Iraq's withdrawal from the Baghdad Pact soon followed. For over four years General Kassem maintained a precarious and increasingly isolated position opposed by Pan-Arabs, Kurds and other groups. In February 1963 the Pan-Arab element in the armed forces staged a coup d'état in which General Kassem was assassinated and a new government set up under Colonel Aref, who initiated a policy of closer relations with Egypt. Martial Law, in force since 1958, was brought to an end in January 1965, and a purely civilian government was inaugurated in September 1965. In March 1966 President Aref was killed in an air accident, and was succeeded by his brother, Major-General Abdul Rahman Muhammad Aref.

Government

Power rests with the President, Maj.-Gen. Aref, as Head of State, and the day-to-day running of the country is carried out by a Council of Ministers. The Country is divided into 14 Liwas or Provinces. A Unified Political Command co-ordinates the formulation of policies with those of the U.A.R.

Defence

Military service is compulsory for all men at the age of eighteen years and comprises two years with the colours and eighteen years with the reserve. The Iraq Army has a total strength of about 70,000 men and there are Air Force and Naval units. The Naval units operate on the rivers Tigris and Euphrates.

Economic Affairs

Iraq's wealth is based on oil which is mostly exploited by foreign companies. In 1964 Iraq received more than £125 million in oil revenues. The few industries are mainly connected with oil, and other mineral resources are scarcely exploited. Agriculture is the mainstay of the population, although only half the total land area is cultivable, the remainder being desert. Dates form the chief export crop. A land reform project to distribute land among the peasants and major irrigation projects on the Tigris, Euphrates and tributaries are in hand. Iraq is a member of the Arab on Market and has a special customs pact with Kuwait. In 1965, a five-year economic plan was announced for 1965-69, intended to achieve a national income growth rate of 8 per cent per annum.

Transport and Communication

Iraq has 1,016 miles of railway track, of which 686 are narrow gauge and are being converted to standard gauge. The principal means of communication is by road. A number of new trunk roads have been built and the current development plan provides for building and extending the road system. In many desert areas the natural surfaces are passable for vehicles. The lower reaches of the Euphrates and the combined mouth of the Tigris and Euphrates, the Shatt el Arab, are navigable and deep-water oil berths have been built to serve the oil fields. The first vessel of the new Iraqi shipping line was brought into service in 1962. Iraqi Airways operate services to other Middle Eastern countries, Europe and India.

Social Welfare

A limited Social Security Scheme was introduced in 1957. Benefits are given for old age, sickness, unemployment, maternity, marriage and death.

Education

Education is free and great efforts are being made to reduce illiteracy. Since 1958, over 1,500 new primary schools have been opened. There are two universities. Many Iraqis study abroad.

Tourism

Iraq is the ancient Mesopotamia of early history, and one of the oldest centres of civilisation. The ruins of Ur of the Chaldees, Babylon, Nineveh and other relics of the Sumerian, Babylonian, Assyrian and Persian Empires are of interest to the tourist.

Visas are not required to visit Iraq by nationals of the following countries: Jordan, Kuwait, Lebanon, Syria, U.A.R.

Sport

There is little organised sport. Football is played, while duck shooting, hawking and other field sports are enjoyed.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), June 20 (Birthday of the Prophet), July 14 (Republic Day), November 18 (18th November Revolution).

1968: January 2 (Id ul Fitr), January 6 (Army Day), February 8 (14th Ramadan Revolution), March 10 (Id ul Adha), March 31 (New Year), April 9 (Ashura).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The currency is the Iraqi dinar of 1,000 fils.

Coins: 1, 5, 10, 25, 50, 100 fils.

Notes: ½, 1, 5, 10 dinars.

Exchange rate: 1 ID = £1 sterling

357 fils = $1 U.S.

INTERIM CONSTITUTION

An Interim Constitution, of which a summary appears below, was published in Baghdad in April 1964.

THE STATE

The Iraqi Republic is a democratic socialist state, fully sovereign. Islam is its religion and the basis of its constitution, and Arabic is the official language. Baghdad is the capital. Public property and private ownership are inviolable. The economy is guided by a national plan. The State shall encourage the co-operative system and guarantee social insurance services. Freedom of religion, opinion, scientific discussion, to form societies, and of the press are secured. The State guarantees fair treatment to workers by determining working hours, assessing wages, social insurance, health insurance and insurance against unemployment, and by organising the right to rest and holiday. There is no crime or punishment except as defined by law. The home is inviolable. All Iraqis are equal by law. They are equal in their public rights and obligations without distinction of race, origin, language, religion or creed. All Iraqis including both Arabs and Kurds shall co-operate to safeguard their national homeland. Election is a right for all Iraqis in accordance with the law, and contribution to public life is a national duty.

THE PRESIDENT

The President is elected by the Cabinet and the National Defence Council, by a two-thirds majority. He shall be an Iraqi of Iraqi parents, a practising Muslim, at least forty years old, and must not be married to a foreigner. In the event of his absence or inability to discharge his duties, the President shall form a Republican Council to act for him, which shall consist of three members, and he shall invest it with whatever powers he deems necessary by a Republican Decree. If he resigns the Cabinet and the National Defence Council shall hold a joint meeting under the chairmanship of the Premier to decide whether to accept or refuse the resignation. If the post of President becomes vacant for some reason the Cabinet and the National Defence Council shall hold a joint session to elect his successor.

The duties and functions of the President include the following: he appoints the Premier, the Deputy Premier, the Ministers and all civil servants; is Commander-in-Chief of the forces; sanctions laws and death sentences, and may commute any sentence or annul it by special pardon (amnesty shall be exercised only by law); has the right to declare martial law, war and peace; shall, in collaboration with the Government, lay down the general policy of the State in all its military, political, economic and social aspects, and shall supervise its implementation. The President shall not incur responsibility because of the duties of his post except in the case of the violation of the Constitution or high treason. As for his responsibility for general offences, these offences are subject to ordinary laws. He cannot be tried except by a special court and in the manner prescribed by law. During the period of vacancy of the post of President, the Premier shall continue to exercise his powers.

LEGISLATURE

The legislative body is the National Assembly, elected by general ballot. The number of members and methods of election shall be prescribed by a separate law.

THE EXECUTIVE

Executive power is vested in the President; the Government is the higher executive and administrative body of the State. The Government consists of the Premier, the Deputy Premier and the Ministers. The resignation or dismissal of the Premier means the resignation or dismissal of all the Cabinet. Cabinet deliberations shall be secret, and members shall be Iraqis of Iraqi parentage, married to an Arab wife. Like the President, they may not exercise another profession, commercial, financial, industrial or other economic business or buy or hire any State property, or lend or sell the State any private property. The Executive shall implement the general policy of the State, and shall organise and co-ordinate the economic, cultural, and medical establishments, and will adopt a sound foreign policy.

Its powers include: guidance, co-ordination and review of the work of the Ministers, public organisations and institutions; the issue of administrative and executive decisions in accordance with laws and regulations, and the supervision of their implementation; preparation of draft laws and regulations; appointment and dismissal of employees; preparation of the State general budget; preparation of the general plan of the State to develop the national economy and taking the necessary measures to implement it according to law; supervision, organisation and administration of currency and credit ordinances and the State insurance activities; contracting and granting loans within the limits of the general policy of the State; supervision of all semi-official departments, Government companies and institutions of public interest; implementation of laws, regulations, decisions and Republican Decrees; preservation of State security and protection of the rights of citizens and State interests. The State alone shall form the armed forces; no organisation or group may set up military or paramilitary formations.

THE JUDICIARY

Magistrates and judges are independent by law. The law shall classify courts and define the terms of appointment of judges. A State Council shall be concerned with administrative law.

TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS

Laws in force before the promulgation of this Interim Constitution shall remain valid and cannot be annulled or amended except in the manner prescribed in this Interim Constitution. The present President of the Republic shall continue to perform the functions of his post until a new President is elected in accordance with the provisions of the permanent constitution. This Interim Constitution shall remain in effect until the permanent constitution to be drafted by the Consultative Council comes into effect or until the United State is established.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Courts in Iraq consist of the following: The Court of Cassation, Courts of Appeal, First Instance Courts, Peace Courts, Courts of Sessions, Shara' Courts and Penal Courts.

The Court of Cassation: This is the highest judicial bench of all the Civil Courts; it sits in Baghdad, and consists of the President and a number of Vice-Presidents and not less than fifteen permanent judges, delegated judges and reporters as necessity requires. There are four bodies in the Court of Cassation, these are: (a) The General body, (b) Civil and Commercial body, (c) Personal Status body, (d) The Penal body.

A Technical Bureau has been established which is related to the Court of Cassation and is carrying out the work of abstracting and classifying the legal principles which are contained in the judgments issued by it.

Courts of Appeal: The country is divided into five Districts of Appeal: Baghdad, Mosul, Basrah, Hilla, and Kirkuk, each with its Court of Appeal consisting of a President, Vice-Presidents and not less than three members, who consider the objections against the decisions issued by the First Instance Courts of first grade.

Courts of First Instance: These courts are of two kinds: Limited and Unlimited in jurisdiction.

Limited Courts deal with Civil and Commercial suits, the value of which is five hundred Dinars and less; and suits, the value of which cannot be defined, and which are subject to fixed fees. Limited Courts consider these suits in the final stage and they are subject to Cassation.

Unlimited Courts consider the Civil and Commercial suits irrespective of their value, and suits the value of which exceeds five hundred Dinars with first grade subject to appeal.

First Instance Courts consist of one judge in the centre of each Liwa, some Qadhas and Nahiyas, as the Minister of Justice judges necessary.

Peace Courts: A Peace Court is established wherever a Court of First Instance is situated which is administered by one judge and deals with suits for debts, the value of which does not exceed 100 Dinars, suits on the division of common property and the vacation leases, whatever the value of the suit amounts to. The judge of the First Instance Court considers the peace suits when there is no special judge to see them. More than one Peace Court may be established in one place.

Courts of Sessions: There is in every District of Appeal a Court of Sessions which consists of three judges under the presidency of the President of the Court of Appeal or one of his Vice-Presidents. It considers the penal suits prescribed by Penal Proceedings Law and other laws. More than one Court of Sessions may be established in one District of Appeal by notification issued by the Minister of Justice mentioning therein its headquarters, jurisdiction and the manner of its establishment.

Shara' Courts: A Shara' Court is established wherever there is a First Instance Court; the Muslim judge of the First Instance Court may be a Qadhi to the Shara' Court if a special Qadhi has not been appointed thereto. The Shara' Court considers matters of personal status and religious matters in accordance with the provisions of the law supplement to the Civil and Commercial Proceedings Law.

Penal Courts: A Penal Court of first grade is established in every First Instance Court. The judge of the First Instance Court is considered as penal judge unless a special judge is appointed thereto. More than one Penal Court may be established to consider the suits prescribed by the Penal Proceedings Law and other laws.

One or more Investigation Court may be established in the centre of each Liwa and a judge is appointed thereto. They may be established in the centres of Qadhas and Nahiyas by order of the Minister of Justice. The judge carries out the investigation in accordance with the provisions of Penal Proceedings Law and the other laws.

There is in every First Instance Court a department for the execution of judgments decided over by the Judge of First Instance if a special President is not appointed thereto. It carries out its duties in accordance with the provisions of Execution Law.

There is a Notary Public for the swearing of contracts and he carries out his duties in accordance with the provisions relating to Notaries Public.

RELIGION

Islam. Over 90 per cent of the population are Muslims. The Arabs of Upper Mesopotamia, the Bedouins, the Kurds, and the inhabitants of Baghdad and Basra, are mainly of the Sunni sect, the remaining Arabs south of the Diyala, and the Persians, belong to the Shi'a sect.

Christians. There are Christian communities in all the principal towns of Iraq, but their principal villages lie mostly in the Mosul district. The Christians of Iraq fall into three groups: (a) the free Churches, including the Nestorian, Gregorian, and Jacobite; (b) the churches known as Uniate, since they are in union with the Roman Catholic Church, including the Armenian Uniates, Jacobite Uniates, and Chaldeans; (c) mixed bodies of Protestant converts, New Chaldeans, and Orthodox Armenians.

Jews. Most Iraqi Jews live in Baghdad. In the course of 1951, about 110,000 Iraqi Jews emigrated to Israel. There are probably some 10,000–20,000 Jews left in Iraq.

Others. About thirty thousand Yazidis and a smaller number of Turcomans, Sabeans, and Shebeks make up the rest of the population.

INOC may operate throughout Iraq except in the areas allocated to the oil companies under Law 80 (about 740 square miles). Chair. SALIH KUBBA; Gen. Manager GHANIM UKAILI.

Gas Distribution Administration (G.D.A.): Baghdad; f. 1964 to supervise all gas projects, and to distribute and market natural and liquid gas all over Iraq. A sulphur recovery plant is under construction at Kirkuk. Two gas pipelines are to be laid from Kirkuk to Baghdad, and a liquid gas processing plant (12,000 b/d) is to be erected at Taji, north of Baghdad, starting 1967.

Iraq Petroleum Co. Ltd.: Office: 33 Cavendish Square, London, W.1; Chair. G. H. HERRIDGE, C.M.G.; Managing Dir. C. M. DALLEY; Exec. Dirs. N. M. EKSERDJIAN, M. L. MULLER.

During 1951 the Iraq Petroleum Company and its associated companies operating in Iraq entered into an agreement with the Government to share equally in the profits accruing from the production and export of crude oil. The agreement became operative with effect from January 1st, 1951. This agreement has resulted in greatly increased revenues for Iraq, which now receives more than £130 million annually.

Basrah Petroleum Co. Ltd.: Office: 33 Cavendish Square, London, W.1; an associate company of the Iraq Petroleum Co. Ltd.; Chair. G. H. HERRIDGE, C.M.G.; Managing Dir. C. M. DALLEY; Exec. Dirs. N. M. EKSERDJIAN, J. F. MOORE.

On November 30th, 1938, the Company was granted a concession over Southern Iraq, south of latitude 33°, for 75 years. Oil was found in 1948 at Zubair and in 1953 at Rumaila. In 1964 production reached an annual rate of 17 million tons.

Oil is exported by tankers from two terminals at the head of the Arabian Gulf, one at Fao (opened in 1951) and the other at Khor al Amaya, twenty-four miles offshore (opened in 1962). A system of pipelines carries the crude oil from the fields to the terminals, which are connected by two 32-inch submarine pipelines.

Mosul Petroleum Co. Ltd.: Office: 214 Oxford Street, London, W.1; an associate company of the Iraq Petroleum Co. Ltd.; Chair. G. H. HERRIDGE, C.M.G.; Managing Dir. C. M. DALLEY; Exec. Dirs. N. M. EKSERDJIAN, M. L. MULLER.

After many years' exploration, oil was first exported in 1952. The Ain Zalah and Butmah fields are now in production. Total production was 1,279,932 tons in 1961. A 12-inch diameter pipeline, 134 miles long, carries the oil to K.2 Pumping Station where it joins the main Iraq Petroleum Company pipeline system to the Mediterranean.

ISRAEL

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Israel lies at the eastern end of the Mediterranean Sea. All Israel's frontiers are with Arab countries, the longest frontiers being with Egypt and Jordan. To the north Israel shares short frontiers with Syria and the Lebanon. The climate is Mediterranean, with hot dry summers when the temperature approaches 100°F (38°C) and mild rainy winters. The language is Hebrew. Arabic is spoken by the quarter of a million Arab minority and many European languages are spoken. Judaism is the religion followed by the great majority of the population. The flag consists of a white background, with a blue six-pointed star composed of two equilateral triangles between two blue horizontal stripes. The capital is Jerusalem.

Recent History

Before 1948 Palestine (of which present-day Israel then formed a part) was a Mandated Territory under British colonial administration. The Jews had long sought to establish a National Home in Palestine and the flow of Jewish immigration finally led to war between Jews and Arabs in 1947. The State of Israel was created following the declaration of an armistice in 1948. No peace treaty has been signed and diplomatically the Arabs do not recognise Israel. A UN Truce Supervisory Organisation continues to operate. In May, 1963, Zalman Shazar became the third President of Israel. In June, Mr. Ben-Gurion retired after fifteen years in office as Prime Minister and was succeeded by Mr. Levi Eshkol.

Government

Supreme authority in Israel rests with the Knesset (Assembly), which is elected by universal suffrage under proportional representation for four years. The President, who is Head of State, is elected by the Knesset for a period of five years. The Cabinet, which is headed by the Prime Minister, is responsible to the Knesset. Ministers are usually members of the Knesset, but non-members may be appointed. The country is divided into six administrative districts. Local authorities are elected once every four years at the same time as the Knesset. There are 26 municipalities, 110 local councils, and 47 regional councils comprising 681 villages.

Defence

The Israel Defence Forces consist of a small nucleus of commissioned and non-commissioned regular officers, a contingent called up for national service, and a large reserve. Unmarried women between the ages of eighteen and twenty-six are called up for twenty months of military service, and men between eighteen and thirty for twenty-six months. About one third of the Israeli budget is allocated for defence.

en per cent of the labour force is employed in agriculture, and 25 per cent in mining and industry. Continuous immigration and an Arab economic boycott have obliged Israel to develop both agriculture and industry on an intensive scale and to seek far afield for international trade. Particular features of agriculture are the Kibbutzim (collective settlements), the irrigation schemes and the reclamation of the Negev desert in the south. Citrus fruit is the main export crop. A wide variety of industrial goods is produced. Some 15 per cent of industry is controlled by the Histadrut (General Federation of Labour) which, in addition to its trade union activity, fosters economic development. Israel receives much aid from Jews in North America and Europe and has many tourists. In 1964 Israel reached agreement with the European Common Market on a reduction of import duties for selected Israeli products and in October 1966 made formal application for associate membership of the EEC.

Transport and Communications

The Israel Railway Administration runs 420 km. of main line. Ultimately Eilat, the port on the Gulf of Aqaba, will be served by rail. 3,780 km. of roads are metalled and over 95,000 motor vehicles are in service. Communications with the Arab countries are severely limited. Israel has a merchant fleet of 69 vessels. El Al Israel Airlines operates international services.

Social Welfare

There is a highly advanced system of social welfare. Old age pensions, industrial injury and maternity benefits, and allowances for large families, are provided under the National Insurance Law. The Histadrut, to which almost 90 per cent of all Jewish workers belong, provides sickness benefit and medical care. The Ministry of Social Welfare provides for general assistance, relief grants, child care and other social services.

Education

Free compulsory primary education is provided for all children between the ages of five and fourteen. There is secondary, vocational and agricultural education. There are three universities and one institute of technology.

Tourism

Israel's tourist attractions include biblical sites, collective farms and sunshine. The Government Tourist Corporation maintains offices in New York, Chicago, London, Paris, Rome, Stockholm, Buenos Aires, Montreal and Zürich. 350,000 tourists visited Israel in 1966.

All nationalities require visas to enter Israel but nationals of the following countries may obtain visas upon arrival: Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Denmark, Finland, France, Iceland, Liechtenstein, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, U.K., U.S.A., Uruguay.

ISRAEL—(INTRODUCTORY SURVEY, STATISTICAL SURVEY)

Sport

All sport in Israel is amateur. Football, basketball, swimming, athletics, hockey, tennis, rowing, handball, volleyball, gymnastics, boxing, wrestling and fencing all have their followers.

Public Holidays (1967)

The Sabbath starts at sunset on Friday and ends at nightfall on Saturday. April 25 (Passover), April 29 (Independence Day), October 5 (New Year), October 14 (Day of Atonement), October 19 (First Day of Feast of Tabernacle), December 27 (Chanukah).

Muslim holidays are observed by the Arab community.

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

1 dunum = 1,000 sq. metres.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The principal currency unit is the Israeli Pound (I£), which is divided into 100 agurot (singular agora).

Coins: 1, 5, 10, 25 agurot, $\frac{1}{2}$ pound, 1 pound.

Notes: 1, 5, 10, 50 Israeli Pounds.

THE CONSTITUTION

There is no written Constitution. In June, 1950, the Knesset voted to adopt a State Constitution by evolution over an unspecified period. A number of laws, including the Law of Return (1950), the Nationality Law (1952), the State President (Tenure) Law (1952), the Education Law (1953) and the "Yad-va-Shem" Memorial Law (1953) are considered as incorporated into the State Constitution. Other constitutional laws are: The Law and Administration Ordinance (1948), the Knesset Election Law (1951), the Law of Equal Rights for Women (1951), the Judges Act (1953), the National Service and National Insurance Acts (1953), and the Basic Law (The Knesset) (1958).

The President

The President is elected by the Knesset for five years.

Ten or more Knesset Members may propose a candidate for the Presidency.

Voting will be by secret ballot.

The President may not leave the country without the consent of the Government.

The President may resign by submitting his resignation in writing to the Speaker.

The President may be relieved of his duties by the Knesset for misdemeanour.

The Knesset is entitled to decide by a two-thirds majority that the President is incapacitated owing to ill-health to fulfil his duties permanently.

The Speaker of the Knesset will act for the President when the President leaves the country, or when he cannot perform his duties owing to ill-health.

The Knesset

The Knesset is the parliament of the State. There are 120 members.

It is elected by general, national, direct, equal, secret and proportional elections.

Every Israel national of 18 years or over shall have the right to vote in elections to the Knesset unless a court has deprived him of that right by virtue of any law.

Every Israel national of 21 and over shall have the right to be elected to the Knesset unless a court has deprived him of that right by virtue of any law.

The following shall not be candidates: the President of the State; the two Chief Rabbis; a judge (shofet) in office; a judge (dayan) of a religious court; the State Comptroller; the Chief of the General Staff of the Defence Army of Israel; rabbis and ministers of other religions in office; senior State employees and senior Army officers of such ranks and in such functions as shall be determined by law.

The term of office of the Knesset shall be four years.

The elections of the Knesset shall take place on the third Tuesday of the month of Cheshven in the year in which the tenure of the outgoing Knesset ends.

Election day shall be a day of rest, but transport and other public services shall function normally.

Results of the elections shall be published within fourteen days.

The Knesset shall elect from among its members a Chairman and Vice-Chairman.

The Knesset shall elect from among its members permanent committees, and may elect committees for specific matters.

The Knesset may appoint commissions of inquiry to investigate matters designated by the Knesset.

The Knesset shall hold two sessions a year; one of them shall open within four weeks after the Feast of the Tabernacles, the other within four weeks after Independence Day; the aggregate duration of the two sessions shall not be less than eight months.

The outgoing Knesset shall continue to hold office until the convening of the incoming Knesset.

The members of the Knesset shall receive a remuneration as provided by law.

The Government

The Government shall tender its resignation to the President immediately after his election, but shall continue with its duties until the formation of a new Government.

After consultation with representatives of the parties in the Knesset, the President shall charge one of the Members with the formation of a Government.

The Government shall be composed of a Prime Minister and a number of Ministers from among the Knesset Members or from outside the Knesset.

After it has been chosen, the Government shall appear before the Knesset and shall be considered as formed after having received a vote of confidence.

Within seven days of receiving a vote of confidence, the Prime Minister and the other Ministers shall swear allegiance to the State of Israel and its Laws and undertake to carry out the decisions of the Knesset.

The Knesset is elected by proportional representation by universal suffrage for four years.

POLITICAL PARTIES

Alignment for the Unity of Israel's Workers: the alignment was formed in 1965 and consists of the following two parties:

Mapai—Israel Labour Party: 110 Ha'yarkon Street, Tel Aviv; f. 1930; the strongest party in Israel; supported by the Ichud Hakvutzot Vehakibbutzim (Federation of Communal Agricultural Villages) and the Moshavim (Smallholders Co-operative Villages).

Mapai publishes the weekly Hapoel Hatzair, the quarterly Molad and an English-language Bulletin.

Achdut Ha'avoda-Poalei Zion Party: 19 Lilienblumst, Tel Aviv; f. 1954; Zionist Socialist party (left-wing) with non-conformist policy. Influence mainly among trade unions, Histadrut and the Kibbutz HaMenchad Movement; Party Gen. Sec. ISRAEL CALILI; daily newspaper Lanerhav.

Gahal (the Herut Movement and Liberal Party Bloc): formed in 1965 as the result of an agreement between:

The Herut (Freedom) Movement: P.O.B. 23062, Tel Aviv; was founded in 1948 by the Irgun Zvai Leumi, which played an activist part in the underground struggle against the British in the closing years of the Mandate.

The Herut Party strives to extend the present frontiers of Israel to its historic boundaries extending on both sides of the Jordan. The party stands for private initiative; 61,000 mems. Founder and former Chair. MENACHEM BEGIN, M.K.

Israel Liberal Party: 68 Ibn Gvirol Street, Tel Aviv; f. 1961 by merger of the General Zionist and Progressive Parties. Its programme includes the implementation of a written constitution, national health insurance, equal rights for various economic sectors, abolition of military régime in Arab-populated area, reforms for recovery of the economy and strengthening of political and economic relations with the new African and Asian States; Leader YOSEF SAPHIR.

Monthly organs are Temurot and Liberale Rundschau.

Independent Liberal Party: set up in 1965 by 7 Liberal Party Knesset members after the formation of the Herut Movement and Liberal Party Bloc; Pres. PINHAS ROSEN.

Israel Labour List (Rafi): f. 1965; breakaway party of former Mapai members; aims at modernizing the economy, re-organizing education, and the reform of the electoral system to one based on constituency representation; Pres. D. BEN GURION; Sec.-Gen. SHIMON PERES; publ. Mabat Hadash (New Look).

Religious National Party: f. 1956; stands for strict adherence to Jewish religion and tradition, and strives to achieve the application of the religious precepts of Judaism in everyday life. It is also endeavouring to establish the constitution of Israel on Jewish religious law.

The United Workers' Party—Mapam (Mifletet Hapoalim Hameuchedet): P.O. Box 1777, Tel Aviv; f. January 1948.

Mapam is a left-wing Socialist-Zionist party; membership: urban workers, professionals, 74 Kibbutzim; aims: public-owned enterprise, guaranteed real wages, progressive taxation, independence of labour movement from state control, large-scale Jewish immigration, equal rights for Arabs, neutralist foreign policy, atomic demilitarisation of Israel-Arab region; branches in U.S.A., Europe and Australia.

The Kibbutz Artzi Federation of collective settlements (affiliated with Mapam) maintains Hashomer Hatzair, which educates Jewish youth to pioneer life in Israel, and operates Sifriat Poalim (The Workers' Library) and Haafus Hehadash (The New Press).

Communist Party of Israel: P.O. Box 1843, Tel Aviv; f. 1919; previously known as the Palestine Communist Party; aims include non-alignment and independence for Israel, and for peace with the Arab States based on mutual recognition of the just national rights of Israel and Arab peoples. Publishes the Hebrew daily Kol Haam and Arabic Sout el Shaab (monthly). Other weeklies in Yiddish, Bulgarian, Rumanian, Hungarian; monthly in English.

New Communist Party of Israel: broke away from the Communist Party of Israel in 1965.

Agudat Israel and Poalei Agudat Israel are also Orthodox Judaist parties, the membership of the Poalei Agudat Israel being drawn largely from wage-earners.

The official organ of Agudat Israel is the daily Hamodia; that of the Poalei Agudat Israel is the daily Shearim.

Pres. of Poalei Agudat Israel Dr. K. KAHANA.

Co-operation and Fraternity Party: an Arab party associated with the Mapai party; has two seats in the 5th Knesset.

Progress and Development Party: an Arab party associated with the Mapai party; has two seats in the 5th Knesset.

Agriculture and Development Party: an Arab party associated with the Mapai party.

THE JEWISH AGENCY

President: NAHUM GOLDMANN.

Chairman, Executive Committee: LOUIS PINCUS.

History:

Article Four of the League of Nations' Mandate provided for the establishment of a Jewish Agency to co-operate with the administration in the economic and social development of the Jewish national home. The Zionist Organisation served as this agency until 1929, when the Jewish Agency was finally constituted, with the admission of non-Zionists as well as Zionists to its Council. The Zionist Congress of 1925 bound the Agency to the following "inviolable principles": a continuous increase in the volume of Jewish immigration, the recovery of the land as Jewish public property, agricultural colonisation based on Jewish labour, and the promotion of the Hebrew language and Hebrew culture.

When the State of Israel was established in 1948, the provisional Government was formed from the members of the Executive of the Va'ad Leumi (the representative organ of Palestinian Jewry) and members of the Jewish Agency Executive resident in Palestine at the time. The division of tasks between the Jewish Agency and the Government was defined in a law of 1952 and in a Covenant entered into in 1954.

Functions:

Under the Covenant, the functions of the Jewish Agency included the promotion of interest in and the organisation of emigration to Israel of Jews abroad; the transportation of immigrants and their belongings to Israel; assistance in absorbing the immigrants in Israel and participation in the cost; agricultural settlement; participation in development projects; the encouragement of private investment; and the raising of funds to finance all these activities.

Revenue and Expenditure

The Jewish Agency's chief source of revenue is the United Israel Appeal, or Foundation Fund (Keren Hayesod) to which Jews in the U.S.A. contribute about $70 million a year, and to which Jews in other parts of the world, including the British Commonwealth, also contribute. The Agency also receives an 18 per cent share of the German reparations payments, which was estimated at 1,118 million in 1962-63.

Expenditure abroad, apart from debt service, include transport of immigrants, aid to Jewish education and cultural activities as well as purchases of equipment and stocks for the new settlements established by the Agency.

Investments:

The Foundation Fund (Keren Hayesod) was established in 1920 and was transferred to the Jewish Agency in 1929, thus the Agency has acquired a not inconsiderable stake in the Israel economy.

Investments include the Mekorot Water Company, and there are other substantial investments in the Zim Navigation Company, in the Rasco building company, and in agricultural loan and contracting concerns.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The law of Israel is composed of Ottoman law, British law, Palestine law, applicable in Palestine on May 14th, 1948, when the independence of the State of Israel was declared, the substance of the common law and doctrines of equity in force in England, as modified to suit local conditions, and religious law of the various recognized religious communities as regards matters of personal status, in so far as there is nothing in any of the said laws repugnant to Israeli legislation and subject to such modifications as may have resulted from the establishment of the State of Israel and its authorities, and also of the laws enacted by the Israeli legislature of which there are already over 1,000.

CIVIL COURTS

The Supreme Court is the highest Civil Court in Israel. It has jurisdiction as an appellate Court from the District Courts in all matters, both civil and criminal (sitting as a Court of Civil Appeal or as a Court of Criminal Appeal), and as a Court of First Instance (sitting as a High Court of Justice) in matters in which it considers it necessary to grant relief in the interests of justice and which are not within the jurisdiction of any other court or tribunal. This includes applications for orders in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition and certiorari, and enables the court to supervise the legality of acts of administrative authorities of all kinds.

President of the Supreme Court: S. AGRANAT.

Permanent Deputy President of the Supreme Court: M. SILBERG.

Justices of the Supreme Court: Y. SUSSMAN, M. LANDAU, Z. BERINSON, A. WITKON, H. COHEN, E. M. MANNY, B. HALEVI, I. KISTER.

The District Courts: Jerusalem, Tel-Aviv-Jaffa, Haifa, Beersheba. They have unlimited jurisdiction as Courts of First Instance in all civil and criminal matters not within the jurisdiction of a Magistrates' Court, all matters not within the exclusive jurisdiction of any other Court or tribunal, and matters within the concurrent jurisdiction of any other Court or tribunal so long as such Court or tribunal does not deal with them, and as an appellate Court in appeals from judgments and decisions of Magistrates' Courts and judgments of Municipal Courts and various administrative tribunals.

Magistrates' Courts: There are 25 Magistrates' Courts, having criminal jurisdiction to try contraventions and misdemeanours, and civil jurisdiction to try actions concerning possession or use of immovable property, or the partition thereof, and other civil actions where the amount of the claim is less than the value of the subject-matter, does not exceed 10,000 l.s.

Municipal Courts: There are 5 Municipal Courts, having criminal jurisdiction over any offences against municipal regulations and by-laws and certain other offences, such as town planning offences, committed within the municipal area.

RELIGIOUS COURTS

The Religious Courts are the Courts of the recognized religious communities. They are competent in certain defined matters of personal status concerning members of their community. Where any action of personal status involves persons of different religious communities the President of the Supreme Court will decide which Court shall have jurisdiction. Whenever a question arises as to whether or not a case is one of personal status within the exclusive jurisdiction of a Religious Court, the matter must be referred to a Special Tribunal composed of two Justices of the Supreme Court and the President of the highest court of the religious community concerned in Israel.

The judgments of the Religious Courts are executed by the process and offices of the Civil Courts.

Jewish Rabbinical Courts: These Courts have exclusive jurisdiction in matters of marriage and divorce of Jews in Israel who are Israeli citizens or residents. In all other matters of personal status they have concurrent jurisdiction with the District Courts with the consent of all parties concerned.

Moslem Religious Courts: These Courts have exclusive jurisdiction in matters of marriage and divorce of Moslems who are not foreigners, or who are foreigners who are subject by their national law to the jurisdiction of Moslem Religious Courts in such matters. In all other matters of personal status they have concurrent jurisdiction with the District Courts with the consent of all parties concerned.

Christian Religious Courts: The Courts of the recognized Christian communities have exclusive jurisdiction in matters of marriage and divorce of members of their communities who are not foreigners. In all other matters of personal status they have concurrent jurisdiction with the District Courts with the consent of all parties concerned. But neither these Courts nor the Civil Courts have jurisdiction to dissolve the marriage of a foreign subject.

Druze Courts: These Courts, established in 1963, have exclusive jurisdiction in matters of marriage and divorce of Druze in Israel, who are Israeli citizens or residents, and concurrent jurisdiction with the District Courts in all other matters of personal status of Druze with the consent of all parties concerned.

MILITARY COURTS

Courts-Martial: A Court-Martial is competent to try a soldier within the meaning of the Military Justice Law, 1955, who has committed an act constituting a military offence, without prejudice to the power of any other Court in the State to try him for that act if it constitutes an offence under any other law. A Court-Martial is also competent to try a soldier for any offence which is not a military offence, but the Attorney General may order that he be tried by another Court if he is of the opinion that the offence was not committed within the framework of the Army or in consequence of the accused's belonging to the Army.

RELIGION

JUDAISM

Judaism, the religion evolved and followed by the Jews, is the faith of the great majority of the population, although certain features of Jewish traditional ritual and observance are less rigidly maintained by sections of the community than in European Jewish life of former centuries. Its basis is a belief in an ethical monotheism.

There are two main Jewish communities: the Ashkenazim and the Sephardim. The former are the Jews from Eastern, Central, or Northern Europe, while the latter originate from the Balkan countries, North Africa and the Middle East. Although they have separate synagogues, and differ somewhat in their ritual and pronunciation of Hebrew, there is no doctrinal distinction. The prevailing influence is that of the Ashkenazim Jews, who are more modern and westernised, but the recent Hebrew revival has been based on the Sephardi pronunciation of the ancient Hebrew tongue.

The supreme religious authority is vested in the Chief Rabbinate, which consists of the Ashkenazi and Sephardi Chief Rabbis and the Supreme Rabbinical Council. It makes decisions on interpretation of the Jewish law, and supervises the Rabbinical Courts. There are 8 regional Rabbinical Courts, and a Rabbinical Court of Appeal presided over by the two Chief Rabbis.

According to the Rabbinical Courts Jurisdiction Law of 1953, marriage and divorce among Jews in Israel are exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Rabbinical Courts. Provided that all the parties concerned agree, other matters of personal status can also be decided by the Rabbinical Courts.

There are 185 Religious Councils, which maintain religious services and supply religious needs, and about 380 religious committees with similar functions in smaller settlements. Their expenses are borne jointly by the State and the local authorities. The Religious Councils are under the administrative control of the Ministry of Religious Affairs. In all matters of religion, the Religious Councils are subject to the authority of the Chief Rabbinate. There are 365 officially appointed rabbis. The total number of synagogues is about 4,000.

Head of the Ashkenazi Community: The Very Rev. The Chief Rabbi ISER UNTERMANN (elected March 1964).

Head of the Chief Rabbinate of Israel and Head of the Sephardic Community: The Very Rev. The Chief Rabbi YITZCHAK NISSIM, Balfour Street 7, Jerusalem.

Two Jewish sects still clinging to their distinctive customs are:

The Karaites, a sect which recognises only the Jewish written law and not the oral law of the Mishna and Talmud. The community of about 4,500, many of whom live in or near Ramla, has been augmented by immigration from Egypt.

The Samaritans, an ancient sect mentioned in 2 Kings xvii, 24. They recognise only the Torah and the Book of Joshua. The community in Israel numbers about 100; they live in Holon, where a Samaritan synagogue is now being built. Their High Priest lives in Nablus, Jordan, near Mt. Gerizim, which is sacred to the Samaritans.

ISLAM

The Muslims in Israel are in the main Sunnis, and are divided among the four rites of the Sunni school of Muslim thought: the Shafe'i, the Hanbali, the Hanafi, and the Maliki. They number approximately 175,000.

CHRISTIAN COMMUNITIES

The Greek Catholic Community, P.O.B. 279, Haifa; numbers about 25,000 and Haifa is the seat of the Archbishop of Acre, Haifa, Nazareth and all Galilee (H.E. Mgr. GEORGE HAKIM, Haifa); publ. Ar-Rabita (Arabic monthly; circ. 4,000).

The Greek Orthodox Church in Israel has approximately 16,000 members. The Patriarch of Jerusalem, who resides in the Old City, is represented in Israel by an Exarch, Archbishop ISIDOROS, Metropolitan of Nazareth.

The Latin (Roman Catholic) Church has about 7,000 native members in Israel plus about 3,000 Polish and Hungarian Catholic refugees. Vicar General and Representative in Israel of the Latin Patriarch of Jerusalem, H.E. Mgr. HANNA KALDANY.

The Maronite Community, with approximately 3,000 members, has communal centres in Haifa, Nazareth and Jaffa. The Maronite Patriarch resides in the Lebanon.

The Arab Evangelical Episcopal Church, which belongs to the Anglican Communion, has 1,000 members; it comes under the jurisdiction of the Archbishop of Jerusalem.

Other denominations include the Armenian Church (900 members), the Coptic Church (700 members), the Russian Orthodox Church, which maintains an Ecclesiastical Mission, the Ethiopian Church, and the Baptist Lutheran and Presbyterian Churches.

THE HISTADRUT

Hahistadrut Haklalit shel Haovdim Haivrim Beeretz Israel, 93 Arlosoroff Street, Tel-Aviv.

(GENERAL FEDERATION OF LABOUR IN ISRAEL)

Secretary-General: AHARON BECKER.

The General Federation of Labour in Israel, usually known as the Histadrut, is the largest voluntary organisation in Israel, and the most important economic body in the State. It is open to all workers, including members of co-operatives and of the liberal professions, who join directly as individuals. The Histadrut engages in four main fields of activity: trade union organisation; economic development; social insurance based on mutual aid; and educational and cultural activities. Dues—between 3 per cent and 4.5 per cent of wages—cover all its trade union, health and social service activities. The Histadrut was founded in 1920.

ORGANISATION

In 1964 the Histadrut had a membership of 872,000, including 250,000 in collective, cooperative and private villages (kibbutzim, moshavim and moshavot), affiliated through the Agricultural Workers' Union, and 261,000 wives (who have membership status). About 35,000 members were Arabs. In addition some 100,000 young people under 18 years of age belong to the Organisation of Working and Student Youth, a direct affiliate of the Histadrut. The main religious labour organisations, Histadrut Hapoel Hamizrahi and Histadrut Poalei Agudat Israel, belong to the trade union section and welfare services, which thus extend to 90 per cent of all workers in Israel.

All members take part in elections to the Histadrut Convention (Veida), which elects the General Council (Moetsa) and the Executive Committee (Vaad Hapoel). The latter elects the 17-member Executive Bureau (Vaada Merakezet), which is responsible for day-to-day implementation of policy. The Executive Committee also elects the Secretary-General, who acts as its chairman as well as head of the movement and chairman of the Executive Bureau. Nearly all political parties are represented on the Histadrut Committee. Throughout Israel there are 65 local Labour Councils.

The Executive Committee has the following departments: Trade Union, Arab Affairs, Mutual Aid, Organisation, International, Finance, Legal, Employment, Vocational Training, Absorption and Development, Academic Workers, Pensions, Religious Affairs and Higher Education.

TRADE UNION ACTIVITIES

Collective agreements with employers fix wage scales, which are linked with the retail price index; provide for social benefits, including paid sick leave and employers' contributions to sick and pension and provident funds; and regulate dismissals. Dismissal compensation, until recently fixed by collective agreements, is now regulated by law. The Histadrut actively promotes productivity through labour management boards and the National Productivity Institute, and supports incentive pay schemes.

There are unions for the following groups: clerical workers, building workers, teachers, engineers, agricultural workers, technicians, textile workers, printing workers, diamond workers, metal workers, food and bakery workers, wood workers, government employees, seamen, nurses, civilian employees of the armed forces, actors, musicians and variety artists, social workers, watchmen, cine-technicians, institutional and school staffs, pharmacy employees, medical laboratory workers, X-ray technicians, physiotherapists, social scientists, microbiologists psychologists, salaried lawyers, pharmacists, physicians, occupational therapists, truck and taxi drivers, hotel and restaurant workers, workers in Histadrut-owned industry, garment, shoe and leather workers, painters and sculptors and industrial workers.

Haifa and Ashdod are the main ports in Israel. The former is a natural harbour, enclosed by two main breakwaters and dredged to 37 ft. below mean sea level. An auxiliary harbour was opened in 1955. In 1965 the new deep water port was completed at Ashdod which will have an estimated capacity of 4 million tons per year. The Tel Aviv/Jaffa ports were closed down in 1965 as their facilities were no longer adequate for Israel's needs.

Israel had (in 1966) a merchant fleet of 100 ships, with a displacement of approximately 1,000,000 tons.

The port of Eilat is Israel's gate to the Red Sea. It is a natural harbour, operated from a jetty. A new port is being constructed to the south of the present one.

IVORY COAST

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Ivory Coast lies on the west coast of Africa between Ghana and Liberia with Guinea, Mali and Upper Volta to the north. The climate is hot and wet with temperatures varying from 57° to 103°F (14° to 39°C). The official language is French and a large number of tribal languages are spoken. The majority of the population follow traditional beliefs; Christians, mainly Roman Catholic, make up 12 per cent of the population, and Moslems about 23 per cent. The flag is a vertical tricolour of orange, white and green. The capital is Abidjan.

Recent History

The Ivory Coast became an independent Republic in August 1960. Formerly a province of French West Africa, in 1958 it was declared to be a self-governing Republic within the French Community. In 1959 it joined with Dahomey, Niger and Upper Volta to form the Conseil de l'Entente, a regional politico-economic association. The Ivory Coast did not rejoin the French Community on attaining independence but through the Conseil de l'Entente is closely bound to France by cultural, economic and military treaties. In 1964 the African Development Bank was established in Abidjan. President Houphouët-Boigny was re-elected in November 1965.

Government

The Ivory Coast is a Republic with executive power vested in the President, who is elected by direct universal suffrage. The Council of Ministers is directly responsible to him. The National Assembly is elected by a single party system. The country is divided into four Prefectures with Administrators appointed by the President. Each has its own elected Council.

Defence

Defence matters are the concern of the Regional Defence Council of the Conseil de l'Entente through which agreements with France have been negotiated. France supplies equipment and training in return for bases in case of need. The Ivory Coast has over 4,000 troops and a small air force.

Economic Affairs

The economy of the Ivory Coast is basically that of subsistence agriculture with 90 per cent of the population dependent on farming, forestry and fishing. The chief cash crops are coffee and cocoa. Timber ranks as the third export. Manganese and diamonds are mined and other minerals await development. There is little industry but the state encourages the processing of raw materials and local handicrafts.

Transport and Communications

A one-metre gauge railway runs to Upper Volta. All weather roads total 24,850 km., secondary roads 49,000 km. An immense bridge with three driveways joins Abidjan to the suburb of Treichville. The lower courses of the rivers and the coastal lagoons are used for local transport. Abidjan is the most important seaport in French-speaking West Africa. The Ivory Coast is a member of Air Afrique.

Social Welfare

Medical services are organised by the state. Other social services have yet to be developed.

Education

The government provides education at nominal rates but attendance at primary school is not compulsory. There are 266,000 pupils in primary schools and 14,000 at secondary schools. There is a university at Abidjan. A number of students enrol at French universities.

Tourism

There are game reserves, and the forests and lagoons and the well-planned capital, Abidjan, are all of interest to tourists.

Visas are not required by French nationals.

Sport

There is little organised sport. Football is popular and the country takes part in regional and international competitions.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), May 4 (Ascension), May 14 (Pentecost), August 7 (Independence), August 15 (Assumption), November 1 (All Saints), December 25 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year), January 2 (End of Ramadan), April 15 (Easter Monday).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The principal unit of currency is the Franc Communauté Financière Africaine (C.F.A.) which is divided into 100 centimes.

Coins: 1, 2, 5, 10, 25 C.F.A.

Notes: 100, 500, 1,000, 5,000 C.F.A.

Exchange rate: 685 C.F.A. = £1 sterling

244 C.F.A. = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

(October 31st, 1960)

Preamble: The Republic of the Ivory Coast is one and indivisible. It is secular, democratic and social. Sovereignty belongs to the people who exercise it through their representatives or through referendum. There is universal, equal and secret suffrage. French is the official language.

Head of State: The President is elected for a 5-year term by direct universal suffrage and is eligible for re-election. He is Head of the Administration and the Armed Forces and has power to ask the National Assembly to reconsider a Bill, which must then be passed by two-thirds of the members of the Assembly; he may also have a bill submitted to a referendum. In case of the death or incapacitation of the President his functions are carried out by a deputy chosen by the National Assembly.

Executive Power: Executive Power is vested in the President who appoints a Council of Ministers.

Legislative Power: Legislative power is vested in a National Assembly of 85 members, elected for a 5-year term of office at the same time as the Presidential elections. Legislation may be introduced by either the President or by a member of the National Assembly.

Judicial Power: The independence of the judiciary is guaranteed by the President, assisted by a High Council of Judiciary.

Economic and Social Council: An advisory commission representing employers, unions and Government.

Conseil de l'Entente: In May 1959 the Ivory Coast joined with the Republics of Dahomey, Niger and Upper Volta to form the Conseil de l'Entente. (See Volume I.)

JAMAICA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Jamaica is an island in the Caribbean ninety miles south of Cuba. Haiti is nearby to the east. The climate varies with altitude, being tropical at sea level and temperate in the mountain areas. Average annual rainfall is 77 inches. The language is English. The majority of the population belong to Christian churches of which the Church of England and the Baptist Church are the strongest. There is a small Jewish minority. The flag consists of a diagonal gold cross on a black and green background. The capital is Kingston.

Recent History

Formerly a British colony, the island achieved internal independence in 1959 and full independence in 1962. In 1958 Jamaica joined with Trinidad, Barbados, the Leeward Islands and the Windward Islands to form the West Indies Federation. Jamaica seceded in 1961 following a referendum and the Federation broke up. The two dominant political figures since the war have been Sir Alexander Bustamante, who retired as Prime Minister in 1966 on account of ill health, and Norman Manley, Q.C., the previous Premier.

Government

The legislature consists of a Senate of 21 members and a House of Representatives of 53 members. Thirteen members of the Senate are appointed by the Governor-General on the advice of the Prime Minister and eight on the advice of the Leader of the Opposition. The House of Representatives is elected by universal adult suffrage. Executive power lies with the Prime Minister and a Cabinet of not less than eleven members. A Privy Council of six members advises the Governor-General on the exercise of the Royal Prerogative of Mercy and on Service appeals of a disciplinary nature.

Defence

Until independence in 1962 defence was the responsibility of the United Kingdom. Since then Jamaica has been building up her own forces.

Economic Affairs

The economy is based on agriculture and mining. The dominant crop is sugar, with molasses and rum as important by-products. Bananas, citrus fruits and coconuts are also cultivated. The principal mineral is bauxite, of which Jamaica is a large producer. Industry is expanding and covers cement, tobacco and a number of consumer goods. Trade is chiefly with Britain, the U.S.A. and Canada. Two valuable sources of income are the tourist trade and remittances from migrants working in the United Kingdom. Under the Five-Year Plan, 1963-68, fifty per cent of expenditure will be devoted to social and community services to combat the drift of labour to the towns.

Transport and Communications

There are 249 miles of railway, including the 112-mile line running diagonally across the island from Kingston to Montego Bay. 2,688 miles of main roads and 6,516 miles of secondary roads link towns and villages. The principal ports are Kingston and Montego Bay. Jamaica is well served by a number of international air lines.

Social Welfare

Social welfare is undertaken by the Government, chiefly in co-operation with private charitable organisations. The Social Development Commission arranges and co-ordinates social welfare in the villages.

Education

Primary education is compulsory and secondary schools receive a Government grant. The Five-Year Plan, 1963-68, envisages expansion of education facilities by 25 per cent. The University of the West Indies in Kingston has 358 teachers and 3,038 students.

Tourism

Jamaica attracts many tourists, mainly from the U.S.A. In 1965 300,258 tourists visited the island. There are many hotels and hotel proprietors receive tax concessions to encourage tourism.

Visas are not required to visit Jamaica by nationals of Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, German Federal Republic, Italy, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway and Colonies, San Marino, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom and Commonwealth and United States.

Sport

The chief sports are cricket, tennis, swimming and football.

Public Holidays

1967: May 24 (Labour Day), Queen's Birthday (June), August 7 (Independence Day), December 25 and 26 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year), February 28 (Ash Wednesday), April 12-15 (Easter).

Weights and Measures

Imperial weights and measures are in force in Jamaica.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The currency unit is the Jamaican Pound which is at par with the Pound sterling.

Coins: ½d., 1d., (British coins are legal tender up to an amount of 40s.).

Notes: 5s., 10s., £1, £5, £10.

Exchange rate: £1 Jamaica = £1 sterling

THE CONSTITUTION

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL

The Governor-General will be appointed by The Queen and will hold office during her pleasure.

THE LEGISLATURE

The Senate or Upper House will consist of 21 Senators of whom 13 will be appointed by the Governor-General on the advice of the Prime Minister and 8 by the Governor-General on the advice of the Leader of the Opposition.

The House of Representatives will consist of 45 elected members, to be called Members of Parliament, but provision will be included to permit the number to be increased to up to 60. (There are (1967) 53 seats in the house.)

A person will be qualified for appointment to the Senate or for election to the House of Representatives if he is a citizen of Jamaica or other Commonwealth country of the age of 21 or more and has been ordinarily resident in Jamaica for the immediately preceding twelve months.

THE PRIVY COUNCIL

The Privy Council will consist of six members appointed by the Governor-General after consultation with the Prime Minister, of whom at least two will be persons who hold or who have held public office. The functions of the Council will be to advise the Governor-General on the exercise of the Royal Prerogative of Mercy and on appeals on disciplinary matters from the three Service Commissions.

THE EXECUTIVE

The Prime Minister

The Governor-General will appoint as Prime Minister the person from the House of Representatives who, in his judgment, is best able to command the support of the majority of the members of that House.

Leader of the Opposition

There will be a Leader of the Opposition appointed by the Governor-General in his discretion being the member of the House of Representatives who in his judgment is best able to command the support of the majority of those members of the House who do not support the Government.

The Cabinet

The Cabinet will consist of the Prime Minister and not less than eleven other Ministers appointed by the Governor-General on the advice of the Prime Minister.

THE JUDICATURE

The Judicature consists of a Supreme Court, a Court of Appeal and minor courts. Judicial matters, notably advice to the Governor-General on appointments, are considered by a Judicial Service Commission, the Chairman of which is the Chief Justice, members being the President of the Court of Appeal, the Chairman of the Public Service Commission and three others.

CITIZENSHIP

Provision will be made for Jamaican citizenship. All persons born in Jamaica after independence will automatically acquire Jamaican citizenship and there will also be provision for the acquisition of citizenship by persons born outside Jamaica of Jamaican parents. Persons born in Jamaica (or persons born outside Jamaica of Jamaican parents) before independence who are immediately prior to independence citizens of the United Kingdom and Colonies will also automatically become citizens of Jamaica.

Appropriate provisions will be made which will permit persons who will not automatically become citizens of Jamaica to be registered as such.

FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS AND FREEDOMS

The Constitution will include provisions safeguarding the fundamental freedoms of the individual, irrespective of race, place of origin, political opinions, colour, creed or sex, subject only to respect for the rights and freedoms of others and for the public interest. The fundamental freedoms will include the right of life, liberty, security of the person and protection from arbitrary arrest or restriction of movement, the enjoyment of property and the protection of the law, freedom of conscience, of expression and of peaceful assembly and association, and respect for private and family life.

JAPAN

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Japan forms a curved chain of islands off the coast of east Asia. There are four large islands named (from north to south) Hokkaido, Honshu, Shikoku and Kyushu, and many smaller islands. Hokkaido lies just to the south of the large Russian island, Sakhalin, and about 800 miles east of the Russian mainland port, Vladivostok. Southern Japan is about 100 miles east of Korea. Although summers are everywhere temperate, the climate in winter varies sharply from north to south. Typhoons and heavy rains are common in summer. The language is Japanese. The major religions are Shinto and Buddhism and there is a minority of Christians. The flag consists of a red sun without rays on a white background. The capital is Tokyo.

Recent History

Following the Second World War the Americans occupied Japan and introduced a policy of democratization. The Emperor was deprived of his former god-like authority and a new Constitution providing for popular elections became operative. In 1952 Japan regained its independence with the signing of the San Francisco Peace Treaty. Admission to the United Nations followed in 1957. The economy has been rebuilt and Japan has become a prosperous state. In 1963 and again in 1967 the Liberal Democrats were re-elected for a further four-year term. In 1964 Mr. Ikeda resigned the Premiership, and was succeeded by Mr. Sato. In the same year Japan became a full member of IMF and OECD. Mr. Sato has followed a policy of controlled economic expansion. Diplomatic relations with the Republic of Korea were established in 1965.

Government

Under the Constitution of 1946 the Emperor is Head of State but has no governing power. Executive power lies with the Cabinet consisting of the Prime Minister and 11 to 16 Ministers of State. The legislative body is the Diet, consisting of the House of Representatives (486 seats), whose members are elected for a four-year term, and the House of Councillors (250 seats), members of which are elected for six years, one half retiring every three years. There is universal suffrage at the age of twenty. The country is divided into 46 prefectures.

Defence

Although the Constitution renounces war and the use of force, the right of self-defence is not excluded and Ground, Maritime and Air Self-Defence Forces are maintained. Under Security Treaties, the United States provides equipment and training staff and also maintains bases in Japan. The total strength of the Self-Defence Forces was estimated at 246,000 in 1965. These forces are being strengthened under a five-year programme started in 1966.

Economic Affairs

Recovery after the war was very well organized and Japan now has a strong economy with a rapid rate of growth. Exports for 1965 were 26.7 per cent up on the previous year, while imports rose only 2.3 per cent. About 27 per cent of the population are engaged in agriculture and fishing. The principal crops are rice, wheat and barley, and much fruit is grown. Japan is a leading fishing nation, both in coastal and deep-sea waters. Mineral resources include coal, limestone, copper and lead, but many minerals have to be imported. Industries in which Japan is among the world's leaders include ship-building, steel, photographic and electronic equipment, optical instruments, transistor radios, television sets, motor vehicles, motor cycles and textiles. Japan's first nuclear power station became productive in 1965.

Transport and Communications

Despite difficulties of terrain, rail transport is highly developed, and a 22 mile-long tunnel is being built under the Pacific to join Hokkaido and Honshu. The Japanese National Railways have 12,500 miles of track and there are extensive private railways. There are 92,125 miles of road, of which 14.6 per cent are paved. A twenty-year road improvement scheme costing over £50,000 million was begun in 1964. Large and small craft ply between the islands and there is a big fleet of ocean-going vessels. The main ports are Yokohama, Nagasaki and Kobe. Japanese Air Lines (JAL) are state-subsidized and there are over 20 other air transport companies.

Social Welfare

About 90 per cent of the population are insured under schemes covering health, welfare annuities, unemployment and industrial accidents. Public Aid is available for the physically handicapped, for disabled war veterans and for war-bereaved families.

Education

Education is compulsory and free for nine years (6-15) in elementary and secondary schools. Higher education may be obtained at the country's 591 colleges and universities, with a total of over 800,000 students. There are both State and private universities.

Tourism

The forests and mountains, pagodas and temples, traditional festivals and the classical Kabuki theatre are some of the many tourist attractions of Japan.

Visas are not required to visit Japan by nationals of Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Colombia, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Finland, France, German Federal Republic, Greece, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Pakistan, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Tunisia, Turkey and United Kingdom.

Sport

Traditional sports with a wide following are Judo, Sumo (Japanese wrestling) and Kendo (Japanese fencing). Baseball, swimming, skiing and table-tennis are the principal other sports and golf is becoming increasingly popular. The Olympic Games were magnificently staged in Tokyo in 1964, and the Winter Olympic games will be held at Sapporo in 1972.

THE CONSTITUTION

(Promulgated November 3rd, 1946, in force May 3rd, 1947)

The Emperor

1. The Emperor shall be the symbol of the State and of the unity of the people, deriving his position from the will of the people with whom resides sovereign power.

2. The Imperial Throne shall be dynastic and succeeded to in accordance with the Imperial House Law passed by the Diet.

3. The advice and approval of the Cabinet shall be required for all acts of the Emperor in matters of State, and the Cabinet shall be responsible therefor.

4. The Emperor shall perform only such acts in matters of State as are provided for in this Constitution, and he shall not have powers related to government.

The Emperor may delegate the performance of his acts in matters of State as may be provided by law.

5. When, in accordance with the Imperial House Law, a regency is established, the Regent shall perform his acts in matters of State in the Emperor's name. In this case, paragraph 1 of the preceding article will be applicable.

6. The Emperor shall appoint the Prime Minister, as designated by the Diet.

The Emperor shall appoint the Chief Judge of the Supreme Court, as designated by the Cabinet.

7. The Emperor, with the advice and approval of the Cabinet, shall perform the following acts in matters of State on behalf of the people:

Promulgation of amendments, of the Constitution, laws, Cabinet orders, and treaties.

Convocation of the Diet.

Dissolution of the House of Representatives.

Proclamation of general election of members of the Diet.

Attestation of the appointment and dismissal of Ministers of State and other officials as provided for by law, and of full powers and credentials of Ambassadors and Ministers.

Attestation of general and special amnesty, commutation of punishment, reprieve, and restoration of rights.

Awarding of honours.

Attestation of instruments of ratification and other diplomatic documents as provided for by law.

Receiving foreign ambassadors and ministers.

Performance of ceremonial functions.

8. No property can be given to, or received by, the Imperial House, nor can any gifts be made therefrom, without the authorisation of the Diet.

9. Renunciation of war.

10-40. Public rights and duties.

The Diet

41. The Diet shall be the highest organ of State power, and shall be the sole law-making organ of the State.

42. The Diet shall consist of two Houses, namely the House of Representatives and the House of Councillors.

43. Both Houses shall consist of elected members, representative of all the people.

The number of the members of each House shall be fixed by law.

44. The qualifications of members of both Houses and their electors shall be fixed by law. However, there shall be no discrimination because of race, creed, sex, social status, family origin, education, property, or income.

45. The term of office of members of the House of Representatives shall be four years. However, the term shall be terminated before the full term is up in case the House of Representatives is dissolved.

46. The term of office of members of the House of Councillors shall be six years, and election for half the members shall take place every three years.

47. Electoral districts, methods of voting, and other matters pertaining to the method of election of members of both Houses, shall be fixed by law.

48. No person shall be permitted to be a member of both Houses simultaneously.

49. Members of both Houses shall receive appropriate annual payment from the national treasury in accordance with law.

50. Except in cases provided by law, members of both Houses shall be exempt from apprehension while the Diet is in session, and any members apprehended before the opening of the session shall be freed during the term of the session upon demand of the House.

51. Members of both Houses shall not be held liable outside the House for speeches, debates, or votes cast inside the House.

52. An ordinary session of the Diet shall be convoked once per year.

53. The Cabinet may determine to convoke extraordinary sessions of the Diet. When a quarter or more of the total members of either House makes the demand, the Cabinet must determine on such convocation.

54. When the House of Representatives is dissolved there must be a general election of members of the House of Representatives within forty (40) days from the date of dissolution, and the Diet must be convoked within thirty (30) days from the date of the election.

When the House of Representatives is dissolved the House of Councillors is closed at the same time. However, the Cabinet may in time of national emergency convoke the House of Councillors in emergency session.

Measures taken at such session as mentioned in the proviso of the preceding paragraph shall be provisional, and shall become null and void unless agreed to by the House of Representatives within a period of ten (10) days after the opening of the next session of the Diet.

55. Each House shall judge disputes related to qualifications of its members. However, in order to deny a seat to any member, it is necessary to pass a resolution by a majority of two-thirds or more of the members present.

56. Business cannot be transacted in either House unless one-third or more of total membership is present.

All matters shall be decided, in each House, by a majority of those present, except as elsewhere provided in the Constitution, and in case of a tie the presiding officer shall decide the issue.

57. Deliberation in each House shall be public. However, a secret meeting may be held where a majority of two-thirds or more of those members present passes a resolution therefor.

Each House shall keep a record of proceedings. This record shall be published and given general circulation, excepting such parts of proceedings of secret session as may be deemed to require secrecy.

Upon demand of one-fifth or more of the members present, votes of the members on any matter shall be recorded in the minutes.

58. Each House shall select its own President and other officials.

Each House shall establish its rules pertaining to meetings, proceedings, and internal discipline, and may punish members for disorderly conduct. However, in order to expel a member, a majority of two-thirds or more of those members present must pass a resolution thereon.

59. A bill becomes law on passage by both Houses, except as otherwise provided by the Constitution.

A bill which is passed by the House of Representatives, and upon which the House of Councillors makes a decision different from that of the House of Representatives, becomes a law when passed a second time by the House of Representatives by a majority of two-thirds or more of the members present.

The provision of the preceding paragraph does not preclude the House of Representatives from calling for the meeting of a joint committee of both Houses, provided for by law.

Failure by the House of Councillors to take final action within sixty (60) days after receipt of a bill passed by the House of Representatives, time in recess excepted, may be determined by the House of Representatives to constitute a rejection of the said bill by the House of Councillors.

60. The budget must first be submitted to the House of Representatives.

Upon consideration of the budget, when the House of Councillors makes a decision different from that of the House of Representatives, and when no agreement can be reached, even through a joint committee of both Houses, provided for by law, or in the case of failure by the House of Councillors to take final action within thirty (30) days, the period of recess excluded, after the receipt of the budget passed by the House of Representatives, the decision of the House of Representatives shall be the decision of the Diet.

61. The second paragraph of the preceding article applies also to the Diet approval required for the conclusion of treaties.

62. Each House may conduct investigations in relation to government, and may demand the presence and testimony of witnesses, and the production of records.

63. The Prime Minister and other Ministers of State may, at any time, appear in either House for the purpose of speaking on bills, regardless of whether they are members of the House or not. They must appear when their presence is required in order to give answers or explanations.

64. The Diet shall set up an impeachment court from among the members of both Houses for the purpose of trying those judges against whom removal proceedings have been instituted.

Matters relating to impeachment shall be provided by law.

The Cabinet

65. Executive power shall be vested in the Cabinet.

66. The Cabinet shall consist of the Prime Minister, who shall be its head, and other Ministers of State as provided for by law.

The Prime Minister and other Ministers of State must be civilians.

The Cabinet, in the exercise of executive power, shall be collectively responsible to the Diet.

67. The Prime Minister shall be designated from among the members of the Diet by a resolution of the Diet. This designation shall precede all other business.

If the House of Representatives and the House of Councillors disagree, and if no agreement can be reached even through a joint committee of both Houses, provided for by law, or the House of Councillors fails to make designation within ten (10) days, exclusive of the period of recess, after the House of Representatives has made designation, the decision of the House of Representatives shall be the decision of the Diet.

68. The Prime Minister shall appoint the Ministers of State. However, a majority of their numbers must be chosen from among the members of the Diet.

The Prime Minister may remove the Ministers of State as he chooses.

69. If the House of Representatives passes a non-confidence resolution, or rejects a confidence resolution, the Cabinet shall resign en masse, unless the House of Representatives is dissolved within ten (10) days.

70. When there is a vacancy in the post of Prime Minister, or upon the first convocation of the Diet after a general election of members of the House of Representatives, the Cabinet shall resign en masse.

71. In the cases mentioned in the two preceding articles, the Cabinet shall continue its functions until the time when a new Prime Minister is appointed.

72. The Prime Minister, representing the Cabinet, submits bills, reports on general national affairs, and foreign relations to the Diet, and exercises control and supervision over various administrative branches.

73. The Cabinet, in addition to other general administrative functions, shall:

Administer the law faithfully; conduct affairs of State. Manage foreign affairs.

Conclude treaties. However, it shall obtain prior or, depending on circumstances, subsequent approval of the Diet.

Administer the civil service in accordance with standards established by law.

Prepare the budget, and present it to the Diet.

Enact Cabinet orders in order to execute the provisions of this Constitution and of the law. However, it cannot include penal provisions in such Cabinet orders unless authorised by such law.

Decide on general amnesty, special amnesty, commutation of punishment, reprieve, and restoration of rights.

74. All laws and Cabinet orders shall be signed by the competent Minister of State and countersigned by the Prime Minister.

75. The Ministers of State, during their tenure of office, shall not be subject to legal action without the consent of the Prime Minister. However, the right to take that action is not impaired hereby.

76-103. The Judiciary, Finance, Local Government Amendments and Supplementary Provisions.

PARLIAMENT

THE DIET

The Diet consists of two Chambers—the House of Councillors (Upper House)—which replaces the old House of Peers—and the House of Representatives. The 486 members of the House of Representatives are elected for a period of four years. For the House of Councillors, which has 250 members, the term of office is six years, half the members being elected every three years.

POLITICAL PARTIES

The Political Funds Regulation Law is the basis of political organization in Japan. It provides that any organization which wishes to support a candidate for an elective public office must be registered as a political party. There are over 10,000 registered parties in the country, mostly of local or regional significance. National politics are still largely factional in character, but since the introduction of the western pattern of parliamentary democracy in the 1946 Constitution, a restricted number of major parties have formed, grouping the principal pressure groups and personal followings. The conservative Liberal-Democratic Party has the support of big business and the rural population, and holds a majority of seats in the Diet; it is also by far the richest of the political parties. Support for the two socialist parties comes from the intelligentsia, the trades unions, and younger urban voters, and the proportion of votes for these parties combined has increased slowly at each election since 1952. The split between the two parties reflects a longstanding division between supporters of a mass popular party (now represented by the D.S.P.) and those seeking a class party on Marxist lines. The Communist Party of Japan has split since 1964, the original leadership remaining pro-Chinese. In the 1965 elections the militant religious organization Sokagakkai put forward candidates for the Diet through its political wing Komeito. There are also a number of small extreme right-wing political organizations.

Liberal-Democratic Party (Jiyu-Minshoto): 7, 2-chome, Hiraikawacho, Chiyoda-ku, Tokyo; f. 1955 by merger of former Liberal and Democratic Parties; programme includes the establishment of a welfare state, the build-up of industrial development, the levelling up of educational and cultural systems and the revision of the Constitution where necessary; Pres. EISAKU SATO; Sec.-Gen. S. MAEO.

Socialist Party of Japan (Shakaito): 1, 1-chome, Nagata-cho, Chiyoda-ku, Tokyo; f. 1945; 53,156 mems.; aims at the establishment of collective non-aggression and mutual security system, including Japan, U.S.A., U.S.S.R. and China; Chair. KOZO SASAKI; Sec.-Gen. TOMOMI NARITA; publ. Nihon Shakai Shimbun (daily).

Democratic Socialist Party (Minchu-Shakaito): Shiba Sakuragawa-cho, Minato-ku, Tokyo; f. 1961 by Right-Wing Socialists of the Social Democratic Party of Japan; 52,000 mems.; aims at the pursuit of an independent foreign policy; Leader SUEHIRO NISHIO; Sec.-Gen. EIICHI NISHIMURA.

Komeito (Sokagakkai): 32 Shinano-machi, Shinjuku-ku, Tokyo; f. 1964; Buddhist group aiming for world peace; Leader DAISAKU IKEDA; publs. Komei Shimbun, Dai-Byakurenge, Seikyo Graphic.

Communist Party of Japan: 26, 4-chome, Sendagaya, Shibuya-ku, Tokyo; f. 1922; independent; 300,000 mems.; Chair. SANZO NOSAKA; Gen. Sec. KENJI MIYAMOTO; publs. Akahata (daily and weekly), Zen-ei (monthly).

Voice of Japan: Tokyo; f. 1964; breakaway group from Communist Party of Japan; pro-Soviet; Chair. YOSHIO SHIGA.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The basic principles of the legal system are set forth in the Constitution, which lays down that the whole judicial power is vested in a Supreme Court and in such inferior courts as are established by law, and enunciates the principle that no organ or agency of the Executive shall be given final judicial power. Judges are to be independent in the exercise of their conscience, and may not be removed except by public impeachment, unless judicially declared mentally or physically incompetent to perform official duties. The judges of the Supreme Court are appointed by the Cabinet, the sole exception being the Chief Justice, who is appointed by the Emperor after designation by the Cabinet, similar to the appointment of the Prime Minister.

The Court Organisation Law, which came into force on May 3rd, 1947, decreed the constitution of the Supreme Court and the establishment of four types of inferior courts—High, District, Family (established January 1st, 1949), and Summary Courts. The constitution and functions of the courts are as follows:

THE SUPREME COURT

This court is the highest legal authority in the land, and consists of a Chief Justice and fourteen associate judges. It has jurisdiction over the following matters:

- (1) Jokoku (appeals).
- (2) Kokoku (complaints), prescribed specially in codes of procedure.

It conducts its hearings and renders decisions through a Grand Bench or three Petty Benches. Both are collegiate bodies, the former consisting of all judges of the Court, and the latter of five judges. A Supreme Court Rule exists determining which cases are to be handled by the respective Benches. It is, however, laid down by law that the Petty Bench cannot make decisions as to the constitutionality of a statute, ordinance, regulation, or disposition, or as to cases in which an opinion concerning the interpretation and application of the Constitution or of any laws or ordinances is at variance with a previous decision of the Supreme Court.

Chief Justice: MASATOSHI YOKOTA.

Secretary-General: SEIICHI KISHI.

INFERIOR COURTS

High Court

A High Court conducts its hearings and renders decisions through a collegiate body, consisting of three justices, though for cases of high treason the number of justices must be five. The Court has jurisdiction over the following matters:

- (1) Koso appeals from judgments in the first instance rendered by District Courts, from judgments rendered by Family Courts, and from judgments concerning criminal cases rendered by Summary Courts.
- (2) Kokoku complaints against rulings and orders rendered by District Courts and Family Courts, and against rulings and orders concerning criminal cases rendered by Summary Courts, except those coming within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court.
- (3) Jokoku appeals from judgments in the second instance rendered by District Courts and from judgments rendered by Summary Courts, except those concerning criminal cases.

- (4) Actions in the first instance relating to cases of high treason.

District Court

A District Court conducts hearings and renders decisions through a single judge or, for certain types of cases, through a collegiate body of three judges. It has jurisdiction over the following matters:

- (1) Actions in the first instance, except offences relating to high treason, claims where the subject matter of the action does not exceed 100,000 yen, and offences liable to a fine or lesser penalty.
- (2) Koso appeals from judgments rendered by Summary Courts, except those concerning criminal cases.
- (3) Complaints against rulings and orders rendered by Summary Courts, except those coming within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court and High Courts.

Family Court

A Family Court handles cases through a single judge in case of rendering judgments or decisions. However, in accordance with the provisions of other statutes it conducts its hearings and renders decisions through a collegiate body of three judges. A conciliation is effected through a collegiate body consisting of a judge and two or more members of the conciliation committee selected from among civilians.

It has jurisdiction over the following matters:

- (1) Judgment and conciliation with regard to cases relating to family as provided by the law for Adjudgment of Domestic Relations.
- (2) Judgment with regard to the matters of protection of juveniles as provided by the Juvenile Law.
- (3) Actions in the first instance relating to adult criminal cases of violation of the Labour Standard Law, the Law for Prohibiting Liquors to Minors, or other laws especially enacted for protection of juveniles.

Summary Court

A Summary Court handles cases through a single judge, and has jurisdiction in the first instance over the following matters:

- (1) Claims where the value of the subject matter does not exceed 100,000 yen (excluding claims for cancellation or change of administrative dispositions).
- (2) Actions which relate to offences liable to fine or lighter penalty, offences liable to a fine as an optional penalty, and certain specified offences such as habitual gambling and larceny.

A Summary Court cannot impose imprisonment or a severer penalty. When it deems proper the imposition of a sentence of imprisonment or a graver penalty, it must transfer such cases to a District Court, but it can impose imprisonment with hard labour not exceeding three years for certain specified offences.

A Procurator's Office, with its necessary number of procurators, is established for each of these courts. The procurators conduct searches, institute prosecutions and supervise the execution of judgments in criminal cases, and act as representatives of the public interest in civil cases of public concern.

RELIGION

The traditional religions in Japan are Shintoism and Buddhism. Neither is exclusive, and many Japanese subscribe at least nominally to both. Since the war a number of new religions based on an amalgamation of Shinto, Buddhist, Taoist, Confucian and Christian beliefs have grown up.

SHINTOISM

Shintoism is an indigenous cult of nature and ancestor worship. It is divided into two cults: national Shintoism, which is represented by the shrines; and sectarian Shintoism, which developed towards the end of the Tokugawa Shogunate. In 1868, Shinto was designated a national religion, and all Shinto shrines acquired the privileged status of a national institution. After the adoption of the present constitution in 1947, however, complete freedom of religion was introduced, and state support of Shinto was banned. In 1962 there were 80,452 shrines, 199,498 priests and approximately 77,797,000 adherents.

SHRINE SHINTO

The most important of all Japanese shrines is the Isé Grand Shrine at Ujiyamada, Mié Prefecture. A number of subsidiary shrines, a seminary, a library and two museums are attached.

Religious seminaries consist of the Isé Grand Shrine seminary, a middle-grade school attached to it, a department of religious instruction at Kokogakuin College, and about 26 smaller institutions of religious learning.

SECTARIAN SHINTO

The divisions of sectarian Shinto are as follows:*

- Shinto Sect: called by the general name given to the national cult before its later branches had developed; 3,405 priests; 1,101,868 adherents.
- Kurozumi Sect: f. by Munetada Kurozumi (1780-1850); 2,959 priests and teachers; 613,419 adherents.
- Shinto-shusei Sect: f. by Kunitmitsu Nitta (1829-1902); 1,679 priests and teachers; 43,101 adherents.
- Taisha Sect: preached by Sompuku Sengé (1845-1918).
- Fuso Sect: f. by Takekuni Fujiwara (1541-1646); 1,991 priests and teachers; 140,984 adherents.
- Taisei Sect: f. by Shosai Hirayama (1815-1890); 5,671 priests and teachers; 226,508 adherents.
- Jikko Sect: f. by Hanamori Shibata (1809-1890).
- Shinshu Sect: f. by Masamochi Yoshimura (1839-1916); 2,524 priests and teachers; 674,261 adherents.
- Ontaké Sect: 7,724 priests and teachers; 357,334 adherents.
- Misogi Sect: f. by Masakané Inouyé (1790-1849); 592 priests and teachers; 100,032 adherents.
- Shinri Sect: f. by Tsunehiko Sano (1834-1906); 2,240 priests and teachers; 258,157 adherents.
- Konko Sect: f. by Bunjiro Kawaté (1814-1883); 3,229 priests and teachers; 693,314 adherents.
- Tenri Sect: f. by Miki Nakayama (1798-1887); 78,880 priests and teachers; 1,455,713 adherents.

BUDDHISM

In 1962 it was estimated that there were 65,114,000 Buddhists in Japan. The number of temples was 75,678 and the number of priests 141,164. Twelve universities are under Buddhist administration.

* Accurate statistics for numbers of priests and adherents are not available; the figures given represent returns made by the various sects at different dates.

There are over 200 sects of which the eleven principal are as follows:*

- Hosso Sect: introduced by Dosho (628-700); 195 priests and teachers; 43,499 adherents.
- Kegon Sect: introduced by Roben (688-776); chief temple, Todaiji, Nara; 499 priests and teachers; 51,008 adherents.
- Ritsu Sect: introduced by Ganjin (686-763); chief temple, Toshodaiji, Nara; 128 priests and teachers; 70,558 adherents.
- Tendai Sect: f. by Chisha Daishi (537-579); introduced by Saicho (766-822); three sub-sects: Tendai Branch (chief temple, Yenryakugi, Shiga); Jimon Branch (chief temple, Onjoji, Shiga); Shinsei Branch (chief temple, Saikyoji, Shiga); 7,958 priests and teachers; 3,629,870 adherents.
- Shingon Sect: introduced by Kukai (773-835); its eight branches are: Koya, Omuro, Daikakuji, Daigo, Toji, Yamashina, Ono, Senyujii. Three hundred years after its foundation a new school of Shingon was established by Kokyo Daishi (1094-1143); this has two branches: Chizan (chief temple, Chisaku-in, Kyoto) and Buzan (chief temple, Chokokuji, Hasedera); 6,133 priests and teachers; 2,715,609 adherents.
- Yuzu-nembutsu Sect: f. 1117 by Ryonin (Showo Daishi); chief temple, Dainembutsuji, Osaka; 544 priests and teachers; 35,000 adherents.
- Jodo Sect: f. by Genku (1133-1212); chief temple, Chion-in, Kyoto; the Seizan branch, f. by Shoku (1176-1247), has three sub-branches: Zenrinji (chief temple, Zenrinji, Kyoto); Komyoji, and Kukakusa (chief temple, Seigwanji, Kyoto); 122 priests and teachers; 159,210 adherents.
- Shin Sect: f. by Shinran (1173-1262); the ten branches are: Hongwanji, Otani, Bukkoji, Takata, Kibé, Kosho, Idzumoji, Yamamoto, Seishoji, Sammonto; 44,536 priests and teachers; 12,984,635 adherents.
- Ji Sect: f. by Ippen (1239-1289); chief temple, Shojokoji, Kanagawa; 547 priests and teachers; 444,759 adherents.
- Zen Sect: (a) Rinzaï Sect; f. by Yeisai (1140-1215); 14 branches: Kenninji, Kenchoji, Tofukuji, Engakuji, Nanzenji, Daitokuji, Myoshinji, Tenryuji, Yeigenji, Shokokuji, Hokoji, Buttsuji, Kokutaiji, Kogakuji; (b) Soto Sect; f. by Dogen (1199-1253); chief temples, Yeiheiji, Sojiji; (c) Obaku Sect; f. by Yin-gen (1592-1673); chief temple, Mampukuji, Uji, Kyoto; 9,829 priests and teachers; 219,773 adherents.
- Nichiren Sect: f. by Nichiren (1222-1281); the eight branches are: Nichiren-shu (chief temple, Kuonji, Yamanashi); Hommon-shu (chief temple, Hommonji, Ikegami, Tokyo); Hokké-shu (chief temple, Honjoji, Niigata); Kempon-hokké-shu (chief temple, Kochoji, Shizuoka); Homyo-hokké-shu (chief temple, Honryuji, Tokyo); Nichiren-seishu (chief temple, Daisekiji, Shizuoka); Nichiren-fujufusé-ha (chief temple, Myokakuji, Okayama); Nichiren-shu-fujufusé-komon-ha (chief temple, Honkakuji, Okayama); 6,853 priests and teachers; 1,438,990 adherents.
- World Buddhist Fellowship: Rev. RIRI NAKAYAMA, Hozenji Buddhist Temple, 1115, 3-chome, Akabanecho, Kita-ku, Tokyo.

CHRISTIANITY

In 1962 the number of Christians was estimated at 858,000, with 4,060 churches and 19,060 clergy. Twenty-two universities are maintained by Christian communities.

In 1940 the Religious Organisations Law was passed, according to which a religious body must possess at least 50 churches and 5,000 adherents in order to be recognised. Many of the numerous Christian sects united in order to obtain recognition. The Law was repealed at the end of the war and certain groups returned to their original status. The following are the largest groups:

Roman Catholic Church: Archdiocese of Tokyo: Sekiguchi-Daimachi 19, Bunkyo-ku, Tokyo; suffragan sees at Osaka, Kyoto, Sapporo, Sendai Yokohama, Urawa, Niigata, Nagoya and Takamatsu; Archbishop of Tokyo Cardinal PETER TATSUO DOI; Archdiocese of Nagasaki: 1 Otsu Minami-Yamate-cho, Nagasaki; suffragan sees at Kagoshima, Fukuoka, Hiroshima and Oita; Archbishop of Nagasaki Mgr. PAUL A. YAMAGUCHI; 314,451 adherents.

United Church of Christ in Japan: 2, 4-chome, Ginza, Chuo-ku, Tokyo; f. 1941; union of 32 Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregational, Baptist and other evangelical denominations; Moderator Rev. ISAMU OMURA; Gen. Sec. Rev. KEN SAEKI; 194,827 adherents.

Japanese Orthodox Church (Greek Orthodox): Resurrection Cathedral, Nicolai-Do, Surugadai, Kanda, Tokyo; Bishop Rt. Rev. VLADIMIR; 36,000 adherents.

Nippon Sei Ko Kai (Japan Episcopal Church): 23 Tokiwamatsu-machi, Shibuya-ku, Tokyo; in Communion with the Church of England, est. as Province of the Anglican Communion 1887; 44,135 mems. (approx.); Presiding Bishop Most Rev. MICHAEL HINSUKE YASHIRO (Bishop of Kobe); 9 other diocesan bishops.

OTHER RELIGIONS

In 1962 there were 4,889,000 adherents of other religions, with 1,197 shrines and temples and 14,792 priests.

THE "NEW RELIGIONS"

Many new cults have grown up in Japan since the end of World War II. Collectively these are known as the New Religions (Shinko Shukyo). The most important are as follows:

Soka-Gakkai: Shinjuku-ku, Tokyo; claimed membership 3 million; an offshoot of Nichiren Buddhism, of which it claims to be the orthodox spokesman; a militant social and political organization, Soka-Gakkai is represented in the Diet by its political party, Komeito.

Tenrikyo: Tokyo; membership over 1 million; an influential cult combining doctrines of self-improvement with mass communal meetings; many overseas converts.

Reiyukai: Membership 1 million approx.; a healing cult based on belief in the divine inspiration of the leading Priestess by the ancestral goddess of Japan.

THE PRESS

The Japanese Press is free from government control. Article 21 of the Constitution of Japan reads: "Freedom of assembly and association as well as of speech, Press and all other forms of expression are guaranteed. No censorship shall be maintained, nor shall the secrecy of any means of communication be violated." The Law on the Prevention of Subversive Activities, 1952, provides a marginal directive concerning treasonable matter, however. It has also been known for journalists to be imprisoned for refusing to reveal sources. The standards of press integrity, and protection of the liberty of the Press, are upheld by the influential voluntary organization Nihon Shinbun Kyokai (Japan Newspaper Publishers' and Editors' Association).

Government influence is less important than the domination of the major press organs by big business, through the dependence of the Press on commercial advertising. This does not prevent the majority of newspapers from keeping up perpetual criticism of governmental activities, however. Indeed the general tone of the Press is strongly left-wing. There are no chains of newspapers, though each of the major dailies produces weekly and monthly periodicals, and engages in a variety of business enterprises, partly for commercial and partly for prestige reasons; these projects include book publishing, running radio and television stations, public halls, and academic research projects, and promoting sports, literary and industrial programmes. Each political party issues its own daily newspaper, the Communist Akahata and Komeito Komei Shinbun being among the biggest.

The total circulation of Japanese dailies is the highest in the world after the United States, and the circulation per head of population is fifth highest. The three biggest newspapers are the Asahi Shinbun (combined circ. 5 million), Mainichi Shinbun (4.4 million) and Yomiuri Shinbun (5 million). There are also two influential financial papers, Nihon Keizai Shinbun and Sankei Shinbun, both with circulation of over two million. These papers together account for more than half the total circulation of Japanese newspapers. A notable feature of the Japanese Press is the number of weekly news journals, most of which have started in the last ten years.

Technically the Japanese Press is very advanced, and all three of the major newspapers are issued in simultaneous editions in the main centres. This is achieved by high-speed wireless photo-facsimile offset printing. Automatic monotype setting has been adopted since 1959, and teletype-setting was introduced by Kyodo News Agency in 1960, using a Chinese ideographic teleprinter invented in Japan. Colour printing is another advanced feature of the leading presses.

FINANCE

BANKING

(cap. = capital; p.u. = paid up; dep. = deposits; m. = million; amounts in yen)

Japan's central bank and note-issuing body is the Bank of Japan, founded in 1882. More than half the credit business of the country is handled by approximately one hundred commercial banks and three long-term credit institutions, collectively designated "All Banks". The most important of these are the thirteen city banks, many of which have a distinguished history, reaching back to the days of the zaibatsu, the private entrepreneurial organizations on which Japan's capital wealth was built up before the Second World War. Although the zaibatsu were abolished as integral industrial and commercial enterprises during the Allied Occupation, the several businesses and industries which bear the former zaibatsu names, such as Mitsubishi, Mitsui and Sumitomo, continue to flourish and to give each other mutual assistance through their respective banks and trust corporations. Among the commercial banks, one, the Bank of Tokyo, specializes in foreign exchange business, while the Industrial Bank of Japan provides a large proportion of the finance for capital investment by industry. The Japan Long-Term Credit Bank also specializes in industrial finance; the work of these two privately-owned banks is supplemented by the Government Japan Development Bank.

The Government has established a number of other specialized organs to supply essential services not performed by the private banks. Thus the Japan Export-Import Bank advances credits for exports of heavy industrial products and imports of raw materials in bulk. A Housing Loan Corporation assists firms building housing for their employees, while the Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Finance Corporation gives loans to the named industries for equipment purchases. Similar services are provided for small businesses by the Small Business Finance Corporation.

An important part is played in the financial activity of the country by co-operatives, and by the many small enterprise institutions. Thus in 1963 there were 72 mutual loans and savings banks, 534 credit associations, 503 credit co-operatives, 11,024 agricultural co-operatives, 2,354 fisheries co-operatives, and 79 credit federations of co-operatives. Each prefecture has its own federation of co-operatives, with the Central Co-operative Bank of Agriculture and Forestry as the common central financial institution. This Central Co-operative Bank also serves as an agent for the Government's Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Finance Corporation.

The commonest form of savings is through the Government-operated Postal Savings System, which collects petty savings from the public by means of the post office network. The funds thus made available are used as loan funds by the Government financial institutions, through the Government's Trust Fund Bureau.

Clearing houses operate in each major city of Japan, and total 80 institutions. The largest of those of Tokyo and Osaka.

THE HASHEMITE KINGDOM OF JORDAN

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Jordan is an almost landlocked state in the Middle East, Israel separating it from the Mediterranean with Syria to the north, Iraq to the east and Saudi Arabia to the south. The port of Aqaba in the far south gives Jordan a narrow outlet to the Red Sea. Half of Jerusalem lies in Jordan including most of the Holy Places of the Christian faith. The climate is hot and dry. The average temperature is 60°F (15.5°C) but the winters can be cold. The official language is Arabic. About 80 per cent of the population are Sunni Muslims and there are small communities of Christians and Shi'ite Muslims. The flag is a horizontal tricolour of black, white and green with a seven-pointed white star on a red triangle. The capital is Amman.

Recent History

Jordan's frontiers date from the 1948 Armistice between Israel and the Arab States by which Jordan gained the territory west of the River Jordan and the country changed its name from Trans-Jordan to the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan. Jordan is a member of the Arab League and does not recognise the state of Israel. In January 1964, Pope Paul VI visited Jordan on a pilgrimage, and there met Patriarch Athenagoras of the Greek Orthodox Church. In September 1964, Arab leaders approved a scheme to divert tributaries of the Jordan River to a storage dam at Makheiba in Jordan, thus affecting the Israeli project to divert a part of the waters of the Jordan. In April 1965, by special decree, King Hussein proclaimed his brother Prince Hassan Crown Prince, passing over his own son.

Government

Jordan is a constitutional Monarchy. The King is head of the state and appoints the Prime Minister. There is a bi-cameral Legislature. The Senate is appointed by the King. The House of Deputies is elected.

Defence

Jordan operates a Joint Military Command in conjunction with the other Arab states known as the Joint Arab Command. Financial and technical aid is received from the United Kingdom and the United States. The Army consists of the Jordan Arab Army, a modern, well-trained force specially equipped for desert warfare, and the National Guard. The Air Force is an up-to-date body and there are armed launches on the Dead Sea. Selective conscription was introduced in November 1966, and Abu Dhabi and Qatar gave funds for strengthening Jordan's defences in February 1967.

Economic Affairs

West of the River Jordan are agricultural settlements. East of the river is mainly desert. About 80 per cent of the people are farmers and nomadic graziers. Cereal yields are limited by drought but plenty of fruit and vegetables are grown and exported. Plans to exploit the Jordan waters have been hampered by the dispute with Israel but the East Ghor project provides irrigation for some 30,000 acres, and when completed the Mukhaiba dam will add to the country's irrigation potential. There is little industry. Tourism is a valuable source of income.

Transport and Communications

Jordan has one railway but most traffic runs along the excellent roads. Parts of the desert can be traversed safely by vehicles except after heavy rain. The port of Aqaba in the far south is being extended and civil aviation is of increasing importance. Two oil pipelines cross Jordan, the Trans-Arabian Pipeline (TAPLINE) running from Saudi Arabia to the Lebanon and the Iraq to Israel (Haifa) a line which has not been used since 1947. Pack transport is still used by nomads. In 1963 contracts were awarded for the rebuilding of the Hedjaz Railway from Damascus in Syria through Jordan to Medina in Saudi Arabia.

Social Welfare

There is no comprehensive welfare scheme but the Government runs medical and health services. About 250,000 Arab refugees moved to Jordan from Israel following the Arab-Israeli war. These refugees are under the care of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA).

Education

Primary education is free and, where possible, compulsory. It starts at six to eight and lasts for six years. UNRWA provides schooling for the Palestinian refugees. Jordan's first university was inaugurated in December 1962.

Tourism

Jordan is one of the great centres of early civilisation. Jerusalem is a Holy City to Jews, Muslims and Christians. Excursions can be arranged to Petra, Jericho, Hebron, Bethlehem and other ancient and revered places.

Visas are required by nationals of all countries except Iraq.

Sport

There is little organised sport. Car racing, horse racing and hawking are popular. Water skiing takes place at Aqaba.

Public Holidays

1967: May 25 (Independence Day), June 20 (Birth of the Prophet), November 14 (King's Birthday), December 25 (Christmas Day).

1968: January 2 (Id ul Fitr), March 10 (Id ul Adha), March 31 (New Year), April 14 (Easter Day).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

4 dunums = 1 acre (approx.).

Currency and Exchange Rates

The principal unit of currency is the Jordanian dinar (J.D.), which is divided into 1,000 fils.

Coins: 1, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100 fils.

Notes: 500 fils; 1, 5, 10 J.D.

Exchange rate: 1 J.D. = £1 sterling

357 fils = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

(Revised Constitution approved by King Talal I on January 1st 1952).

THE Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan is an independent, indivisible sovereign state. Its official religion is Islam, its official language Arabic.

Rights of the Individual. There is to be no discrimination between Jordanians on account of race, religion or language. Work, education and equal opportunities shall be afforded to all as far as is possible. The freedom of the individual is guaranteed, as are his dwelling and property. No Jordanian shall be exiled. Labour shall be made compulsory only in a national emergency, or as a result of a conviction; conditions, hours worked and allowances are under the protection of the State.

The Press, and all opinions, are free, except under martial law. Societies can be formed, within the law. Schools may be established freely, but they must follow a recognised curriculum and educational policy. Elementary education is free and compulsory. All religions are tolerated. Every Jordanian is eligible to public office, and choices are to be made by merit only. Power belongs to the people.

The Legislative Power is vested in the National Assembly and the King. The National Assembly consists of two houses: the Senate and the House of Representatives.

The Senate. The number of Senators is one-half of the number of members of the House of Representatives. Senators must be unrelated to the King, over 40, and are chosen from present and past Prime Ministers and Ministers, past Ambassadors or Ministers Plenipotentiary, past Presidents of the House of Representatives, past Presidents and members of the Court of Cassation and of the Civil and Sharia Courts of Appeal, retired officers of the rank of General and above, former members of the House of Representatives who have been elected twice to that House, etc. . . . They may not hold public office. Senators are appointed for four years. They may be re-appointed. The President of the Senate is appointed for two years.

The House of Representatives. The members of the House of Representatives are elected by secret ballot in a general direct election and retain their mandate for four years. General elections take place during the four months preceding the end of the term. The President of the House is elected by secret ballot each year by the Representatives. Representatives must be Jordanians of over 30, they must have a clean record, no active business interests, and are debarred from public office. Close relatives of the King are not eligible. If the House of Representatives is dissolved, the new House shall assemble in extraordinary session not more than four months after the date of dissolution. The new House cannot be dissolved for the same reason as the last.

General Provisions for the National Assembly. The King summons the National Assembly to its ordinary session on November 1st each year. This date can be postponed by the King for two months, or he can dissolve the Assembly before the end of its three months' session. Alternatively, he can extend the session up to a total period of six months. Each session is opened by a speech from the throne.

Decisions in the House of Representatives and the Senate are made by a majority vote. The quorum is two-thirds of the total number of members in each House. When the voting concerns the Constitution, or confidence in the Council of Ministers, "the votes shall be taken by calling the members by name in a loud voice". Sessions are public, though secret sessions can be held at the request of the Government or of five members. Complete freedom of speech, within the rules of either House, is allowed.

The Prime Minister places proposals before the House of Representatives; if accepted there, they are referred to the Senate and finally sent to the King for confirmation. If one house rejects a law while the other accepts it, a joint session of the House of Representatives and the Senate is called, and a decision made by a two-thirds majority. If the King withholds his approval from a law, he returns it to the Assembly within six months with the reasons for his dissent; a joint session of the Houses then makes a decision, and if the law is accepted by this decision it is promulgated. The Budget is submitted to the National Assembly one month before the beginning of the financial year.

The King. The throne of the Hashemite Kingdom devolves by male descent in the dynasty of King Abdullah Ibn Al Hussein. The King attains his majority on his eighteenth lunar year; if the throne is inherited by a minor, the powers of the King are exercised by a Regent or a Council of Regency. If the King, through illness or absence, cannot perform his duties, his powers are given to a Deputy, or to a Council of the Throne. This Deputy, or Council, may be appointed by Iradas (decrees) by the King, or, if he is incapable, by the Council of Ministers.

On his accession, the King takes the oath to respect and observe the provisions of the Constitution and to be loyal to the nation. As head of the State he is immune from all liability or responsibility. He approves laws and promulgates them. He declares war, concludes peace and signs treaties; treaties, however, must be approved by the National Assembly. The King is Commander-in-Chief of the Navy, the Army and the Air Force. He orders the holding of elections; convenes, inaugurates, adjourns and prorogues the House of Representatives. The Prime Minister is appointed by him, as are the President and members of the Senate. Military and civil ranks are also granted, or withdrawn, by the King. No death sentence is carried out until he has confirmed it.

The King exercises his jurisdiction by Iradas. These are signed by the Prime Minister and the Minister concerned, and the King places his signature above the others.

Ministers. The Council of Ministers consists of the Prime Minister, President of the Council, and of his Ministers. Ministers are forbidden to become members of any company, to receive a salary from any company, or to participate in any financial act of trade. The Council of Ministers is entrusted with the conduct of all affairs of State, internal and external. Oral or written orders of the King do not release Ministers from their responsibility.

The Council of Ministers is responsible to the House of Representatives for matters of general policy. Ministers may speak in either House, and, if they are members of one House, they may also vote in that House. Votes of confidence in the Council are cast in the House of Representatives, and decided by a two-thirds majority. If a vote of "no confidence" is returned, the Ministers are bound to resign. Every newly-formed Council of Ministers must present its programme to the House of Representatives and ask for a vote of confidence. The House of Representatives can impeach Ministers, as it impeaches its own members.

Titles. By an order of the Regency Council (August 1952) all titles, e.g. those of Pasha and Bey, have been abolished. All subjects are now addressed as Assayed.

REFUGEES — UNRWA

(United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East—UNRWA)

More than a third of Jordan's population are refugees from the former Arab state of Palestine. The number of registered refugees continues to grow as the result of births to refugee families. In June 1966 the total number throughout the Middle East was 1,317,749 of which 861,122 were entitled to UNRWA rations, and 517,518 were living in refugee camps set up by UNRWA. In Jordan 224,138 refugees were living in UNRWA camps.

UNRWA was established by the General Assembly of the United Nations in December 1949. Its mandate expires in June 1969. In co-operation with the governments of Jordan, Lebanon, the Syrian Arab Republic and the United Arab Republic it carries out a two-fold task:

1. To provide food, health and welfare services, and shelter for the refugees.
2. To provide education and training for refugee children and young adults.

UNRWA is assisted by a number of voluntary bodies, notably the Lutheran World Federation, which is building a vocational training centre in Jordan.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Civil Courts. The Courts at present established in Jordan are as follows:

- (1) A High Court of Justice at Amman which has jurisdiction to hear appeals from the two courts of appeal at Amman and Jerusalem. It also acts as a Supreme Judicial Court in the interpretation of the law and hears cases submitted against the Government.
- (2) A Court of Appeal at Amman and another at Jerusalem, having jurisdiction to hear appeals from all lower Courts in Jordan.
- (3) Courts of the First Instance, having jurisdiction in criminal matters where punishment of more than three years imprisonment or a fine can be awarded, and in civil matters where the value of the subject matter of the action exceeds J.D. 50.
- (4) Magistrates' Courts, having jurisdiction in criminal cases where the maximum punishment which can be awarded is imprisonment of three years or a fine, and in civil cases where the value of the subject matter of the action is not more than J.D. 50, although if the parties agree in writing the Courts have jurisdiction up to any amount.

Sharia Courts. Sharia Courts have jurisdiction to deal with personal status cases of Muslims. This jurisdiction was, and still is, in Jordan exercised in accordance with the provisions of the Ottoman Law of Procedure of the Muslim Religious Courts of October 25th, 1913. By personal status is meant matters concerning the personal and domestic relations of parties, such as marriage, divorce, alimony, maintenance, guardianship, legitimisation, and adoption of minors, interdiction, succession, wills and legacies. These Courts also have jurisdiction in cases of "diya" (blood money), and of Waqf cases (religious and charitable endowments).

Religious Community Council Courts. In addition to the Sharia Courts there were certain Courts known as the Courts of the Religious Community Councils, which exercised in respect of the various Non-Muslim religious communities dwelling within the Ottoman Empire much the same jurisdiction as that exercised by the Sharia Courts. Each separate community had its own council, which had power to set up a court with jurisdiction to hear personal status cases arising between members of the particular religious community concerned. The jurisdiction of these Courts is now set out in the Non-Muslim Religious Community Councils Law passed in 1938.

Tribal Courts. The importance of these courts is diminishing, and it is now the practice of tribal groups to take their cases to the other types of court. The jurisdiction of tribal courts does not extend to all cases and those which they cannot hear include matters of ownership and possession of immovable property. A proposal to abolish tribal courts is now under consideration.

Special Courts. The only Special Court in Jordan is the Land Settlement Court, which is a travelling court and is set up in districts which are declared to be land settlement areas under the terms of the Land Settlement Law, 1933.

Courts of Appeal: Presidents ALI MISMAR (Amman), (Vacant) (Jerusalem).

RELIGION

Over 80 per cent of the population are Sunni Muslims, and the king can trace unbroken descent from the Prophet Muhammad. There are also about 180,000 Christians, living mainly in the towns, and smaller numbers of non-Sunni Muslims.

Prominent religious leaders in Jordan are:—

Muslims:

SHEIKH ABDULLAH GHOSHEH (Chief Justice and President of the Supreme Moslem Secular Council).

SHEIKH MOHAMMED FAL SHANKITI (Director of Sharia Courts).

SHEIKH ABDULLAH QALQILI (Mufti of the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan).

Christian:

His Beatitude ALBERTO GORI (Latin Patriarch of Jerusalem; Latin Patriarchate of Jerusalem, Old City, Jerusalem).

H.E. Archbishop MIKHAYL ASSAF (Melchite Archbishop of Amman).

His Beatitude MAXIMOS IV (Greek Catholic Patriarch of Jerusalem; Greek Patriarchate of Jerusalem, Old City, Jerusalem).

The Most Rev. CAMPBELL MACINNES (Anglican Archbishop in Jerusalem, St. George's Close, Jerusalem.)

The Right Rev. NAJIB ATALLAH CUBA'IN (Bishop of Jordan, Lebanon and Syria); P.O. Box 122, Jerusalem. The Episcopal Church in Jordan, Lebanon and Syria has 6,000 members, the majority of whom are Palestine Arab refugees.

Father BOULUS SALIBA JILF (Vicar of the Syrian Orthodox Community).

His Beatitude THEODOSIUS (Holy Greek Orthodox Patriarch of Antioch).

His Beatitude BENEDICTOS (Holy Greek Orthodox Patriarch of Jerusalem).

His Beatitude Archbishop YEGHISHE DERDERIAN (Armenian Patriarch of Jerusalem, Armenian Patriarchate, Old City, Jerusalem, Jordan).

THE PRESS

On March 21st, 1967, a new Press Law came into force which annulled the licenses of all daily and weekly newspapers and required those publishers wishing to renew their licenses to satisfy certain specified conditions, i.e. to employ no less than four editors and to have a minimum capital of JD15,000. The ostensible purpose of the measure was to improve the quality of the Press but it met with considerable criticism.

Two new publishing companies are being formed, in which the State will have a 25 per cent holding, to publish three new daily papers and one weekly which will replace the dozen newspapers forced by the new law to cease publication.

KENYA*

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Kenya lies astride the equator on the east coast of Africa, with Somalia to the north-east, Ethiopia to the north, Uganda to the west and Tanzania to the south. The climate varies with altitude: the coastal zone is hot and humid, temperatures averaging 69°–90°F (20.5°–32°C), while inland, above 5,000 ft., it averages 45°–80°F (7°–27°C). The highlands and western areas receive ample rainfall but most of the northern part is very dry. The official languages are English and Swahili; Kikuyu and Luo are also widely spoken. The majority of the African population follows traditional beliefs. Christians make up about 25 per cent of the population, Muslims 6 per cent, many of them Ismaili followers of the Aga Khan. The flag consists of horizontal bars of black red, and green, separated by white stripes, on which is a shield with black and white markings and crossed spears behind. The capital is Nairobi.

Recent History

During the 1950s constructive advances were made towards constitutional independence. In 1956 the franchise was extended and in 1960 a new constitution gave Africans a majority in the Legislative Assembly. Following internal self-government in May 1963, Kenya became independent within the Commonwealth in December 1963, and in 1964 Kenya became a Republic. Kenya is a member of the United Nations and the Organization for African Unity, and Nairobi is the headquarters of the East African Common Services Organization.

Government

Executive power is in the hands of a President, Vice-President and Cabinet. The Legislature comprises a single National Assembly, the former Senate and House of Representatives having been merged in 1967. There are seven Provinces with their own Advisory Councils.

Defence

The armed forces consist of three battalions of the Kenya Rifles, and specialized troops. A small navy was inaugurated in 1964, and Britain is assisting Kenya with training of pilots for the embryonic air force. There is also a police force of about 11,500 men, with a light air wing. Since independence Kenya has had some military assistance from Britain and has signed a mutual defence pact with Ethiopia.

Economic Affairs

Kenya's prosperity rests largely on the production and processing of agricultural and pastoral products. The principal cash crops are coffee, tea, sisal, pyrethrum, cereals, pineapple and wattle. African farmers, through their co-operatives, produce a very high proportion of the total. Pastoral farming varies from the traditional herding of the Masai tribes to the pedigree stock-raising of dairy and beef cattle on the Highland farms. Kenya is one of the few African countries with an important dairy industry. Manufactures and food processing account for nearly 10 per cent of gross domestic production, and industry continues to expand. An oil refinery was opened in 1964 and oil prospecting started in 1966. Valuable deposits of wollastonite were discovered in 1965, raising hopes of developing a ceramic industry.

Transport and Communications

Kenya's railways, inland waterways and harbours are administered by the inter-territorial East African Common Services Organization and the transport network extends into Tanzania and Uganda. There are international airports at Nairobi and Mombasa. Air services are also run in common with her neighbours. Main roads link the big towns and there is a country-wide bus service. Mombasa is a fully-equipped international seaport.

Social Welfare

There are no State pension or welfare schemes but there is Workmen's Compensation legislation on the United Kingdom pattern and a National Social Security Fund is to be established. The Government runs hospitals and medical services; no fees are charged to out-patients. Free attention is given in case of need. Missions, private charities and commercial firms provide further facilities. A National Council of Social Service co-ordinates the work of voluntary agencies.

Education

Education is not compulsory and less than half of the population is literate. The Government provides or assists in the provision of schools. Education is multi-racial at all levels. The University College in Nairobi is a constituent college of the new University of East Africa, founded in 1963, and students may attend the other colleges in Tanzania and Uganda. About 5,000 students a year study overseas.

Tourism

Kenya's attractions as a tourist centre are mainly the wild life and the good all-year-round climate. There are eight National Parks and one National Reserve open to the public, several of which provide overnight accommodation. Hunting and photographic safaris are arranged and big game hunting licences are available.

Visas are not required to visit Kenya by nationals of Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Italy, Norway, Spain, San Marino, Turkey, United Kingdom and Commonwealth, and Uruguay.

Sport

Organised sports include football, tennis, cricket and athletics. Watersports are popular in the coastal areas. Kenya has competed most successfully in Commonwealth and international sporting events.

THE CONSTITUTION

The Independence Constitution for Kenya came into force in June, 1963, with the introduction of full internal self-government.

Amendments were made in November, 1964, by which Kenya became a Republic within the Commonwealth. Under the terms of the Constitution, individual rights and liberties are protected, including freedom of expression and assembly, privacy of the home, the right not to be detained without cause, and the right of compensation for compulsory purchase of property.

By a voluntary evolution the Republic of Kenya is now a One-Party State governed by a united Central Government. For administrative purposes, the country is divided into seven Provinces, each of which has a Provincial Council playing a purely advisory role, especially in respect of rural development. The Provincial Councils and County Councils are maintained by grants from the Central Government, but raising of all other taxes and of foreign investment capital is the sole responsibility of Central Government.

The central legislative authority is the National Assembly consisting of a single elected assembly. There are 158

Representatives elected for four years, and 12 Specially Elected Members elected by the Representatives sitting on an electoral college. Elections to the Assembly are by universal adult suffrage.

Executive power is in the hands of the President, Vice-President and Cabinet. The Cabinet shall be formed by the President, who shall be elected from among the members of the National Assembly. The Vice-President may not hold any Ministerial post, and when deputising for the President, has limited powers. The Presidency becomes vacant on the dissolution of Parliament.

In October, 1963, certain amendments to the Constitution were introduced. The Police and Public Services are to be centrally controlled. Changes in the Constitution about Human Rights, structure of Regions, Land, the Senate, and amendment procedure can only be made by a 75 per cent majority vote of the National Assembly. Changes concerning other clauses, including those affecting Regional powers, may be made by a 75 per cent vote of the Assembly or failing this by a two-thirds majority in a national referendum.

Kadhi's Courts: have jurisdiction within Districts, to determine questions of Muslim law.

RELIGION

African religions, beliefs and forms of worship show great variety both between races and tribes and from one district to another. The Arab community is Moslem, the Indians are partly Moslem and partly Hindu, and the Europeans and Goans are almost entirely Christian.

Moslems are found mainly along the coastline but the Moslem faith has also established itself among Africans around Nairobi and other towns up-country and among some tribes of the Northern Frontier Province.

Christian missions are active and about 25 per cent of Africans are Christian and East Africa is also an important centre for the Baha'i faith.

AFRICAN RELIGIONS

The majority of native Africans adhere to beliefs of an animistic nature.

DEMOCRATIC PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF KOREA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Korean peninsula juts south from North China, between the Yellow Sea and the Sea of Japan, the Democratic People's Republic occupying the northern part of the peninsula, north of the 38th parallel. (The southern part is occupied by the Republic of Korea.) The climate is continental with cold, dry winters (average temperature 21°F (-6°C) and hot, humid summers (average temperature 77°F (25°C)). The language is Korean. Buddhism is the most widespread religious belief. Confucianism, Taoism, Shamanism and Chundo Kyo are also practised. The flag is red with blue stripes on the upper and lower edges, separated from the red by a narrow white stripe. The capital is Pyongyang.

Recent History

Korea was occupied by Japan from 1910 to 1945 when the northern part of the peninsula was taken by the U.S.S.R. and the southern part by the U.S.A. No agreement could be reached on a unified Government and in 1946 the North Korean Provisional People's Committee was set up. The Soviet army withdrew in 1948 and in 1950 the Korean War broke out. The Northern Korean forces were supported by the Chinese People's Republic and Southern Korea by a United Nations Force composed of units from sixteen countries. In 1953 a Military Agreement established the 38°N parallel of latitude as the frontier.

Government

The present Constitution was adopted in 1948. Under it the central organ of government is the Supreme People's Assembly, an elected body which elects a Presidium responsible for issuing decrees and subordinate to the Assembly. Executive power is vested in a Cabinet appointed by the Assembly and responsible to it and to the Presidium.

Defence

Defence treaties have been signed with the U.S.S.R. and the Chinese People's Republic. Military service is compulsory at eighteen years.

Economic Affairs

With the establishment of the Democratic Republic all industry was nationalised and land distributed among the peasants. The Korean War destroyed most of the country's resources and in 1957 the first of two Plans was launched to restore production and lay the foundations of future industrial development. Agriculture has been collectivised and production has increased. About half the working population are still employed on the land. A Seven-Year Plan (1961-67) aims at developing the National Economy.

Industrial development has concentrated on heavy industry: electricity, metallurgy, machine-building and chemicals. The country is rich in coal and iron and many non-ferrous metals. Coal production was greatly expanded in 1965.

Transport and Communications

The road and rail network was almost completely destroyed during the Korean War. Part of the new railways are electrified and there is a direct rail link with Moscow and Peking. Roads have been rebuilt to take the increasing traffic. There are regular passenger and freight services along the Aproz, Daidong and Ryesung rivers. There is little movement by air. International air services connect Pyongyang to Peking and Moscow. A wire broadcasting network covers most villages.

Social Welfare

The state provides rest homes, sanatoria and free medical services.

Education

Free and compulsory primary education was introduced in 1956. During 1964-1965, the number of students totalled 2,468,000. There is one university with more than 16,000 students, and 98 other higher educational institutions.

Tourism

Tourism has yet to be developed although the country has great potentialities. Mount Keumgang and Songdowon are beauty spots.

Sport

The state encourages athletics, football, marching drill, wrestling and table tennis.

Public Holidays

1967: May (May Day), August 15 (Anniversary of Liberation), September 9 (Independence Day).

1968: January 1 (New Year).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The principal unit of currency is the Won, which is divided into 100 jun.

Exchange rate: 7.2 Won = £1 sterling
2.57 Won = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

The Constitution of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea was adopted in 1948.

Preamble: The Democratic People's Republic of Korea is a people's democracy. Power belongs to the people. The people exercise power through power organs, by means of universal, equal and direct secret suffrage.

Supreme People's Assembly: the highest organ of state power in the D.P.R.K. is the Supreme People's Assembly which exercises exclusive legislative power. Deputies are elected by universal suffrage for four years at the ratio of one deputy for every 50,000 persons. The powers of the Assembly are:

- To approve and amend the Constitution.
- To establish domestic and foreign policies.
- To approve the national economic plan and the state budget.
- To establish and revise administrative districts.
- To exercise the right of amnesty.
- To approve decrees adopted by the Presidium of the Supreme People's Assembly.
- To elect the Presidium of the Supreme People's Assembly.
- To form the Cabinet.
- To elect the Supreme Court.
- To appoint the Procurator-General.

Ordinary sessions are convened twice a year. Extraordinary sessions are convened by the Presidium or on the demand of over one-third of the deputies.

The Presidium of the Supreme People's Assembly is the highest organ of state power when the Supreme People's Assembly is not in session and is responsible to the Supreme People's Assembly. It exercises the following important functions:

Convenes the Assembly and promulgates laws.

Supervises the execution of the Constitution.

Supervises the activities of the Cabinet.

Appoints Ministers on the recommendation of the Premier when the Assembly is not in session.

Exercises the right of pardon.

Awards orders and medals.

Ratifies or annuls treaties.

The Cabinet: the central executive organs are the Cabinet and Ministries under its control. The Cabinet is composed of a Premier, Vice-Premiers, Ministers, Chairmen of the Commissions and other necessary members.

The Cabinet exercises the following powers:

Conducts foreign policies and concludes treaties.

Controls foreign trade.

Directs local power organs.

Sets up and supervises the monetary and credit system.

Draws up the state budget.

Directs industrial and commercial establishments, agricultural administration and state transport.

Maintains public order.

Takes measures to protect state interests and ensure rights of citizens.

Establishes basic principles on the utilization of land, resources, forests, rivers and seas.

Directs Education, Culture, Science, Arts and Public Health.

Directs the Korean People's Army.

Ministries (Commissions): to direct state administration within the jurisdiction of the Cabinet.

A Minister may, within the limits of his authority, issue ministerial ordinances or regulations whose execution is obligatory, and direct and inspect their execution.

REPUBLIC OF KOREA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Republic of Korea forms the southern part of the Korean peninsula between North China and Japan. To the north of the 38th parallel is the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. The climate is marked by cold, dry winters with an average temperature of 21°F (-6°C) and hot, humid summers with an average temperature of 77°F (25°C). The language is Korean. Mahayana Buddhism, formerly the principal religion, is now in decline and Christianity has the most adherents. Christians number about 1,400,000 of which about 70 per cent are Protestant. Other religions include Confucianism, Taoism and Chundo Kyo, a religion peculiar to Korea combining elements of Shaman, Buddhist and Christian doctrines. The flag consists of a disc divided horizontally by an S-shaped line, red above and blue below, on a white field with parallel black bars in each corner. The capital is Seoul.

Recent History

The whole of Korea was held by Japan from 1910 to 1945 when the southern part was occupied by U.S. forces and the northern part by the U.S.S.R. No agreement could be reached to form a unified country and in 1948 a Republican Government was set up in South Korea. In 1950 a major war broke out between North and South Korea. South Korea was supported by a United Nations force drawn from 16 nations and led by the U.S.A. North Korea was supported by Chinese forces. In 1953 a Military Armistice Agreement was signed recording the 38th parallel as the frontier with a Demarcation Zone on either side. Since 1960 internal affairs in the Republic have been unsettled but following a period of military rule, General Elections were held in November 1963, and civilian rule was again established. A Normalisation Treaty with Japan was signed in Tokyo on June 22, 1965. This was followed by rioting in both countries and the Korean Civil Rule and Democratic Parties united to form the Minjung Party to strengthen opposition to the Government. The Treaty's main agreements cover fishery restrictions, property claims, economic co-operation and the legal status of Korean nationals in Japan. The Tokto island possession dispute continues, as this was not covered by the Treaty.

Government

Under the Constitution of 1963, the President is elected by popular vote for a four-year term. The unicameral National Assembly, the highest legislative body, consists of between 150 and 200 seats representing both regional and national constituencies. The Prime Minister and Cabinet are appointed by the President. Political parties, suspended in 1961, are allowed if they satisfy certain conditions but no independent candidates for the National Assembly are permitted.

Defence

Protection of the Korean frontier is a United Nations' responsibility and a United Nations' force, consisting chiefly of American units, is maintained. Military service in the Korean Republic lasts for two years in the Army, three years in the Navy and Air Force. In 1965 the strength of the Korean Armed Forces amounted to about 604,000 men. 38,500 million won was spent in 1966 on imports of new weapons for the Armed Forces.

Economic Affairs

The Republic's economy was completely disrupted by the Korean War and much rehabilitation has been achieved by the United Nations Korean Rehabilitation Agency (UNKRA) and the United States. Agriculture is the mainstay of the economy, about 70 per cent of the working population being engaged in farming. The chief crop is rice. Wheat, barley and potatoes are also cultivated. Fishing is both an export and a source of food. There are substantial coal deposits and other minerals include iron ore, gold and silver. New industries have been started, notably cotton textiles and food processing. During the first Five-Year Economic Plan (1962-66), the national economy surpassed the original targets, and the foundation of economic self-sufficiency was laid. In January, 1967, the second Five-Year Plan was launched, with an ultimate goal of modernization of the industrial structure and the achievement of economic self-sufficiency. The national economy is expected to expand by 50 per cent and the per capita national income to increase by 31 per cent.

Transport and Communications

Roads and railways have been rebuilt since the war. There are 3,500 miles of railway track. 20,000 miles of modern roads reach to all parts of the country and a high proportion of freight and passenger transport is by road. Coastal shipping is important, the chief ports being Pusan, Inchon and Masan. There are internal and international air services.

Social Welfare

The United Nations Korean Rehabilitation Agency (UNKRA) has provided relief and resettlement since the war and is assisted by numerous official and voluntary bodies, including 80 foreign agencies. There is Government provision for the aged, the handicapped, wounded veterans and war-widows.

Education

Primary education between the ages of six and twelve is free and compulsory and it is planned to extend compulsory education to the age of fifteen. There are eighteen universities and thirty colleges.

Tourism

Korea has much to offer in mountain scenery, and the temples and museums and the Royal Palaces at Seoul contain many examples of the traditional Korean arts. There is excellent hunting and fishing.

Visas are required to visit the Republic of Korea by all nationalities except France.

Sport

The most popular sports are baseball, basketball, and volleyball. Table-tennis, football, tennis and badminton are also played.

THE CONSTITUTION

In May, 1961, the Government was taken over by a Supreme Council for National Reconstruction. Political parties, Parliament and the Constitution were dissolved.

A new Constitution, approved by national referendum in December 1962, came into operation after elections in 1963. The main provisions are:

Political Parties: A plural-party system is guaranteed with a view to preventing a one-party dictatorship. Parties must however organise chapters with at least 50 members in at least 40 cities. Only nominees of a political party may be candidates for the National Assembly, independents being forbidden.

The National Assembly: The National Assembly is to be unicameral with a membership of between 150 and 200. The Prime Minister and other Cabinet members are appointed by the President without the necessity of approval from the National Assembly. It has the power to recommend to the President the removal of the Prime Minister or any other Cabinet Minister. The National Assembly may pass a motion for impeachment of the President, which would be tried by an Impeachment Council composed of four Judges of the Supreme Court and five members of the National Assembly.

The President: The President is elected by popular vote, unless a vacancy occurs when there are two years or less of the term of office to run, in which case he is elected by the National Assembly. The office of President may not be combined with that of Prime Minister, member of the Cabinet or other public or private positions as determined by law.

The Judiciary: The Supreme Court has power to decide with finality the constitutionality of laws. It also has final appellate jurisdiction over the military tribunals.

Fundamental Rights: Freedom of speech, press, assembly and association are guaranteed but the standards of newspapers or news agencies may be prescribed by law. Time and place of outdoor assembly may also be determined in accordance with the law.

KUWAIT

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The State of Kuwait lies at the north-west extreme of the Persian Gulf and is bordered to the north-west by Iraq and to the south by Saudi Arabia. In the extreme south-east lies a Neutral Zone administered jointly by Kuwait and Saudi Arabia. Kuwait is a desert country with a hot and humid climate: temperatures average 75°F (24°C) and can soar very high indeed with humidity of 60–80 per cent. The language is Arabic. The inhabitants are almost entirely Muslim with a small minority of Christians. The flag consists of horizontal green, white and red stripes with a black trapezoid next to the staff. The capital is Kuwait Town.

Recent History

Until 1961, Kuwait accepted British protection and foreign policy was controlled by the British Government. Kuwait became independent in June 1961 and joined the United Nations in 1963. During 1965 agreement was reached with Saudi Arabia over sharing of oil revenues from the Neutral Zone. In October 1963 Iraq recognized the State of Kuwait. Kuwait has played an important part in stimulating Arab co-operation. In November 1965 Sheikh Abdullah as-Salim as-Sabah, the first ruler of independent Kuwait, died and was succeeded by his brother Sheikh Sabah as-Salim as-Sabah.

Government

The Ruler of Kuwait and Head of State is the Amir. Under the Constitution of 1962 executive power is exercised by a Prime Minister and a Council of Ministers, both appointed by the Amir. The Legislative organ is the National Assembly of fifty members elected for four years by adult males except for servicemen and policemen. The country is divided into three provincial governorates.

Defence

Following the threat from Iraq in 1961 an Arab League force of 3,300 men was established in Kuwait with contingents from Saudi Arabia, Jordan, the Sudan, the United Arab Republic and Tunisia. In February 1963 those contingents were withdrawn. Kuwait itself has a small but well trained and equipped army.

Economic Affairs

The economy is entirely dependent on oil, most of which is exploited by the Kuwait Oil Company, owned jointly by the British Petroleum Company and the Gulf Oil Corporation of America. Other companies with interests in Kuwait and the Neutral Zone are the American Independent Oil Company, the Getty Oil Company, the Japanese-owned Arabian Oil Company, Royal Dutch-Shell and the Kuwait National Petroleum Co. (K.N.P.C.). The volume of oil refined in Kuwait is being steadily increased and a new factory to process natural gas is under construction. Minor industries make bricks, concrete and beverages. There is a little agriculture at subsistence level, and the government has made much progress with the help of an experimental station in improving farming techniques. Agreement was reached with Iraq in 1964 over the tapping of Euphrates water to supply Kuwait; studies for the construction of the pipeline commenced in 1965. A Fund for Arab Development set up by Kuwait has given generous grants to member-states of the Arab League.

Transport and Communications

There are no railways. The 1,200 miles of roads include the dual carriageway from Kuwait Town to the border with Iraq. The port of Kuwait is an important Middle Eastern port of call and has been recently modernized. Special oil terminals facilitate oil shipments, the chief one being Mina Al-Ahmadi. Kuwait Airways and a number of foreign airlines provide international air services.

Social Welfare

A Labour Law safeguards employment and there are benefits for sickness, and industrial accidents and diseases. Public assistance is provided for the poor, aged, orphans, widows and tubercular persons. Medical treatment is free.

Education

Education is free. Education is graded into pre-primary (four to six), primary (six to ten), intermediate (ten to fourteen) and secondary (fourteen to eighteen). There is a technical college, and a university opened in 1966. In 1965–66, 1,600 Kuwaiti students were receiving education abroad.

Tourism

Visas are not required to visit Kuwait by nationals of Algeria, Bahrain, Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon, Monaco, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Syria, the Trucial States, Sudan, United Arab Republic, United Kingdom, Tunisia.

Public Holidays

1967: June 20 (Birth of Prophet Mohammad), October 31 (Al-Isra' eve).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 3–5 (Eid al-Fitr), February 25 (National Day), March 12–15 (Eid al-Adhah (Waqfa)), April 3 (Islamic New Year).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The unit of currency is the Kuwait Dinar (KD) of 1,000 fils.

Coins: 1, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100 fils.

Notes: ½, 1, 5, 10 Dinars.

Exchange rate: 1 KD = £1 sterling
357 fils = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

(Promulgated November 16th, 1962)

SOVEREIGNTY

Kuwait is an independent sovereign Arab State; her sovereignty may not be surrendered, and no part of her territory may be relinquished. Offensive war is prohibited by the Constitution.

Succession as Amir is restricted to heirs of the late MUBARAK al-SABAH, and an Heir Apparent must be appointed within one year of the accession of a new sovereign.

EXECUTIVE AUTHORITY

Executive power is vested in the Amir, who exercises it through a Council of Ministers. The Amir will appoint the Prime Minister "after the traditional consultations", and will appoint and dismiss Ministers on the recommendation of the Prime Minister. Ministers need not be members of the National Assembly, though all ministers who are not Assembly members assume membership ex-officio in the Assembly for the duration of office. The Amir also lays down laws, which shall not be effective unless published in the Official Gazette. The Amir sets up public institutions. All decrees issued in these respects shall be conveyed to the Assembly. No law is issued unless it is approved by the Assembly.

LEGISLATURE

A National Assembly of 50 members will be elected for a four-year term by all natural-born literate Kuwait males over the age of 21, except servicemen and police, who may not vote. Candidates for election must possess the franchise and be over 30 years of age. The Assembly will sit for at least eight months in any year, and new elections shall be held within two months of the last dissolution of the outgoing Assembly.

Restrictions on the commercial activities of Ministers include an injunction forbidding them to sell property to the Government.

The Amir may ask for reconsideration of a Bill passed by the Assembly and sent to him for ratification, but the Bill would automatically become law if it were subsequently passed by a two-thirds majority at the next sitting, or by a simple majority at a subsequent sitting. The Amir may declare Martial Law, but only with the approval of the Assembly.

The Assembly may pass a vote of no confidence in a Minister, in which case the Minister must resign. Such a vote is not permissible in the case of the Prime Minister, but the Assembly may approach the Amir on the matter, and the Amir shall then either dismiss the Prime Minister or dissolve the Assembly.

An annual budget shall be presented, and there shall be an independent finance control commission.

CIVIL SERVICE

Entry to the Civil Service is confined to Kuwait citizens.

PUBLIC LIBERTIES

Kuwaitis are equal before the law in prestige, rights and duties. Individual freedom is guaranteed. No one should be seized, arrested or exiled except within the rules of law.

No punishment shall be administered except for an act or abstaining from an act considered a crime in accordance with a law applicable at the time of committing it, and no penalty shall be imposed more severe than that which could have been imposed at the time of committing the crime.

Freedom of opinion is guaranteed to everyone, and each has the right to express himself through speech, writing or other means within the limits of the law.

The Press is free within the limits of the law, and it should not be suppressed except in accordance with the dictates of law.

Freedom of performing religious rites is protected by the State according to prevailing customs, provided it does not violate the public order nor be immoral.

Trade unions will be permitted and property must be respected. An owner is not banned from managing his property except within the boundaries of law. No property should be taken from anyone, except within the prerogatives of law, unless a just compensation be given.

Houses may not be entered, except in cases provided by law. Every Kuwaiti has freedom of movement and choice of place of residence within the state. This right shall not be controlled except in cases stipulated by law.

Every person has the right to education and freedom to choose his type of work. Freedom to form peaceful societies is guaranteed within the limits of law.

THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

In elections held for the second time under the new Constitution on January 25th, 1967, about 225 candidates were nominated for the 50 seats (5 seats in each of 10 districts). There are no political parties, the candidates standing as individuals. The vote is limited to natural-born Kuwaiti males over 21 who are able to read and write (about 40,000 voters).

Speaker: AHMED ZIAD AS-SERHAN.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

There is a codified system of law based largely upon the Egyptian system. In criminal matters, minor contraventions are dealt with by Magistrates Courts, felonies by Criminal Assize Courts. Appeal in the case of misdemeanours is to a Misdemeanours Court of Appeal.

Civil cases are heard by a General Court within which are separate chambers dealing with commercial cases, other civil cases and matters of personal status. Appeal is to a High Court of Appeal. Matters of personal status may go beyond the High Court of Appeal to a Court of Cassation.

In criminal cases, investigation of misdemeanours is the responsibility of the police, while responsibility for the investigation of felonies lies with the Attorney-General's Office.

LAOS

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Laos is a small landlocked country in South-East Asia bordered by China to the north, Viet-Nam to the east, Cambodia to the south, Thailand to the west and Burma to the north-west. The climate is tropical, with a rainy monsoon season lasting from May to October. The official language, Laotian, is spoken by about two-thirds of the population. French is used widely and there are a number of tribal languages. The state religion, adhered to by most Laotians, is Buddhism. There are also some Christians and followers of animist beliefs. The flag is red and white charged with a three-headed elephant over a nine-pointed parasol. The Royal capital is Luang Prabang and the administrative capital Vientiane.

Recent History

Formerly a part of French Indo-China, Laos attained independence in 1949. In 1953 the country was invaded by Communist Viet-Minh troops aided within Laos by members of the Pathet Lao party. Despite the Geneva cease-fire agreement of 1954 and the Vientiane Agreement of 1957, guerilla warfare has continued and in 1960 a rival government was established at Khang Khay headed by Prince Souvanna Phouma and supported by the Pathet Lao. In 1961 a fourteen-nation conference gathered at Geneva to work out a Laotian settlement. The three princely leaders, of the Communist, Neutral, and Right-Wing Parties finally agreed to form a coalition Government under Prince Souvanna Phouma. This was set up in 1962. Early in 1963 further fighting was reported from the Plain of Jars and has continued sporadically ever since. In spite of the non-co-operation of the left-wing members and the exile of the right-wing General Nosavan in 1965, Prince Souvanna Phouma has maintained the nominal neutrality of his government, and controls the greater part of the country with the support of the Vientiane Regional military commander, General Kouprasith Abhay. Elections in January 1967 were boycotted by the Pathet Lao Communists.

Government

Laos is a constitutional Monarchy with the King as Head of State and C.-in-C. of the Army. Executive power is exercised by the Prime Minister and a Council of Ministers. The legislature consists of an advisory King's Council and an elected National Assembly of 59 members. The country is divided into 16 Khouengs or provinces, each administered by a Governor appointed by the Minister of the Interior. The tribal population is represented in the National Assembly but is virtually independent in local affairs.

Defence

The defence forces, which were unified in 1966 under a Combined Operations Command, consist of units of the Royal Laotian Army, with U.S.-trained personnel, the Neutralist Army, led by Western-trained officers, and the Pathet Lao, a semi-guerilla force, trained and equipped by China and North Viet-Nam. The Royal Laotian Army was estimated to have 69,000 men in 1966, and the Neutralist Army about 10,000. In addition there is a police force of 6,000.

Economic Affairs

About 90 per cent of the population live on the land at subsistence level. Rice is the chief crop and maize, peanuts and potatoes are also grown. Forestry is important: there are about 30,000 square miles of exploitable forests and teak is abundant. Tin is mined and constitutes the chief export. There are a few industries, mainly handicrafts. The Mekong River Development Project, sponsored by the UN Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East (ECAFE) will eventually provide hydro-electric power. Construction increased greatly in 1965, mainly in the field of private housing. The Khet Phathanakan (rural development) programme was also considerably expanded. Armed forces and police constitute a heavy burden on the economy, most of which is met by foreign contributions to a Kip Stabilization Fund, set up in 1963.

Transport and Communications

The Mekong and its left-bank tributaries form the principal artery of transport, although the size of craft is limited by rapids and traffic is seasonal. There are no railways in Laos. Roads are few, those outside the towns being of poor quality. Five airfields are used for internal and international air services by the state airline Royal Air Lao and five foreign companies.

Social Welfare

There are no state social services.

Education

Education was largely disrupted by the civil war, causing a high illiteracy rate. Educational facilities have since greatly improved. Total enrolment at schools was about 300,000 in 1966. College-level schooling is now available in Laos and there are four teacher-training institutes. Students go to France for university education, pending the establishment of the projected Sisavang Vong University.

Tourism

The main attractions of Laos are the ancient temples, the traditional dancing and the forest and mountain scenery. There are few tourists owing to the political situation.

Visas are required by all visitors.

LEBANON

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Lebanon lies at the eastern end of the Mediterranean Sea. Its neighbour to the north and east is Syria, and to the south Israel. The climate varies widely, coastal lowlands being hot and humid in summer and mild in winter but in the hills there is a heavy winter snowfall. Rainfall is on the whole abundant. Arabic is spoken everywhere and French and English are widely understood. The population of the Lebanon is almost equally divided between Christians and Moslems. The Christians are mainly Maronites, but many other sects flourish. The flag consists of horizontal stripes: red, white, red. In the centre of the white stripe is a cedar tree. The capital is Beirut.

Recent History

Before the Second World War Lebanon was a French mandated territory. Independence was proclaimed in 1941 and French forces left the country in 1946. The Lebanon has been a member of the Arab League since 1945 and has tried to follow a policy of neutrality in the disputes between Arab states, although accepting the Arab policy of boycotting Israel. In 1964 Charles Helou was elected President, in succession to Fouad Chéhab. In October 1966 a national crisis was feared as a result of the closure of Intra Bank, the biggest of Beirut's international finance houses. Although the repercussions of the closure were widespread the economy was not disrupted, and business conditions became more settled in 1967.

Government

Legislative power is exercised by the Chamber of Deputies, which has 99 members elected by universal adult suffrage. The electoral law maintains a ratio of 6 Christians to 5 Moslems in the Chamber of Deputies. The President of the Republic is elected for a term of six years. He chooses the Prime Minister and Council of Ministers, who carry out laws passed by the Chamber of Deputies.

Defence

About 16 per cent of Lebanon's 1964 budget was allocated to defence. The Army consists of about 10,000 men, and there is a small Navy and Air Force.

Economic Affairs

About 40 per cent of the working population are engaged in agriculture. The principal crops are grain, olives and citrus fruits. Lebanon is a free market and about two-thirds of trade is transit traffic, Beirut being the commercial and financial centre of the Middle East. The chief Lebanese industries are oil-refining, food processing and cement. Tourism is a valuable source of income.

Transport and Communications

There are over 250 miles of railway, some of it gauge. Towns are connected by good roads and there is heavy traffic between Beirut and Damascus, the capital of Syria. Beirut is the principal port of call for the main shipping lines covering the eastern Mediterranean. The port of Tripoli is the terminus of an oil pipeline from Iraq, and Sidon of the pipeline from Saudi Arabia. Beirut is an important international air junction and more than 34,000 aircraft used the airport in 1964.

Social Welfare

A scale of compensation for loss of employment was introduced by the State in 1963. Medical services are largely in private hands.

Education

There is state primary education but private institutions provide the main facilities for secondary and higher education. An ambitious school-building programme was launched in 1965 projecting expenditure of L£41 million on 629 schools. There are four universities.

Tourism

Lebanon is a tourist centre for the Middle East. Scenic beauty, sunshine and historical sites, notably Baalbek and Biblos, are the main attractions. There are many modern hotels, and about half a million tourists visit the country annually.

Visas are not required to visit Lebanon by nationals of Arab League member-states.

Sport

Football, basketball, tennis, swimming, skiing, water-skiing and golf are the most popular sports.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), May 4 (Ascension), May 6 (Martyr's Day), June 20 (Mouloud), August 15 (Assumption), November 1 (All Saints'), November 22 (Independence Day), December 25 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year), January 2 (Id ul Fitr), March 10 (Id ul Adha), March 31 (Islamic New Year), April 9 (Ashoura), April 12-14 (Easter).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The unit of currency is the Lebanese Pound (£L) of 100 piastres.

Coins: 5, 10, 25, 50 Piastres.

Notes: 1, 5, 10, 25, 50, 100 Lebanese Pounds.

£L3.08 = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

The Constitution of the Lebanon was promulgated on May 23rd, 1926, and was superseded on May 9th, 1932. An amended Constitution was promulgated on the authority of the French High Commissioner on January 2nd, 1934, but was revoked on January 4th, 1937, in favour of the 1926 Constitution, as amended by the constitutional laws of October 17th, 1927, and May 8th, 1929. This Constitution is still in force, and further amendments were made on November 9th and December 7th, 1943, and again on January 21st, 1947.

According to the Constitution, the Republic of the Lebanon is an independent and sovereign State, and no part of the territory may be alienated or ceded. Lebanon has no State religion. Arabic is the official language. Beirut is the capital.

All Lebanese are equal in the eyes of the law. Personal freedom and freedom of the Press are guaranteed and protected. The religious communities are entitled to maintain their own schools, provided they conform to the general requirements relating to public instruction as laid down by the State. Dwellings are inviolable; rights of ownership are protected by law. Every Lebanese citizen who has completed his twenty-first year is an elector and qualifies for the franchise.

Legislative Power

Legislative power is exercised by one house, the Chamber of Deputies. It has 99 members who must be over 25 years of age, in possession of their full political and civil rights, and literate. They are considered representatives of the whole nation, and are not bound to follow directives from their constituencies. They can only be suspended by a two-thirds majority of their fellow-members. Secret ballot was introduced in a new election law of April 1960.

The Chamber holds two sessions yearly, from the first Tuesday after March 15th to the end of May, and from the first Tuesday after October 15th to the end of the year. The normal term of the Chamber of Deputies is four years; general elections take place within sixty days before the end of this period. If the Chamber is dissolved before the end of its term, elections are held within three months of dissolution.

Voting in the Chamber is public—by acclamation, or by standing and sitting. A quorum of two-thirds and a majority vote is required for constitutional issues. The only exceptions to this occur when the Chamber becomes an electoral college, and chooses the President of the Republic, or Secretaries to the Chamber, or when the President is accused of treason or of violating the Constitution. In such cases voting is secret, and a two-thirds majority is needed.

Executive Power

The President of the Republic is elected for a term of six years, and is not immediately re-eligible. He and his ministers deal with the promulgation and execution of laws passed by the Chamber of Deputies. The Ministers and the President of the Council of Ministers are chosen by the President of the Republic. They are not necessarily members of the Chamber of Deputies, although they are responsible to it and have access to its debates.

The President himself can initiate laws. Alternatively, the President may demand an additional debate on laws already passed by the Chamber. He can adjourn the Chamber for up to a month, but not more than once in each session. In exceptional circumstances he can dissolve the Chamber and force an election. Ministers can be made to resign by a vote of no confidence.

- (9) Code d'Instruction Criminelle.

The following courts are now established:

(a) Fifty-six "Single-Judge Courts", each consisting of a single judge, and dealing in the first instance with both civil and criminal cases; there are seventeen such courts at Beirut and seven at Tripoli.

(b) Eleven Courts of Appeal, each consisting of three judges, including a President and a Public Prosecutor, and dealing with civil and criminal cases; there are five such courts at Beirut.

(c) Four Courts of Cassation, three dealing with civil and commercial cases and the fourth with criminal cases. A Court of Cassation, to be properly constituted, must have at least three judges, one being the President and the other two Councillors. The First Court consists of the First President of the Court of Cassation, a President and two Councillors. The other two civil courts each consist of a President and three Councillors. If the Court of Cassation reverses the judgment of a lower court it does not refer the case back but retries it itself.

First President of the Court of Cassation: BADRI MEOUCHI.

(d) The Council of State, which deals with administrative cases. It consists of a President, Vice-President and four Councillors. A Commissioner represents the Government.

President of the Court of the Council of State: JOSEF CHARBEL.

(e) The Court of Justice, which is a special court consisting of a President and eight judges, deals with matters affecting the security of the State.

In addition to the above, Islamic, Christian and Jewish religious courts deal with affairs of personal status (marriages, deaths, inheritances, etc.).

There is also a Press Tribunal.

RELIGION

PRINCIPAL COMMUNITIES

Maronites	424,000
Greek Orthodox	149,000
Greek Catholic	91,000
Sunni Muslim	286,000
Shi'i Muslim	250,000
Druzes	88,000

It will be seen that the largest single community in the Lebanon is the Maronite, a Uniate sect of the Roman Church. The Maronites inhabited the old territory of Mount Lebanon, i.e. immediately east of Beirut. In the south, towards the Israeli frontier, Shi'i villages are most common, whilst between the Shi'i and the Maronites live the Druzes (divided between the Yazbakis and the Jumlati). The Bekaa has many Greek Christians, whilst the Tripoli area is mainly Sunni Muslim. Altogether, of all the regions of the Middle East, the Lebanon probably presents the closest juxtaposition of sects and peoples within a small territory. As Lebanese political life is organised on a sectarian basis, the Maronites also enjoy much political influence, including a predominant voice in the nomination of the President of the Republic.

Patriarch of Antioch of the Maronites: H.E. Cardinal PAUL PIERRE MEOUCHI.

Patriarch of Cilicia of the Armenians: Rt. Rev. Mgr. IGNACE PIERRE XVI BATANIAN.

Union of the Armenian Evangelical Churches in the Near East: P.O. Box 377, Beirut; Moderator Prof. Hov P. AHARONIAN; the Union includes Armenian Evangelical Churches in Syria, Lebanon, Egypt, Cyprus, Greece Iran and Turkey.

TRANSPORT

RAILWAYS

Office des Chemins de Fer de l'Etat Libanais et des Transports en Commun de Beyrouth et de sa Banlieue: Head Office: Beirut; since 1960, all railways in Lebanon have been state-owned. There are 208 miles of standard-gauge railway and 51 miles of narrow-gauge local lines around Beirut; Dir.-Gen. N. RIZKALLAH.

ROADS

Lebanon has about 4,000 km. of roads (international asphalted 460, major asphalted 1,100, minor 840, tracks 1,600). The two international motorways are the north-south coastal road and the road connecting Beirut with Damascus in Syria. Among the major roads are that crossing the Bekaa and continuing South to Bent-Jbail and the Chtaura-Baalbek road. Hard-surfaced roads connect Jezzine with Moukhtara, Bzebdine with Metn, Meyroub with Afka and Tannourine. A programme of road improvement envisaging expenditure of some Lf6 million was introduced in 1965.

SHIPPING

Beirut is the principal port of call for the main shipping and forwarding business for the Levant. Tripoli, the northern Mediterranean terminus of the oil pipeline from Iraq (the other is Haifa), is also a busy port, with good equipment and facilities. Saida is still relatively unimportant as a port.

There are many shipping companies and agents in Beirut. The following are some of the largest:

LESOTHO

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital.

The Kingdom of Lesotho, formerly the British High Commission Territory of Basutoland, is completely surrounded by the Republic of South Africa, with Orange Free State to the north and west, Natal and Griqualand East to the east, and Cape Province to the south. Rainfall averages about 28in. per year, mostly falling between October and April. There are two main geographic regions: the Lowlands about 5,000-6,000 feet above sea level in the west and the Highlands rising to over 11,000 feet in the east. English is the official language and Sesotho the language of the Basotho people. Eighty per cent of the people of Lesotho are Basotho; and 75 per cent are Christians, mainly Roman Catholic and French Protestant. The flag is blue with green and white stripes and a white Basuto hat in the centre. The capital is Maseru.

Recent History

Basutoland's progress to independence as the Kingdom of Lesotho was initiated by the Constitution of 1959 which established representative government. On April 30th, 1965, Basutoland became self-governing under a new constitution, with a bi-cameral parliament and a ministerial council, also a Privy Council to be abolished on independence. Lesotho achieved independence within the Commonwealth on October 4th, 1966. In December 1966 the King, Moshoeshoe II, was placed under house arrest by Chief Jonathan, but was released after agreeing to be bound by the terms of the constitution. Lesotho is a member of the UN and the Economic Commission for Africa.

Government

The Independence Constitution provides for Lesotho to be a constitutional monarchy within the Commonwealth. Executive government is in the hands of a Cabinet of at least 8 ministers. The Prime Minister is appointed by the King, having regard to the results of the general election, and the Ministers are responsible to the Prime Minister. There is a Senate consisting of 22 Ward Chiefs and 11 Senators nominated by the Paramount Chief (King) and a National Assembly of 60 elected members.

Economic Affairs

The economy is primarily agricultural, although only 11.6 per cent of the land is arable. Livestock, wool and mohair account for two-thirds of all exports. Diamonds, hides and skins are also important. 117,000 members of the population are migrant labourers working for periods of up to five years in the Republic of South Africa. A hydro-electric scheme for the waters of the Oxbow Gorge to be piped 120 miles to the Orange Free State goldfields is under investigation. Approximately 50 per cent of Lesotho's revenue is made up of grants from the British Government.

Transport and Communications

There is no railway apart from one mile of South African Railway line at Maseru. A main road extending from Maseru for 80 miles is being bitumenized and there are 341 miles of minor roads. There is a major air-strip at Maseru and twenty-seven others throughout the country. No international airlines serve Lesotho.

Education

All primary education is free, and is largely in the hands of the three main missions (French Evangelical, Roman Catholic and Church of England) under the direction of the Ministry of Education. There are 1,111 schools and institutions in the territory. Post-secondary education is provided by the University of Lesotho, Botswana and Swaziland at Roma.

Public Holidays

1967: May 4 (Ascension Day), May 24 (Commonwealth Day), August 7 (Bank Holiday), October 2 (Arbor Day), October 4 (Independence Day), December 25 and 26 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), March 12 (Moshoeshoe's Day), April 12 (Good Friday), April 15 (Easter Monday).

Weights and Measures

The Imperial system of weights and measures is in force.

Currency

South African currency is in use in Lesotho. One Rand (R) is divided into 100 cents.

Coins: 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 50 cents: R1.

Notes: R1, R5, R10, R20.

Exchange rate: 2.00 Rand = £1 sterling.

.72 Rand = $1 U.S.

STATISTICS

Area (square miles): 11,716.

Population (1966 est.): 976,000 (3,000 Europeans); Maseru (capital) 10,000.

Employment (1962): 59,790 were employed in gold and coal mines in South Africa. There is little paid employment in the Territory.

Agriculture (1963): Wool 9,422,182 lbs., Mohair 1,587,387 lbs., Hides 13,337, Skins 75,860. Livestock (census): Cattle 386,342, Sheep 1,434,538, Goats 749,454, Horses 95,401, Donkeys 55,494, Mules 5,231.

Budget (1966-67 est.): Revenue £2,150,000, Expenditure £4,925,000, British grant-in-aid £2,750,000.

Development Plan (1963-66): Expenditure £5.75m. (Public £2.5m., private £3.25m.). In 1966 the British Government agreed to allocate £11,000,000 over the next three years for the development of Lesotho.

Currency: 1 South African Rand (R) equals 10s. sterling.

External Trade (1962): Imports: £3,580,366 (Merchandise £2,400,000, Maize and Meal £534,000, Cattle £370,000, Wheat and Flour £116,000); Exports: £1,711,797 (Wool £869,300, Mohair £362,800, Cattle £185,300, Wheat and Flour £156,000, Beans and Peas £100,800).

Education (1963): There were 1,082 schools and institutes. Number of pupils in primary schools 156,632, in secondary schools 2,626, in teacher training institutes 584; University of Basutoland, Bechuanaland Protectorate and Swaziland (1964) total 188 (Basuto students 54); Universities in U.K. and other overseas countries (1963-64) 87; Technical institutes (1962) 88, craft schools (1962) 499.

THE CONSTITUTION

The new Basutoland Constitution was agreed in outline at a Conference held in London in May 1964. It was made by Order in Council (Basutoland Order 1965) on January 29th, 1965, but did not come into full operation immediately pending elections to the National Assembly which were held on April 29th. The Basutoland Government presented its request for full independence on April 30th, 1966, as provided for in the 1965 constitution, and on October 4th, 1966, the Kingdom of Lesotho achieved independence within the British Commonwealth.

The Paramount Chief, Motlotlehi Moshoeshe II, is Head of State and constitutional monarch. The powers which the U.K. formerly exercised as protecting power (External Affairs, Defence, Internal Security and certain other matters including public service appointments, currency, customs, posts and broadcasting) have been transferred to the Lesotho Government. These powers are the direct responsibility of the government and the Paramount Chief has no power in these fields. The executive body is the Cabinet consisting of the Prime Minister and not fewer than 7 other Ministers. There are two houses in the Parliament. The Senate contains the 22 principal chiefs and 11 other persons nominated by the Paramount Chief.

The National Assembly has 60 members elected by universal adult suffrage in 60 single member constituencies. The Prime Minister must be able to command majority support in the National Assembly. If challenged, the government must establish in the courts, that where there are several ways of achieving its objective, the means least restrictive of civil liberties has been chosen.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The judicial department of the territory is the responsibility of the Chief Justice of Lesotho. His headquarters are at Maseru.

Chief Justice of Lesotho: HON. H. B. BENSON.

Court of Appeal. A court of appeal for all three former High Commission Territories was established in 1955. It is composed of the President and other Judges of Appeal.

Justices of Appeal: (vacant) (President); E. R. ROPER, D.S.O., M.C., V.D., CROIX DE GUERRE; O. D. SHREINER, M.C., M.A., LL.D.; H. B. BENSON; I. V. ILYAN (Chief Justice, Swaziland); L. WESTON (Chief Justice, Botswana).

The High Court. This is a Superior Court of Record, and in addition to any other jurisdiction conferred by local law, possesses and exercises all the jurisdiction, power and authorities vested in a Divisional Court of the Supreme Court of South Africa. Appeals may be made to the Court of Appeal or to the Privy Council.

District Courts. Each of the nine districts possesses the following subordinate courts: Resident Magistrate Courts, First Class, Second Class, Third Class, and Special Class Courts. Administrative Officers appointed as Magistrates of the First, Second, Third, and Special Classes, may only exercise jurisdiction in their district; whereas a Resident Magistrate has jurisdiction throughout the territory.

Judicial Commissioners' Courts. These deal with civil and criminal appeals from Basotho Courts. Further appeal may be made to the High Court.

Basotho Courts. There are 70 Basotho Courts, of which 58 are Local Courts and 12 are Central Courts which also serve as courts of appeal from the Local Courts. They have limited jurisdiction on civil and criminal cases but have no jurisdiction over people other than Africans.

RELIGION

About 75 per cent of the people are Christian; most of the others follow ancestral forms of worship.

REPUBLIC OF LIBERIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Republic of Liberia lies on the west coast of Africa with Sierra Leone and Guinea to the north and the Ivory Coast to the east. The climate is tropical with temperatures ranging from 65°F (18°C) to 120°F (49°C). English is the official language but the 28 tribes speak their own languages and dialects. Liberia is officially a Christian State and Methodism has the most adherents. There is a minority of Muslims. The flag consists of eleven horizontal stripes alternately of red and white with a navy blue canton containing a white star in the top left-hand corner. The capital is Monrovia.

Recent History

The present leader of Liberia, William Vacanarat Shadrach Tubman, was elected President in 1943, since when a number of political, social and economic changes have taken place. The suffrage has been broadened to grant universal representation in the Legislature. Liberia has played a leading part in African affairs and in 1961 initiated the meeting of twenty African nations in Monrovia which founded the Inter-African and Malagasy States Organisation (the Monrovia Group) (subsequently re-formed as Organisation Commune Africaine et Malgache—OCAM). A Liberian contingent formed part of the UN force in the Congo. In February 1966 labour unrest prompted the Liberian Parliament to grant President Tubman special powers for twelve months.

Government

The Constitution is based on that of the United States. Executive power lies with the President, assisted by a Vice-President and Cabinet. The bi-cameral legislature consists of the Senate of 18 members and the House of Representatives of 52 members. The President is elected for an initial eight-year term and may stand for re-election every four years. The country is divided into the Coastal Region of five Counties and the Hinterland of four Counties. Each County is headed by a Superintendent appointed by the President.

Defence

The armed forces of Liberia consist of a National Guard of about 3,200 men, a Militia of about 10,000 men and a Coastguard Service. Military service commences at the age of sixteen. The United States provides technical assistance. In 1967 the number of regiments was increased to seventeen.

Economic Affairs

The economy is predominantly agricultural, about 90 per cent of the population living on the land. Much farming is at subsistence level, but there are plantations producing chiefly rubber. Other crops include rice, cocoa, coffee and palm oil. Timber resources are extensive. The country is rich in iron ore, which as an export exceeds the value of rubber, Liberia's traditional export. A free zone embracing Liberia, Guinea, Ivory Coast and Sierra Leone came into being in March 1965. Liberia's economy has expanded very fast as a result of her "open door" policy to foreign investors. This has led to a difficult budgetary situation in spite of excellent trade returns.

Transport and Communications

The railways are used to carry iron ore to the coast and a passenger service was introduced in 1964. New roads are being constructed and a highway crossing the country from west to east was completed late in 1963. There are nine ports including the deep-water berths at Monrovia. A large number of vessels based on many countries are registered as belonging to the Liberian merchant fleet. Liberian National Airways and foreign lines operate internal and international air services.

Social Welfare

There are no state social welfare services. The state runs a number of hospitals and others are operated by U.S. Missionary Societies.

Education

Education is provided by the state and by religious organizations. The Four-Year Development Programme launched in 1967 aims to increase the number of primary pupils from 64,000 to 80,000 in 1970, and to increase secondary enrolment from 8,400 to 13,500. There is one university.

Tourism

There is little tourism although the country can offer an abundance of flora and fauna and traditional native dancing.

Visas are required by all nationalities.

Sport

Sport is promoted by the National Sports Commission. Football and athletics are the most popular sports.

Public Holidays

1967: May 14 (Unification Day), July 26 (Independence Day), August 24 (Flag Day), October 24 (United Nations Day), November 23 (Thanksgiving), December 1 (Matilda Newport Day), December 10 (Human Rights Day), December 25 (Christmas Day).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 7 (Founders' Day), February 11 (Armed Forces Day), February 14 (Literacy Day), Decoration Day (March), March 15 (Birthday of J. J. Roberts, First President), April 12 (Good Friday, Fast and Prayer Day), April 15 (Africa Freedom Day).

Weights and Measures

Imperial weights and measures are in force.

Currency and Exchange Rate

The currency unit is the Liberian Dollar of 100 cents. United States coins are also legal tender.

Coins: 1, 2, 5, 10, 25, 50 Cents; 1 Dollar.

Notes: 1, 5, 10, 20 Dollars.

Exchange rate: $2.80 = £1 Sterling.

£1 = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

THE Republic of Liberia was founded by the American Colonisation Society in 1820, and constituted a free and independent Republic on July 26th, 1847. The Constitution of the Republic is modelled on that of the United States of America. Authority is divided into the Legislative, the Executive, and the Judicial.

Legislative authority is vested in a Legislature consisting of two Houses: the Senate, with 18 members, elected for a six-year term; and the House of Representatives elected for four years, consisting of 52 members.

Electors must either pay a hut tax, or own property in fee simple, or own land. They must be citizens of Liberia.

The Executive power rests with the President, who, with the Vice-President, is elected for an eight-year term. The President may be re-elected for periods of four years.

THE CONSTITUTION

The Constitution of Libya as a Federal State consisting of the three Provinces of Cyrenaica, Tripolitania and Fezzan was promulgated in October 1951. The Federal system was abolished in 1963.

Form of the State and System of Government

Under the new terms of the Constitution, the State of Libya is named "The Kingdom of Libya". It has a hereditary monarchy and its system of government is representative.

The new system of government is based on ten administrative districts: Tripoli, Zavia, Misurata, Khoms, Jabal, Benghazi, Jebel Akhdar, Derna, Sebha and Ubari.

The religion of the State is Islam. The official language is Arabic.

Rights of the People. All Libyans shall be equal before the law. They shall enjoy equal civil and political rights, shall have the same opportunities and be subject to the same public duties and obligations, without distinction of religion, belief, race, language, wealth, kinship or political opinion.

Everyone charged with an offence shall be presumed to be innocent until proved guilty according to law in a trial at which he has the facilities necessary for his defence.

Freedom of thought, freedom of the Press and of printing and the secrecy of all correspondence in whatever form shall be guaranteed.

Every Libyan shall have the right to education, and elementary education shall be free and compulsory for children of both sexes.

Property shall be inviolable.

The King. The King is the supreme head of the State. He shall be inviolable and exempt from all responsibility. He sanctions and promulgates the laws, and exercises his power through his ministers.

The Throne of the Kingdom is hereditary. If the King is a minor, or if any circumstances prevent or delay him from exercising his constitutional powers, the Council of Ministers shall, with the consent of Parliament, appoint a Regent or Council of Regency to perform the duties of the King.

The King may, if he deem necessary, convene Parliament to meet in an ordinary session; he may also adjourn the session of Parliament, but the adjournment may not exceed a period of thirty days, nor may it be repeated during the same session without the consent of both Chambers.

The King shall appoint the Prime Minister, remove him from office or accept his resignation; he shall appoint the Ministers, remove them from office or accept their resignation at the proposal of the Prime Minister.

The Council of Ministers. The Council of Ministers consists of the Prime Minister, appointed by the King, and of the Ministers whom the King deems fit to appoint at the proposal of the Prime Minister. The Constitution does not specify the number of ministers to be appointed.

The ministers are collectively responsible to the House of Representatives, and each of them is individually responsible for the activities of his ministry. By a vote of no confidence (simple majority) the House of Representatives may compel the resignation of all, or any, of the ministers. The ministers, who may, but need not, be members of the House of Representatives, may attend and must be heard by the House of Representatives whenever they so desire.

Parliament. Article 93 of the Constitution provides that "Parliament shall consist of two Chambers—the Senate and the House of Representatives".

The Senate consists of 22 members appointed by the King. The term of office shall be for 8 years. Half the Senators shall be replaced every four years.

The House of Representatives shall consist of members elected in accordance with the provisions of electoral law. The number of deputies shall be determined on a basis of one Deputy for every 20,000 inhabitants, or any fraction of that number exceeding half. The term of office of the House of Representatives shall be four years, unless it is dissolved earlier.

Women have the right to vote and to stand for Parliament.

The King shall call Parliament annually to hold its regular meeting in the first week of November. Unless the Chamber of Deputies is dissolved the regular session shall last for at least five months.

Both chambers meet in public and the period of the sessions is common to both. Neither of the two chambers may take a decision unless the majority of its members are present at the time of the decision. Neither chamber may discuss a bill before it has been considered in committee.

The King sanctions the laws passed by Parliament and promulgates them within 30 days from the date of their communication to him. Within this period the King may refer the law back to Parliament for reconsideration. If the law is passed again by a two-thirds majority of the members of each chamber it must be sanctioned and promulgated within 30 days following the communication to the King of the last decision. If the majority is less than two-thirds the bill is not reconsidered during that session. The bill must, however, be sanctioned and promulgated, if Parliament, at a later session, passes it by a majority of all the members of each chamber. Laws which are promulgated by the King become effective after 30 days from the date of their publication in the official gazette unless the law concerned contains a special provision increasing or decreasing this period.

Article 138 of the Constitution provides that the right to initiate laws shall be vested in the King, the Senate and the House of Representatives, but excludes the Senate from initiating money bills.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

President of the Supreme Court: Sheikh MANSUR MAHJUB.

The law of the Judicial System of 1954 established the following courts: the Federal Supreme Court, the Courts of Appeal, the Courts of First Instance and the Summary Courts. In all courts judgment is given in the name of the King. Sittings are in public, unless the court decides to hold them in camera in the interests of decency or public order. Judgment is in all cases given in public. The language of the courts is Arabic, but there is a translation office attached to each Court to help non-Arabic speaking parties, judges or lawyers.

The Supreme Court consists of a President and judges appointed by the King. Final judgments passed by the Courts of Appeal or Courts of First Instance sitting as appellate courts are executable despite any relative objection for cassation before the Supreme Court.

Courts of Appeal exist in each of the three provinces, consisting of a President, Vice-President and three judges; judgments must be given by three judges. Each Court of Appeal includes a Court of Assize consisting of three judges.

Courts of First Instance are set up in the provinces, consisting of a President, Vice-President and a number of judges; judgment in these courts is given by one judge.

Summary Courts, composed of one judge, exist within the territorial jurisdiction of every Court of First Instance. Appeals from Summary Court judgments lie to Courts of First Instance sitting as appellate courts.

OIL

Petroleum affairs in Libya are now dealt with entirely by the reorganised Ministry of Petroleum Affairs. The newly formed Petroleum Supreme Council is a special body within the Ministry, under the chairmanship of the Minister, to study petroleum policy and methods of exploitation, and to advise on laws and regulations concerning petroleum matters.

In March 1966, 38 companies held 123 land and 5 marine concessions in Libya. Land concessions covered 40% of the total land surface of the country. Crude oil exports in 1965 totalled 442.6 million barrels, an increase of nearly 130 million barrels over 1964.

The following are the principal companies operating in Libya.

RAILWAYS

Cyrenaica Government Railway: Benghazi; built 1917–27 by Italians, re-opened 1948; the system consists of two lines extending from Benghazi as follows: Benghazi-Barce (108 km.), goods and passenger service; Benghazi-Solluk (55 km.), goods and passenger service and 2.4 km. of track in Benghazi Docks; Superintendent MURTA Bıjou.

ROADS

Ministry of Communications: Tripoli.

The most important road in Libya is the federal coast road, 1,822 km. in length, which runs the whole way from the Tunisian to the Egyptian border, passing through Tripoli and Benghazi. It has a second link between Barce and Lamluda, which is 141 km. long. The other federal road (completed in 1962) runs from a point on the coastal road 120 km. south of Misurata through Sebha (capital of Fezzan) to Ghat near the Algerian border (total length 1,250 km.). There is a branch 260 km. long running from Vaddan to Sirte. A road is planned to cross the desert from Sebha to the frontiers of Chad and Niger.

In addition to the federal highways, Tripolitania has about 1,200 km. of black-top and macadamised roads and Cyrenaica about 500 km. Practically all the towns and villages of Libya, including the desert oases, are accessible by motor vehicle, but the going is sometimes rough.

SHIPPING

Principal ports are Tripoli, Benghazi, Port Brega and the Oasis Marine Terminal at Es-Sider. Port Brega was opened to oil tankers by King Idris I on 25th October, 1961. In 1966 a £2-million contract was placed for extensions to the harbour. A 30-inch crude oil pipeline connects the Zelten oilfields with Marsa El Brega. Another pipeline joins the Serir oilfield with Marsa Hariga, the port of Tobruk.

The following shipping companies are among those operating services through Libyan ports:

Ghirlando Bros.: Tripoli; P.O. Box 401, Giaddat Istiklal 230; Benghazi; P.O. Box 157, Sh. Rufaghi; Tobruk; Main Street; f. 1828.

MADAGASCAR

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Madagascar is a large island lying 300 miles off the coast of Mozambique (Portuguese East Africa). The climate is tropical. The northern parts of the island receive monsoon rains from December to April but the rest of the country is fairly dry. The official languages are Malagasy and French. Hova and other dialects are widely spoken. About half the population follow animist beliefs, Christians constitute about 40 per cent and the remainder are Animists or Muslims. The flag consists of a vertical white stripe in the hoist and horizontal stripes of red and green. The capital is Tananarive.

Recent History

Formerly a French colony, Madagascar became a self-governing Republic within the French Community in 1958 and attained full independence in 1960. In 1961 Madagascar played a leading role in the formation of the Union Africaine et Malgache, the inaugural meeting of which was held in Tananarive. Madagascar is a member of the United Nations, the French Community, the Organisation for African Unity and the Organisation Commune Africaine et Malgache (OCAM) (successor to U.A.M.). A general election was held in August 1965.

Government

Executive power rests with the President, elected by universal suffrage for a seven-year term and assisted by a Vice-President and Cabinet. The legislature consists of a Senate of 54 members and a National Assembly of 107 members. The National Assembly is elected for a five-year term by universal suffrage, the Senate being partly elected and partly nominated. The country is divided into six Provinces, each with an appointed Chef de Province and an elected General Council.

Defence

The strength of the Army is about 3,500 men, and there are about 8,000 police and other security forces. The training of cadres for a Navy and Air Force is being undertaken. Agreements exist whereby Madagascar receives French aid in training and equipment in exchange for the right to maintain bases in the country. French military strength in the Malagasy Republic is undergoing a gradual reduction.

Economic Affairs

The economy is principally agricultural with the great majority of the population living on the land. Agricultural produce accounts for 90 per cent of exports. Rice is the staple food and coffee is the chief export. Tobacco, rubber, cocoa and vanilla are also cultivated. Large herds of cattle are maintained. There are extensive mineral deposits including graphite, mica, nickel and chromite. Industry is concerned largely with the processing of agricultural produce. A Five-Year Plan (1964-68) envisages an increase in production of 27 per cent. The biggest projects in the Plan are infrastructure and transport. French aid worth over £20 millions had been extended to Madagascar by mid-1964.

Transport and Communications

The terrain is difficult and transport is not well developed. There are 540 miles of railway, mainly single track and narrow gauge. Of the 20,000 miles of roads about a quarter can only be used in dry weather. Most of the west coast rivers are navigable for about 100 miles and on the east coast the Pangalanes canal follows the coast from Tamatave to Farafangana. The chief ports are Tamatave, Majunga and Diégo-Suarez. Four airlines provide internal and international air transport.

Social Welfare

All medical services are free and there are family allowances as well as benefits for industrial accidents and occupational diseases. Much welfare is offered by Christian missions.

Education

Education in Madagascar is both public and private. Efforts are being made to increase the number of schools and the primary schools can now accommodate over half the children. There is one university. In 1964 a Five Year Plan to eradicate illiteracy was introduced.

Tourism

Plans have been prepared to develop tourism and in 1962 an international tourist centre was set up at Nossi-Bé.

Visas are not required to visit the Malagasy Republic by nationals of France and the German Federal Republic.

Sport

The most popular sports are football, rugby, basketball and swimming. Athletics, tennis, golf and volleyball also have their following.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), May 28 (African Liberation Day), Ascension, Whitsun, June 26 (Independence Day), August 15 (Assumption), October 14 (Madagascar National Holiday), November 1 (All Saints' Day), December 25 (Christmas Day).

1968: March 29 (Commemoration of 1947 Rebellion), April 15 (Easter Monday).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The unit of currency is the Franc Malgache (FMG), 50 FMG being worth 1 French Franc.

Notes: 50, 500, 1,000, 5,000 Francs FMG.

Coins: 1, 2, 5, 10, 20 Francs FMG.

Exchange Rate: 685 Francs FMG = £1 sterling
244 Francs FMG = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

(Promulgated April 1959)

Principles: The Rights of Man; equality for all, without distinction of origin, race or religion, liberty of expression and of association, guaranteed protection of the family, property and education. The republic is one, indivisible, democratic and social. Sovereignty resides in the people who exercise it by universal suffrage.

Head of State: The Head of State is the President of the Republic.

Executive Power: The Government consists of the President of the Republic, elected for a seven year renewable term by universal suffrage, a Vice-President and ministers appointed by the President. The President of the Republic is thus also head of the government. He has power to dissolve the National Assembly on the advice of the Senate and after consultation with the President of the National Assembly.

Legislative Power: The National Assembly is elected by universal suffrage for five years and meets in ordinary session twice a year. The Senate examines all proposed legislation and meets during the ordinary sessions of the Assembly. Two-thirds of the Senators are elected by provincial, municipal and rural authorities, the remainder are nominated by the government. The carrying of a motion of censure by the Assembly entails the resignation of the government and the President must form a new government. If the programme of the new government is not approved by the Assembly, the latter must be dissolved and new elections held. If the new Assembly fails to approve the programme of the new government, the President must resign and cannot stand again.

Local Government: Madagascar is divided into six provinces, each province having a Chef de Province at its head appointed by the President and a General Council consisting of councillors elected for five years and the deputies and senators of the province.

Revision of the Constitution may be proposed by the President and the members of the Assembly and Senate. The proposal must be adopted in identical terms by both Assembly and Senate and the republican form of government must not be prejudiced.

French Community: Madagascar joined the French Community as an independent member on 27th June 1960.

MALAWI

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Malawi, formerly the British Protectorate of Nyasaland, is an inland state in southern central Africa, with Zambia to the west, Mozambique to the south and east, and Tanzania to the north. Lake Malawi (formerly Lake Nyasa) forms most of the eastern boundary. The climate is tropical, but much of the country is high enough to modify the heat. The official language is English, though Nyanja is being promoted as the basis for a "Malawi Language". Most Africans follow traditional beliefs. There are about 10 per cent Protestants and 10 per cent Roman Catholics, and there is a Moslem community among the Asians, as well as a Hindu minority. The flag consists of black, red and green horizontal stripes, with a rising sun in red on the black stripe. The capital is Zomba, but a new capital is to be built at Lilongwe.

Recent History

The Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, set up in 1953, was dissolved at the end of 1963 and Nyasaland under the name of Malawi became independent in July, 1964. The country became a Republic in July 1966, with Dr. H. Kamuzu Banda as President. Malawi is a member of the United Nations and the Organization for African Unity.

Government

Malawi is an independent Republic within the Commonwealth, with an elected President whose term of office is five years. Executive power is in the hands of the President and there is a Parliament of 55 elected members, of which five hold special seats reserved for non-Africans.

Defence

Malawi's defence forces include a battalion of regular infantry, and territorial and reserve forces. There are also national police forces totalling about 3,000 men.

Economic Affairs

Malawi has small resources. Most of her population are farmers, and there are few European settlers. The principal crops are cotton, groundnuts, tobacco and tea. Fishing is carried on on Lake Malawi (Lake Nyasa). Unlike her neighbours Malawi has little mineral wealth. Malawi is the leading Commonwealth producer of tung oil, used in the paint and varnish industries. Harnessing water power at Nkula Falls has greatly assisted the economy. Many ambitious development schemes are under way within the framework of the revised Five-Year Plan 1965-69.

Transport and Communications

The railway system has access to the sea at Beira in Mozambique, and a link with Nacala in Mozambique to serve the new capital of Lilongwe is under construction. There are about 2,000 miles of trunk roads; and as well as Air Malawi there are air charter firms. Lake Malawi carries an important traffic with Mozambique and Tanzania.

Social Welfare

Social development Branch of the Provincial and District administration was set up in 1958. Its work includes care and protection of young people, the destitute, and the physically handicapped, probation work, sport, community centres and women's clubs.

Education

Malawi has high literacy and there are over 300,000 African children receiving primary education. Secondary education is provided in government and government-aided schools. The University of Malawi opened in October 1965. Many students go to Great Britain and Rhodesia.

Tourism

The country has a small but growing tourist industry. Big game, fine scenery and an excellent climate form the basis of the country's tourist potential.

Visas are not required to visit Malawi by nationals of Belgium, Denmark, German Federal Republic, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Portuguese citizens of Mozambique, San Marino, South Africa, Sweden, United Kingdom and Commonwealth and United States of America.

Public Holidays

1967: May 14 (Whitsun), July 6 (Independence), December 25-26 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year), March 3 (Martyr's Day), April 12-15 (Easter).

Weights and Measures

The Imperial System is in use.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The principal unit of currency is the pound (£) which is divided into 20 shillings (s) and 240 pence (d).

Notes: 5s, 10s, £1 £5.

Coins: Bronze $\frac{1}{2}$ d, 1d; Cupronickel 3d, 6d, 1s, 2s, 2s. 6d.

Exchange Rate: £1 Malawi = £1 Sterling.

7s. 2d. = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

A new Constitution was introduced in 1966. Malawi is a one-party state with a Presidential form of government. There is a unicameral parliament of 55 members.

Fundamental Rights

The following rights are guaranteed by the Constitution: life, personal liberty, protection from slavery and forced labour, from inhuman treatment, from deprivation of property, privacy of the home, security under the law, freedom of conscience, of expression, of assembly and association, of movement, protection from racial discrimination.

The President

Malawi is a Republic with an elected President.

Parliament

There is a Parliament, consisting of the President and the National Assembly. The National Assembly has 55 members, 50 elected on a general roll of all adult citizens, and five on a special roll of all European adults. A Speaker is elected from among the ordinary members of the Assembly. The Assembly may change the Constitution by a two-thirds majority on the second and third readings. The Parliamentary term is normally five years. The President has power to prorogue or dissolve Parliament.

Executive Powers

Executive power is exercised by the President acting as Prime Minister. Ministers are responsible to the President.

Judicature

The Judicature is a separate organ of the Government. There is a High Court, consisting of the Chief Justice and not less than two Puisne Judges, a Supreme Court of Appeal, and subordinate courts. There is also a Judicial Service Commission with power to appoint judicial officers.

ROADS

The total road mileage in the country is approximately 6,410 miles, of which 288 miles have a bituminous surface. The spinal column of the road system runs from the Salisbury-Blantyre road east and then north through Blantyre, Lilongwe and Mzimba to join Tanzania and Zambia at Tunduma. Other important roads link this north-south route with the railway and Lake Malawi in the east, and Zambia and Portuguese East Africa in the west. A 300-mile highway along the edge of Lake Malawi, the "Kamuzu Highway", is under construction. All main, and most secondary roads, roads are all-weather roads. A further 140 miles from Liwonde to the new capital at Lilongwe will be bitumenized during 1967-68.

MALAYSIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Malaysia consists of the eleven Malayan states and the Borneo states of Sarawak and Sabah (North Borneo) in South-East Asia. Malaya forms the southern part of the Kra peninsula with Thailand to the north. Sarawak and Sabah are nearby territories in north Borneo. The southern tip of Malaya is connected to the island of Singapore by causeway. There is little variation in temperature throughout the year. Rainfall is regular and often heavy. Day temperatures are around 85°F (29.4°C). The national language is Malay but English is widely used. Chinese dialects and Tamil are also spoken. All Malays are Muslims. Among the other communities are Buddhists, Hindus and Christians. The flag of Malaysia consists of horizontal red and white stripes with a yellow star and crescent. The capital is Kuala Lumpur. Each of Malaysia's thirteen states has its own flag and its own capital. In some states there is in addition a Royal capital.

Recent History

Malaya was occupied by the Japanese in World War Two. After the liberation Singapore became a separate British colony. In 1948 the Federation of Malaya was created under British protection. In the same year an armed Communist revolt broke out and was not completely suppressed until 1960. In August 1957 Malaya became a sovereign, independent nation.

Malaysia was established on September 16th, 1963, through the union of the independent Federation of Malaya, internally self-governing state of Singapore, and former British colonies of Sarawak and North Borneo (Sabah). Singapore left the federation in August 1965 and became an independent Republic.

Indonesia opposed the establishment of Malaysia and maintained an economic blockade against the new state. This policy of "confrontation" was brought to an end in August 1966 with the signing of a joint agreement at Bangkok.

The Government

Malaysia is a federation of the following 13 states: Johore, Kedah, Kelantan, Malacca, Negri Sembilan, Pahang, Penang, Perak, Perlis, Sabah, Sarawak, Selangor, Trengganu. The Supreme Head of Malaysia is an elected monarch. The monarch acts on the advice of Parliament and a Cabinet. Parliament consists of the Dewan Negara (Senate) and the Dewan Ra'ayat (House of Representatives). The Senate has 58 members, 26 elected and 32 appointed. The House of Representatives consists of 144 elected members, 104 from Malaya, 26 from Sarawak and 14 from Sabah.

Defence

Malaysia is responsible for its own defence and has an army, navy and air force. It has a defence agreement with the United Kingdom to assist her in case of need.

Economic Affairs

Malaysia enjoys one of the highest standards of living in Asia thanks largely to its main industries of tin and rubber. It is the largest tin producer in the world. A vast rubber re-planting scheme is being undertaken to increase rubber yields. A drive is being made to diversify industry and to expand agriculture by opening up large areas of jungle. A total expenditure of $M 10.5 million is envisaged in Malaysia's First Development Plan, 1966-70.

Transport and Communications

Communications within Malaya are excellent and there are frequent services by sea and air between the Malayan peninsula and Sarawak and Sabah. On the mainland of Malaya there are nearly 3,000 miles of Federal roads and more than 5,000 miles of State roads. The Malayan Railway is government-owned and its total mileage is 1,028 miles. The country has a network of airfields and a major international airport at Kuala Lumpur.

Social Welfare

Social Welfare comes under the two Malaysian Ministries of Health and of Welfare Services. Employers and employees contribute to the Employees' Provident Fund for retirement benefits. The independent Social Welfare Lotteries Board contributes large sums to welfare schemes. Government-sponsored social work among the aged and disabled is supported by many voluntary societies.

Education

Total school enrolment in 1967 is estimated at 2.1 million. Free primary education is compulsory in the Malayan states, and is to be extended to the Borneo states. There is one University, at Kuala Lumpur.

Tourism

Malaysia has a well-established tourist industry. About 20,000 tourists visit Malaya annually. The fascination of the jungles of Sarawak and Sabah has yet to be exploited however.

Visas are not required to visit Malaysia by nationals of Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, German Federal Republic, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, San Marino, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom and Commonwealth and U.S.A.

Sport

The national sport is football but badminton, cricket, hockey and tennis are also played. There is some sea-fishing and jungle exploration.

Public Holidays

1967: June 7 (His Majesty's Birthday), June 19 (Birth of the Prophet), August 31 (Malaysia Day), November 1 (Deepavali), December 25 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year), January 2 (Hari Raya Puasa), February 2 (Chinese New Year), March 10 (Hari Raya Haji).

Weights and Measures

The British system is in operation but there are also local weights and measures chiefly the Kati; ($1\frac{1}{2}$ lbs) and the Pikul ($133\frac{1}{2}$ lbs).

Currency and Exchange Rates

The principal currency unit is the Malaysian dollar (M$) which is divided into 100 cents.

Notes: $1, $5, $50, $100.

Coins: 1, 5, 10, 20, 50 cents.

Exchange Rate: M$8.57 = £1 sterling.

M$3.26 = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

Supreme Head

(YANG DI-PERTUAN AGONG)

His Majesty the Yang di-Pertuan Agong (King or Supreme Sovereign) is the Supreme Head of Malaysia. Every act of government flows from his authority although he acts on the advice of Parliament and the Cabinet. The appointment of a Prime Minister lies within his discretion, and he has the right to refuse to dissolve Parliament even against the advice of the Prime Minister. He appoints the Judges of the Federal Court and the High Courts on the advice of the Prime Minister. He is the Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces. The Yang di-Pertuan Agong is elected by the Conference of Rulers, and to qualify for election he must be one of the nine Rulers. He holds office for five years or until his earlier resignation or death. Election is by secret ballot on each Ruler in turn; starting with the Ruler next in precedence after the late or former Yang di-Pertuan Agong. The first Ruler to obtain not less than five votes is declared elected. A Deputy Supreme Head of State (the Timbalan Yang di-Pertuan Agong) is elected by a similar process. On election the Yang di-Pertuan Agong relinquishes, for his tenure of office, all his functions as Ruler of his own State and may appoint a Regent. The Timbalan Yang di-Pertuan Agong exercises no powers in the ordinary course, but is immediately available to fill the post of Yang di-Pertuan Agong and carry out his functions in the latter's absence or disability. In the event of the Yang di-Pertuan Agong's death or resignation he takes over the exercise of sovereignty until the Conference of Rulers has elected a successor.

Conference of Rulers

The Conference of Rulers consists of the Rulers and Governors. Its prime duty is the election by the Rulers only of the Yang di-Pertuan Agong and his deputy. The Conference must be consulted in the appointment of Judges, the Attorney-General, the Elections Commission and the Public Services Commission. The Conference must likewise be consulted and concur in the alteration of State boundaries, the extension to the Federation as a whole of Muslim religious acts and observances, and in any bill to amend the Constitution. Consultation is mandatory in matters affecting public policy or the special position of the Malays and natives of the Borneo States. The Conference also considers matters affecting the rights, prerogatives and privileges of the Rulers themselves.

Federal Parliament

Parliament has two Houses—the Dewan Negara (Senate) and the Dewan Ra'ayat (House of Representatives). The Senate has a membership of 58, made up of 26 elected and 32 appointed members. Each State Legislature, acting as an electoral college, elects two Senators; these may be members of the State Legislative Assembly or otherwise. The Yang di-Pertuan Agong appoints the other 32 members of the Senate. Members of the Senate must be at least 30 years old. The Senate elects a President and a Deputy President from among its members. It may initiate legislation, but all money bills must be introduced in the first instance in the House of Representatives. All bills must be passed by both Houses of Parliament before being presented to the Yang di-Pertuan Agong for the Royal Assent in order to become law. A bill originating in the Senate cannot receive Royal Assent until it has been agreed to by the House of Representatives, but the Senate has only delaying powers over a bill originating from and approved by the House of Representatives. Senators serve for a period of six years, but the Senate is not subject to dissolution. Parliament can by statute increase the number of Senators elected from each State to three. The House of Representatives consists of 144 elected members. Of these, 104 are from the 11 States of Malaya, 26 from Sarawak and 14 from Sabah. In the case of the 11 States of Malaya, members are returned from single-member constituencies on the basis of universal adult franchise. The present members of the House of Representatives from Sabah and Sarawak are elected by their respective State Legislative Assemblies. Direct elections to the Federal Parliament and to the State Legislative Assemblies in Sabah and Sarawak will be held after the fifth anniversary of Malaysia Day or earlier if agreed. The life of the House of Representatives is limited to five years, after which time a fresh general election must be held. The Yang di-Pertuan Agong may dissolve Parliament before then if the Prime Minister so advises.

The Cabinet

The Yang di-Pertuan Agong appoints a Cabinet to advise him in the exercise of his functions, consisting of the Prime Minister and an unspecified number of Ministers who must all be members of Parliament. The Prime Minister must be a citizen born in Malaysia and a member of the House of Representatives who, in the opinion of the Yang di-Pertuan Agong, commands the confidence of that House. Ministers are appointed on the advice of the Prime Minister. A number of Assistant Ministers (who are not members of the Cabinet) are also appointed from among Members of Parliament. The Cabinet meets regularly under the chairmanship of the Prime Minister to formulate policy.

Public Services

The Public Services, civilian and military, are non-political and owe their loyalty not to the party in power but to the Yang di-Pertuan Agong and the Rulers. They serve the governments in power for the time being, irrespective of the latter's political affiliation. To ensure the impartiality of the service, and to protect it from political interference, a number of Services Commissions are established under the Constitution to select and appoint officers, to place them on the pensionable establishment, to decide as to promotion, and to maintain discipline.

The States

With the exception of Malacca, Penang, Sabah and Sarawak, each of the States has a Ruler. The Ruler of Perlis has the title of Raja and that of Negri Sembilan, Yang di-Pertuan Besar. The rest of Their Highnesses are Sultans. The heads of the States of Malacca, Penang and Sarawak are Governors. The Head of State of Sabah is designated Yang di-Pertuan Negara. Each of the 13 States has its own written Constitution, and a single Legislative Assembly. Every State Legislature has powers to legislate on matters not reserved for the Federal Parliament. Each State Legislative Assembly has the right to order its own procedure, and the members enjoy parliamentary privilege. All members of the Legislative Assemblies of the 11 States of Malaya are directly elected from single-member constituencies, except that in the case of Malaya both the Legislative Assemblies and Executive Councils include three non-elected official experts. In the case of Sabah, the elected local authorities, functioning as electoral colleges, elect 18 members to the Legislative Assembly which may not have more than six other nominated members. Sarawak has a three-tier system, with the elected District Councils forming themselves into electoral colleges to elect members to the Divisional Advisory Councils which, in turn, as electoral colleges, elect 36 members to the Council Negri. There may be up to three nominated members in addition to a "standing member" under a previously existing arrangement.

In the case of Sabah and Sarawak, the State Secretary, the State Attorney-General and the State Financial Officer are ex-officio members of the State Legislature as well as the State Executive Council. The Ruler or Governor acts on the advice of the State Government, which advice is tendered by the State Executive Council or Cabinet in precisely the same manner as the Federal Cabinet tenders advice to His Majesty the Yang di-Pertuan Agong.

The Legislative authority of the State is vested in the Ruler or Governor in the State Legislative Assembly. The executive authority of the State is vested in the Ruler or Governor but executive functions may be conferred on other persons by law. Every State has an Executive Council or Cabinet to advise the Ruler or Governor, headed by a Chief Minister (in Malacca, Penang, Sabah and Sarawak) or Mentri Besar (in other States), and collectively responsible to the State legislature. Every State has its own State Civil Service. Each State in Malaya is divided into administrative districts under a District Officer drawn from the Malayan Civil Service or the appropriate State Civil Service. Sabah is divided into four residencies: West Coast, Interior, Sandakan and Tawau with headquarters at Jesselton, Keningau, Sandakan and Tawau respectively. The Island of Labuan is administered by a District Officer responsible direct to the State Secretary in Jesselton. Sarawak is divided into five Divisions, each in charge of a Resident—the First Division, with headquarters at Kuching; the Second Division, with headquarters at Simanggang; the Third Division, with headquarters at Sibuan; the Fourth Division, with headquarters at Miri; the Fifth Division, with headquarters at Limbang.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The two High Courts have original, appellate and revisional jurisdiction as the federal law provides. Above these two High Courts is a Federal Court which has, to the exclusion of any other court, jurisdiction in any dispute between States or between the Federation and any State; and has special jurisdiction as to the interpretation of the Constitution. There is also unlimited right of appeal from the High Courts to the Federal Court and limited right of appeal from the Federal Court to the Yang di-Pertuan Agong who refers such appeals to Her Britannic Majesty's Privy Council. The High Courts consist of two Chief Justices and a number of Puisne Judges. The Federal Court consists of the Lord President together with the two Chief Justices of the High Courts and two Federal Judges. The Lord President and Judges of the Federal Court, and the Chief Justices and Judges of the High Courts, are appointed by the Yang di-Pertuan Agong on the advice of the Prime Minister, after consulting the Conference of Rulers.

The Sessions Courts, which are situated in the principal, urban and rural centres, are presided over by a President, who is a member of the Federal Legal Service and is a qualified barrister or solicitor. Their criminal jurisdiction covers the less serious indictable offences, excluding those which carry penalties of death or life imprisonment. Civil cases are usually heard without a jury. The Presidents are appointed by the Yang di-Pertuan Agong.

The Magistrates' Courts are also found in the main urban and rural centres and have both civil and criminal jurisdiction, although of a more restricted nature than that of the Sessions Courts. The Magistrates consist of officers from either the Federal Legal Service or are seconded from the administration to the Judicial Department for varying periods up to three years. They are appointed by the Rulers of the States in which they officiate on the recommendation of the Chief Justice.

Lord President of the Federal Court of Malaysia: Dato Syed SHEH BARAKBAH, Kuala Lumpur.

Chief Justice of Malaya: Dato Azmi Haji MOHAMED, P.S.B., P.J.K., D.P.M.K.

RELIGION

Islam is the religion of Malaysia, but every person has the right to practice his own religion. All Malays are Muslims. A small minority of Chinese are Christians but most Chinese follow Buddhism, Confucianism and Taoism. Of the Indian community, about 70 per cent are Hindu, 20 per cent Muslim, 5 per cent Christian and 2 per cent Sikh. In Sabah and Sarawak there are many Animists.

MALDIVE ISLANDS

The Maldivé Islands lie 420 miles south-west of Ceylon.

HISTORY

The Sultanate of the Maldivé Islands is an independent state consisting of some 2,000 islands in the Indian Ocean. They achieved independence on July 26th, 1965, after being under British protection since 1887, when the Sultan signed an agreement with the Government of Ceylon; further agreements were signed in 1948 and 1960.

In 1956 the Maldivian and United Kingdom Governments agreed to the establishment of a Royal Air Force staging post on Gan, an island in the southernmost atoll, Addu. The Maldivian Government accorded free and unrestricted use by the United Kingdom Government of Gan Island and of 110 acres of Hittadu Island (for a radio station). Under the 1960 Agreement, the Maldivian Government entrusted Gan and the demarcated area on Hittadu as a free gift to the United Kingdom, together with the free use of Addu Lagoon and the territorial waters adjacent thereto, for a period of 30 years—this period to be extendable by agreement. Since the granting of independence the British Government still retains the facilities in Addu Atoll accorded to them by the 1960 agreement for purposes of Commonwealth defence. The United Kingdom Government undertook to pay the Maldivian Government £100,000, with a further £750,000 spread over five years or more, for economic development. By mid-October 1965 some £308,000 had been paid. The Maldivé Islands were admitted to membership of the Colombo Plan in 1963 and to the United Nations in December, 1965.

STATISTICS

Area (square miles): Total 115; the archipelago consists of 19 atolls, comprising 1,087 islands, of which 210 are inhabited.

Population: (1966 census): 100,883; Malé (capital) 11,561.

Employment: Fishing, Copra-production, and making Coir yarn; about 500 are employed at the British Royal Air Force staging post on Gan Island.

Trade with Ceylon is undertaken by the Maldivian Government. Entire output of Maldivé fish is sold to the Ceylon Government.

Agriculture: Coconut Palms, Papaya, Screwpine, Pomegranates, Pineapples, some Citrus Fruit, Plantains, Breadfruit, and Yams.

Finance: 1 Maldivian Rupee = 1 Ceylon Rupee; Sterling is used in Addu Atoll; Government Expenditure (1964): 19,621,163 Rupees.

Exports (1966—cwts.): Maldivé Fish 51,469; Other Fish 8,122; Fish Meal 15,286; Cowrie Shells 762; Coir Yarn 265; Copra 2,750.

CONSTITUTION

The present constitution was introduced in 1954 and amended in June 1964. The Sultan is Head of State and is elected for life by a special national convention. The Subjects' Council or the Majlis (House of Representatives) is the legislative body, consisting of 54 members, 8 of whom are nominated by the Sultan. The remainder are elected by adult suffrage in Malé and the nineteen atolls. The life of the Majlis is five years. The Prime Minister is appointed by the Sultan on the recommendation of the Majlis. Local administration is discharged by an elected committee for each atoll and by a Kateeb (head man) in each island, appointed by the government.

LAW AND RELIGION

The administration of justice is based on the Islamic Sunni-School of thought and jurisprudence.

The great majority are Sunni Muslims, Islam being the State religion.

MALI

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Mali is a land-locked state in West Africa, bounded by Algeria to the north, Mauritania and Senegal to the west, Guinea and Ivory Coast to the south and Upper Volta and Niger to the east. The climate is hot and dry with average temperatures ranging from 75°-90°F (24°-32°C) and increasing northward into the Sahara Desert. The official language is French but a number of other languages including Bambara and Sonrai are widely spoken. About 65 per cent of the population are Muslims and more than 30 per cent follow animist beliefs, the remainder are Christians. The flag is a vertical tricolour of green, gold and black with a black ideogram of a man on the central gold stripe. The capital is Bamako.

Recent History

Formerly a French colony, Mali became a self-governing Republic within the French Community in 1958 with the title the Republic of Soudan. In 1959 it joined with Senegal to form the Federation of Mali, which became an independent State in June 1960. In August 1960 the Federation was dissolved and the Soudan was proclaimed the Republic of Mali. Although retaining certain economic ties, the new Republic did not join the French Community and severed all diplomatic ties with Senegal. Relations with Senegal were restored in June 1963.

Government

Mali is a Republic with an elected President, who is head of the executive and appoints the Vice-President and Council of Ministers. There is a unicameral legislature, the National Assembly of 80 members. Elections are by direct universal suffrage on a single-party system. The country is divided into twenty-one Districts, each having an Administrator.

Defence

A military academy was established in 1962 to train Malian officers for the Army of 3,500 men. Assistance has come from France, the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. There is a small paratroop unit.

Economic Affairs

Mali is poor in natural resources. A large part of the country lies in the Sahara Desert and is only capable of supporting a sparse nomadic population dependent on its flocks and herds. Only about 20 per cent of the land is suitable for cultivation, the principal crops being rice, millet and groundnuts. Livestock-raising is important and forms one of the chief exports. There is extensive river fishing and dried and smoked fish are exported. The only industries are for the processing of hides and skins and wool. A Five-Year Plan introduced in 1960 is designed to improve agriculture and to build hydro-electric power dams on the Niger as a basis for industrial development. Negotiations began in Paris in January 1967 for the re-entry of Mali into the franc zone.

Transport and Communications

The river Senegal and the river Niger, which is navigable for its total length in Mali of 1,782 kilometres, form the chief arteries of transport. The only railway, running from Koulikoro to Dakar in Senegal was re-opened in 1963. Roads are being improved but only 15 per cent of the 7,500 miles of roads is open all the year. A trans-Saharan route to Algeria is to be built with Chinese assistance. Domestic and international air services are provided by Air Mali and six other airlines.

Social Welfare

The Government maintains anti-smallpox and yellow fever services and there are a number of state hospitals and medical centres.

Education

State education is free but only a fraction of the children of school age are provided for and there is practically no education among the nomads. In 1962, over 100,000 students were receiving some education. A few schools are run by missions. Higher education is usually abroad, students going to France or Senegal, and in some cases, to the U.S.S.R. As a part of the five year Development Plan (1961-66) an intensive literacy campaign is being carried out throughout the country.

Tourism

Although there is no organised tourism, attractions include plentiful hunting and fishing and the legendary city of Timbuktu.

Visas are required to visit Mali by citizens of all countries except France.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), June 20 (Birth of the Prophet), July 14 (National Day), September 22 (Independence Day), December 25 (Christmas).

1968: January 2 (Id ul Fitr), March 10 (Id ul Adha), March 31 (Muslim New Year).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rate

The unit of currency is the Mali Franc of 100 cents, which is at par with the Franc CFA of 100 cents.

Notes: 50, 100, 500, 1,000, 5,000 Mali Francs.

Coins: 5, 10, 25 Mali Francs.

Exchange Rate: 685 Mali Francs = £1 Sterling.

244 Mali Francs = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

(September 1960)

Preamble: The Republic of Mali is indivisible, democratic, secular and social. It upholds the Rights of Man, the liberty of the individual and equality of persons regardless of race, sex or religion. Sovereignty rests with the people and is exercised through equal, secret and universal suffrage. French is the official language.

Head of State: The Head of State is the President, designated by the President of the National Assembly and invested by the Assembly.

Executive Power: Executive power is vested in the President, who appoints the Vice-President and the Council of Ministers.

Parliament: There is a single chamber, the National Assembly, elected for a five-year term of office, which meets in ordinary session twice a year. A motion of censure on the government must be accompanied by a proposal for a new head of government and a programme. Two ministerial crises within twenty-four consecutive months entails the dissolution of the Assembly and the holding of new elections.

Judicial Power is separated from the Executive. A High Court of Justice, composed of elected deputies can try accusations against members of the government.

Revision of the Constitution may be proposed by either the President or by the members of the National Assembly.

Regional Government: Six Regional Governments are to be created, each having its own Governor and elected Assembly.

Senegal-Mali Commission: As a result of the re-establishment of diplomatic and trade relations with Senegal in June 1963, a Commission was set up to supervise agreements concerning commerce, payments, customs and transport. The agreements also cover possible political co-operation.

THE ISLAMIC REPUBLIC OF MAURITANIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Islamic Republic of Mauritania extends east and north from the west coast of Africa with the Spanish Sahara and Algeria to the north, Mali to the east and south and Senegal due south. Most of the country is desert and the climate is hot and dry. The official language is French but most people speak Arabic or Hassaniya. The population is Muslim. The flag carries a crescent and star of gold on a green base. The capital is Nouakchott.

Recent History

Formerly a French colonial territory, Mauritania became independent in November 1960. An unsuccessful claim to sovereignty over Mauritania has been made by Morocco. Mauritania is a member of the United Nations, and the Organization of African Unity. It withdrew from membership of the Afro-Malagasy Common Organisation (OCAM) in July 1965.

Government

The President or Head of State decides and conducts the policy of the country. He is assisted by a Council of Ministers which he appoints. The National Assembly is elected by universal suffrage for a term of five years.

Defence

Nearly a quarter of the 1965 budget was devoted to defence. Considerable military aid is received from France. The permanent armed forces comprise about 1,000 men. A compulsory two-year period of military service was instituted in 1962.

Economic Affairs

The economy is traditionally nomadic. Livestock, particularly sheep, are grazed over a vast area. Some crops are grown, chiefly along the north bank of the Senegal river. The large reserves of iron ore at Fort Gouraud are being exploited by the Société Anonyme des Mines de Fer de Mauritanie—MIFERMA. There are also copper deposits principally at Bakel Akjoujt. A number of oil companies have obtained permits for exploration in Mauritania. Industry is undeveloped. A four-year economic development plan (1963-67) is in operation.

Transport and Communications

The Senegal river is an important artery of transport. A 350-mile railway has been built from Fort Gouraud to Port Etienne for the transport of iron ore. Port Etienne is being developed as a port and as an international airport. There are about 3,000 miles of classified roads and 500-1,000 miles of seasonal tracks. There are a few internal and international air services.

Social Welfare

The National Social Insurance Fund administers family allowances, industrial accident benefits, insurance against occupational diseases, and old-age benefits. A 220 bed hospital came into service at Nouakchott early in 1966.

Education

There are about 250 schools including a few for nomadic families but most children receive little or no schooling.

Tourism

Owing to the hot climate, the tourist season is limited to December to February. There are hotels in the principal towns. Hunting, visiting the oases, and touring the Berber villages are the chief attractions.

Visas are not required to visit Mauritania by the nationals of Andorra, Central African Republic, Chad, Congo (Brazzaville), Dahomey, France, Gabon, Guinea, Ivory Coast, Mali, Monaco, Niger, Senegal, Togo, Upper Volta.

Sport

There is no organised sport. Hunting and fishing are popular.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), June 20 (Birth of the Prophet), November 2 (Leilat al Meiraj), November 28 (National Day).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 2 (Id ul Fitr), March 10 (Id ul Adha), March 31 (Muslim New Year).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The unit of currency is the Franc Communauté Financière Africaine (CFA), divided into 100 centimes.

Notes: 50, 100, 500, 1,000, 5,000 Frs. C.F.A.

SUMMARY OF THE CONSTITUTION

(Promulgated May 20, 1961)

Sovereignty: The State is republican, indivisible, democratic and social. Islam is the religion, and there is freedom of conscience and of religious practice. Government resides in the Mauritanian people who exercise it through representatives and by referendum. Suffrage is universal, equal and secret. It is open to all Mauritanian citizens of both sexes who are over age, and to citizens of the Community resident in Mauritania for a certain time laid down by law.

Government: The President decides and conducts the policy of the country. Both the President and the Vice-President are elected by direct and universal suffrage for five years. The President orders the administration and the internal security forces, exercises power according to law, executes the laws, appoints state officials, and negotiates and concludes settlements with the Community and its member states. He nominates and dismisses the members of the government. The members of the government take the oath in front of the bureau of the National Assembly.

National Assembly: The Assembly is elected for five years. Citizens of the Republic and of the other states in the Community are eligible for seats. The Assembly holds two ordinary sessions a year. The fall of the government comes about by a vote of no-confidence or by a motion of censure.

Constitutional Commission: The President of the Commission is the most senior judge of the judicial hierarchy. Its organisation and functions are determined by law.

Justice: The judiciary is independent of any other authorities, and the magistrates are irremovable. All civil and commercial matters judged according to Islamic civil law. Cases are tried by the High Court of Justice.

Local Government: The organs of local government are the circle and the commune, administered by the local councils.

Revision: The power to revise the constitution is in the hands of the Prime Minister and the members of the Assembly.

MEXICO

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Mexico links North America to the Central American isthmus. Guatemala lies to the south and Cuba is 100 miles east in the Caribbean Sea. The climate varies with altitude. The lowlands are hot and wet with an average temperature of 64°F (18°C) while the highlands are temperate. Much of the north and west is desert. The language is Spanish. About 96 per cent of the population are Roman Catholics and there are some 575,000 Protestants. The flag consists of vertical green, white and red stripes, the central white stripe being charged with the national badge. The capital is Mexico City.

Recent History

In 1938 Mexico took over nearly all foreign oil interests and established the nationalized body PEMEX (Petróleos Mexicanos). (PEMEX now controls all production and distribution of petroleum.) In 1940 President Avila Camacho embarked on a programme of industrialization which was accelerated when Mexico entered the World War in 1942. His successor President Alemán concentrated on expanding Mexico's educational services. Women were granted the franchise in 1953. President Mateos, whose term ended in 1964, opposed the expulsion of Cuba from the Organization of American States in 1962. Also in 1962, he and President Kennedy agreed to renew efforts to solve the long-standing territorial dispute over the Chamizal zone which forms part of El Paso, Texas, U.S.A. Settlement was reached in 1963, by which 437 acres of land were transferred to Mexico. Mexico is a member of LAFTA. In July 1964 Lic. Gustavo Díaz Ordaz was elected President.

Government

The United States of Mexico is a Federal Republic with a Constitution similar to that of the United States. The executive is led by the President, elected for six years, who appoints the Cabinet. The Legislature or Congress consists of two houses, the Senate of sixty members elected for six years and the Chamber of Deputies of 178 members elected for three years. Both Presidential and Congressional elections are by direct popular vote. The Federation is made up of twenty-nine states, each with its own Constitution, Governor and Chamber of Deputies, two Territories and a Federal District (Mexico City) seat of the Federal Government.

Defence

Military service is compulsory for one year at the age of eighteen, conscripts numbering about 250,000 annually. The Army consists of regulars and conscripts and there are small Air Force and Naval units. About 10 per cent of the Budget is devoted to defence.

Economic Affairs

Agriculture accounts for about a quarter of the national income. Over 40 per cent of the arable land requires artificial irrigation. The principal crops are maize, wheat, cotton (Mexico is the world's second largest exporter), sugar-cane and alfalfa. A Five-Year Plan, 1966-70, for agricultural development aims at increasing production enough to satisfy the domestic market by 1968. The forests provide a variety of hard and soft woods. Mexico is one of the world's leading producers of silver and sulphur, and other minerals include coal, zinc, lead and manganese. Oil is of great importance and there are fourteen refineries. There has been considerable expansion of industry and 80 per cent of consumer goods are now made in Mexico. In 1963 a quarter of the record wheat harvest was sold to China. A Five-Year Development Plan introduced in 1966 envisages expenditure of U.S.$7,560 million and aims at an annual growth rate of 6 per cent. Closer ties with the Central American Common Market are in view.

Transport and Communications

Mexico is improving her transport network. Uneconomic railway lines have been replaced by highways, narrow-gauge sections by broad-gauge, and a network of feeder roads serves the main-line railways. There are 14,750 miles of railways and 37,500 miles of roads, including two sections of the Pan American Highway; a new 185-mile highway through south-eastern Mexico was completed in 1965. The difficult terrain encourages air transport and there are 550 airfields. A new international airport is to be built at Zumpango near Mexico City, and a three-year project for airport improvements will cost some U.S.$40.7 million. International air transport is provided by seven national and twenty-two foreign airlines. The chief ports are Veracruz, Tampico and Acapulco and regular shipping services are maintained by Mexican, European and American lines.

Social Welfare

Social welfare is administered by the Mexican Social Security Institute and financed by contributions from employers, employees and the government. Benefits are provided for accident, illness, maternity and old age, and there is a special scheme for state employees. Free medical services are available for the poor.

Education

State education is free and compulsory and covers two years of pre-primary and six years of primary schooling followed by three years at secondary school or specialised institute. Much is being done in the field of adult education and the illiteracy rate is dropping; a sixth of the national budget was allocated to education in 1965. About 250,000 students receive higher education. There are 39 universities.

Tourism

Mexico is much visited by Americans. The country is famous for volcanoes, coastal scenery and the great Sierra Nevada (Sierra Madre) and Rocky Mountain ranges. The relics of the Mayan and Aztec civilizations and of Spanish Colonial Mexico are of historic and artistic interest. There are many festivals. Special residence facilities are offered to foreigners wishing to retire to Mexico. Tourist facilities are being improved in view of the Olympiad in 1968, including work on 5 air ports and provision for some 20,000 more hotel beds.

THE CONSTITUTION

The present Mexican Constitution was proclaimed on February 5th, 1917, at the end of the revolution which began in 1910 against the régime of Porfirio Díaz. Its provisions regarding religion, education and the ownership and exploitation of mineral wealth reflect the long revolutionary struggle against the concentration of power in the hands of the Church and the large landowners, and the struggle which culminated in the thirties in the expropriation of the properties of the foreign oil companies. It has been amended from time to time; the latest amendment converted the Territory of Northern Lower California into a State.

According to the Constitution, the providing of educational facilities is the joint responsibility of the federation, the states and the municipalities. Education shall be democratic, and shall be directed to developing all the faculties of the individual, at the same time imbuing him with a love of his country and a consciousness of international solidarity and justice. Religious bodies may not provide education, except training for the priesthood. Private educational institutions must conform to the requirements of the Constitution with regard to the nature of the teaching given. The education provided by the States shall be free of charge.

Religious bodies of whatever denomination shall not have the capacity to possess or administer real estate or capital invested therein. Churches are the property of the nation; the headquarters of bishops, seminaries, convents and other property used for the propagation of a religious creed shall pass into the hands of the State, to be dedicated to the public services of the federation or of the respective state. Institutions of charity, provided they are not connected with a religious body, may hold real property. The establishment of monastic orders is prohibited. Ministers of religion must be Mexican; they may not criticise the fundamental laws of the country in a public or private meeting; they may not vote or form associations for political purposes. Political meetings may not be held in places of worship.

Article 27 of the Constitution vests direct ownership of minerals and other products of the subsoil, including petroleum and water, in the nation, and reserves to the federal government alone the right to grant concessions in accordance with the laws to individuals and companies, on the condition that they establish regular work for the exploitation of the materials. At the same time, the right to acquire ownership of lands and waters belonging to the nation, or concessions for their exploitation, is limited to Mexican individuals and companies, although the State may concede similar rights to foreigners who agree not to invoke the protection of their governments to enforce such rights. No alien may acquire direct ownership over lands and waters within an area 100 kilometres wide along the frontiers or 50 kilometres along the coast.

The same article declares null all alienations of lands, waters and forests belonging to towns or communities made by political chiefs or other local authorities in violation of the provisions of the law of June 25th, 1856*, and all concessions or sales of communally-held lands, waters and forests made by the federal authorities after December 1st, 1876. The population settlements which lack ejidos, or cannot obtain restitution of lands previously held, shall be granted lands in proportion to the needs of the population. The area of land granted to the individual may not be less than 10 hectares of irrigated or watered land, or the equivalent in other kinds of land.

The owners affected by decisions to divide and redistribute land (with the exception of the owners of farming or cattle-rearing properties) shall not have any right of redress, nor may they invoke the right of amparo in protection of their interests. They may, however, apply to the Government for indemnification. Small properties, the areas of which are defined in the Constitution, will not be subject to expropriation. The Constitution leaves to Congress the duty of determining the maximum size of rural properties.

Monopolies and measures to restrict competition in industry, commerce or public services are prohibited.

The President and Congress. The President of the Republic, in agreement with the Council of Ministers and with the approval of Congress or of the Permanent Committee when Congress is not in session, may suspend constitutional guarantees in case of foreign invasion, serious disturbance, or any other emergency endangering the people.

* The Lerdo Law against ecclesiastical privilege, which became the basis of the Liberal Constitution of 1857.

MEXICO—(THE CONSTITUTION, THE GOVERNMENT)

Congress is composed of a Chamber of Deputies elected every three years, and a Senate whose members hold office for six years. One deputy is elected for every 200,000 inhabitants or for a fraction exceeding 100,000. The Senate is composed of two members for each state and two for the federal district. Regular sessions of Congress begin on September 1st and may not continue beyond December 31st of the same year. Extraordinary sessions may be convened by the Permanent Committee.

The powers of Congress include the right to pass laws and regulations; impose taxes; specify the bases on which the Executive may negotiate loans; declare war; raise, maintain and regulate the organisation of the armed forces; establish and maintain schools of various types throughout the country; approve or reject the budget; sanction appointments submitted by the President of ministers of the Supreme Court and magistrates of the superior courts of the Federal District and the territories; approve or reject treaties and conventions made with foreign powers; and ratify diplomatic appointments.

The Permanent Committee, consisting of 29 members of Congress (15 of whom are deputies and 14 senators), officiates when Congress is in recess, and is responsible for the convening of extraordinary sessions of Congress.

The exercise of supreme executive authority is vested in the President, who is elected for six years and enters upon his office on December 1st of the year of his election. The presidential powers include the right to appoint and remove members of his cabinet, the Attorney-General, the governors of the Federal District and the territories; to appoint, with the approval of the Senate, diplomatic officials, the higher officers of the army, and ministers of the Supreme and higher courts of justice. He is also empowered to dispose of the armed forces for the internal and external security of the Federation.

In common with the Constitutions of Guatemala, El Salvador, Nicaragua and Honduras, the Mexican Constitution provides for the procedure known as juicio de amparo—a wider form of habeas corpus—which the individual may invoke in protection of his constitutional rights.

A section of the Constitution deals with work and social security.

Voting rights are exercised by all Mexicans who are 18 years old and married, or over 21 years if unmarried. Women obtained the right to vote in federal as well as in municipal elections, by an amendment to the Constitution which came into effect in March 1953.

The States. Governors are elected by popular vote in a general election every six years. The local legislature is formed by deputies, who are changed every three years. The judiciary is specially appointed under the Constitution by the competent authority (it is never subject to the popular vote).

Each state is a separate unit, with the right to levy taxes and to legislate in certain matters. The states are not allowed to levy inter-state customs duties.

The Federal District consists of Mexico City and several neighbouring small towns and villages. The Governor is appointed by the President.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The Mexican legal system follows strictly the principle of written law. Accordingly, the definition of rights and duties, and their scope, and the procedure to ensure and enforce them are fixed in codes, such as the civil code, criminal procedure code, etc. The penal code of January 1st, 1930, abolished the death penalty, except for the army.

The courts include the Supreme Court with twenty-one ministers; five Circuit Collegiate Tribunals (Tribunales Colegiados de Circuito), each with three magistrates; six Circuit Unitary Tribunals (Tribunales Unitarios de Circuito), each with six magistrates; and forty-six District Courts with forty-six judges. The system of trial by jury also exists. Ministers of the Supreme Court, circuit magistrates and district judges, once appointed, may only be removed on the ground of misconduct.

MONGOLIAN PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Mongolian People's Republic lies in Central Asia with the Soviet Union to the north and China to the south, east and west. The climate is dry and extreme with winter temperatures well below freezing. The language is Mongolian, which has been written since 1960 in Russian characters. There is no State religion but Buddhist Lamaism is still prevalent. The flag consists of red, blue and red vertical stripes with a golden star and the soyombo emblem on the left-hand stripe. The capital is Ulan-Bator.

Recent History

In 1946 China recognized the independence of the Mongolian People's Republic and this independence was guaranteed by the Sino-Soviet Treaty of 1950. Treaties of friendship and economic assistance have been signed with the Soviet Union and China but Mongolia has much closer ties with the U.S.S.R. than with China. A twenty-year Treaty of Friendship, Co-operation and Mutual Assistance with the Soviet Union was signed in January, 1966. Mongolia was admitted to membership of the United Nations in 1961.

Government

Legislative power is vested in the Great People's Khural, which meets annually and is elected for a three-year term. In the period between sessions the highest organ of state power is the Presidium of the Great People's Khural. The highest executive organ is the Council of Ministers, responsible to the Great People's Khural. Mongolia is divided into 18 Regions for administrative purposes. Elections are by universal suffrage of citizens over 18.

Defence

Defence is undertaken by the Mongolian People's Army. No details of its strength are available.

Economic Affairs

Agriculture and livestock-breeding form the backbone of the country's economy. Sheep, goats, camels, yaks and horses are raised, providing wool, meat and milk. Ploughing of virgin lands made Mongolia self-sufficient in wheat by 1961. The Five-Year Plan for 1961 to 1965 realised its aim of an increase of 11 per cent in livestock and 16 per cent in industry. A Fourth Five-Year Plan, 1966-70, is in force. A new industrial centre has been built with Soviet help at Dharan, where there are rich deposits of iron ore. Other minerals include tin, lead, copper, coal and some gold. Oil has been discovered in the Gobi desert. The main industries are building, footwear and timber products. Trade is overwhelmingly with the Soviet Union. Mongolia is a member of the Council for Mutual Economic Aid (COMECON), and has considerable assistance from East European countries.

Transport and Communications

The Trans-Mongolian railway has a total length of 677 miles. There are 825 miles of motorable roads but much traffic is along the caravan routes by camel, yak, ox and horse. Steamer services operate on the Selenga and Orkhon rivers. Air transport operates to Irkutsk, Moscow and Peking.

Social Welfare

There are about 60 hospitals with 3,500 beds and a number of clinics and medical stations.

Education

Elementary education is compulsory in towns and a seven-year curriculum has been introduced. In 1964 there were more than 140,000 students. Students receiving higher education in 1965 totalled 8,400, plus 2,600 studying abroad. There is one university and an Academy of Sciences.

Sport

Wrestling and horse-riding are the chief sports. Winter sports and weight lifting are also popular.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), July 11 (National Day), November 7.

1968: January 1 (New Year).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rate

The currency unit is the Tughrik of 100 Mongo.

Exchange rate: 12.74 Tughrik = £1 sterling

4.55 Tughrik = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

The Mongolian People's Republic is a sovereign democratic state of working people. All land, natural resources, factories, transport and banking organisations are state property. In addition to state ownership the people have co-operative ownership of public enterprises, especially in agriculture. A limited degree of private ownership is also permitted.

The supreme state power is the Great People's Khural (Assembly), which meets once a year and is elected by universal, direct and secret suffrage of all citizens over the age of 18. It has the power of amending the Constitution (by a two-thirds majority), adopting laws, formulating the basic principles of policy and approving the budget and economic plans. Its Presidium consists of a Chairman (who is Head of State), a Vice-Chairman, a Secretary and four members. The functions of the Presidium are to interpret legislation and issue decrees, ratify treaties and appoint or dismiss (with the approval of the Great People's Khural) the members of the Council of Ministers.

The Council of Ministers is the highest executive power and consists of the Chairman, Vice-Chairmen, Ministers and Chairmen of State Commissions.

Local government is exercised by Khurals and executive bodies at Aimak (Province) and Somon (County) levels.

MOROCCO

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Kingdom of Morocco is situated in the extreme north-west of Africa and is washed by the Atlantic to the west and the Mediterranean to the north. It is bordered by Algeria to the east and the Spanish Sahara to the south. The climate is warm and sunny on the coast, while the plains of the interior are intensely hot in summer. Average temperatures are 81°F (27°C) in summer and 45°F (7°C) in winter for Rabat, and 101°F (38°C) and 40°F (4°C) respectively for Marrakesh. The rainy season in the north is from November to April. The official language is Arabic, but Spanish is widely spoken in the northern regions and French in the rest of Morocco. The established religion is Mohammedanism, to which most people belong, and there are Christian and Jewish minorities. The flag is red with a five-pointed green star in the centre. The capital is Rabat.

Recent History

From 1912 to 1956 Morocco was divided into French and Spanish Protectorates and the International Zone of Tangier. In 1956 the country became independent and Tangier was incorporated in 1960. Previously a Sultanate, Morocco became a Kingdom in 1957. In 1960 King Muhammad V took charge as Prime Minister but died the following year and was succeeded by his son, the present King Hassan II. A more widely-based government was formed and a new constitution, promulgated in 1962, was drawn up. Morocco is a member of the United Nations, the Organization for African Unity and the Arab League.

Government

Under the Constitution of 1962 the King appoints the Prime Minister and Cabinet, approves legislation and has the right to dismiss parliament. The King himself presides at Cabinet meetings. Legislation is carried out by the House of Representatives, elected for four years by universal suffrage, and the House of Councillors, elected by local authorities and other bodies for six years, half the members retiring every three years. The country is divided into seventeen provinces and two prefectures.

Defence

Until independence in 1956 defence was the responsibility of the protecting Powers. Since then Morocco has built up its own Army of about 45,000 men and established a Navy and Air Force. All American bases were evacuated at the end of 1963. Compulsory military service for an eighteen-month period was instituted in March 1966.

Economic Affairs

Agriculture and mining are the mainstays of the economy. The chief crops are wheat, barley and maize. Livestock-raising is important and fishing is well developed. The most important minerals extracted are phosphates, of which Morocco is a leading producer and exporter, and other deposits include iron ore, coal, lead and manganese. Industry is still on a small scale but has been developed under the Five-Year Plan, 1960-64. Talks held in Tangier in 1964 led to the setting up of the Maghreb Permanent Consultative Committee which aims at the co-ordination of the economies of the Maghreb countries. In the Three-Year Development Plan 1965-67 an average increase of 3.5 per cent in the Gross National Product is anticipated. Plans have been drawn up by the Soviet Union for 240-metre dam at Zaouia Narbous on the River Draa to control flood waters and a power station with a capacity of 21 million kWh. As the first step in a policy of agrarian reform King Hassan, in July 1966, distributed 6,000 hectares of land appropriated from French settlers to five hundred fellahs.

Transport and Communications

There are 1,125 miles of railway of which 474 miles are electrified. Excellent roads extend for 8,200 miles with 22,500 miles of motorable tracks. The chief ports are Casablanca, Tangier, and Safi. There are 19 airfields, domestic and international air services being provided by the national airline Royal Air Maroc and thirteen other companies.

Social Welfare

All employees are required to contribute to a Social Welfare Fund which provides against illness, occupational accidents and old age.

Education

There are state primary, secondary and technical schools. In 1961 more than a million children were at school, representing 43 per cent of children of school age. Education for both sexes between 7 and 13 years was made compulsory in 1963. There are three universities and an American university is planned to be opened in Tangier in 1968.

Tourism

Morocco is famous for a hot and sunny climate, its ancient, walled towns, the modern capital Rabat and the modern port Casablanca, for desert and mountains and Atlantic and Mediterranean resorts. Tourists from all over the world visit Fez and Marrakesh.

Visas are not required to visit Morocco by nationals of Arab League states (except Sudan): Argentina, Australia, Bahrain, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Congo, Ghana, Guinea, Indonesia, Ivory Coast, Japan, Liberia, Malagasy Republic, Mali, Mexico, New Zealand, Nigeria, Oman, Peru, Philippines, Puerto Rico, Qatar, Turkey, U.S.A., Venezuela, or any West European country (except Portugal and Spain).

Sport

Football is the most important sport and tennis and skiing are also popular.

THE CONSTITUTION

A Constitution drawn up by King Hassan II was approved by national referendum and promulgated in December 1962. The principal provisions are as follows:

Preamble: The Kingdom of Morocco, a sovereign Moslem State, shall be a part of the Great Maghreb. As an African State one of its aims shall be the realization of African unity. It will adhere to the principles, rights and obligations of those international organisations of which it is a member and will work for the preservation of peace and security in the world.

General Principles: Morocco shall be a constitutional, democratic and social monarchy. Sovereignty shall pertain to the nation and be exercised directly by means of the referendum and indirectly by the constitutional institutions. All Moroccans shall be equal before the law, and all adults shall enjoy equal political rights including the franchise. Freedoms of movement, opinion and speech and the right of assembly shall be guaranteed.

The Monarchy: The Crown of Morocco and its attendant constitutional rights shall be hereditary in the line of H.M. King Hassan II. The King shall have the power to appoint and dismiss the Prime Minister and Cabinet Ministers and shall preside over the Cabinet. He shall promulgate legislation passed by parliament and have the power to dissolve the House of Representatives. The Sovereign is the Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces; makes appointments to civil and military posts; appoints Ambassadors; signs and ratifies Treaties; presides over the Supreme Council for National Development Planning and the Supreme Council of the Judiciary; and exercises the right of pardon.

Parliament: Parliament shall comprise the House of Representatives and the House of Councillors. Members of the House of Representatives shall be elected for four years by universal direct suffrage. One-third of the House of Councillors shall be elected by the Chambers of Agriculture, Commerce and Industry, and Handicrafts as well as by trade unions, two-thirds by an electoral college of members of prefectural and provincial assemblies and communal councils. The Councillors' term of office shall be six years, half the Councillors being re-elected every three years. Parliament shall pass legislation; authorise any declaration of war; and approve any extension beyond thirty days of a state of emergency declared by the Government.

Government: The Government shall be responsible to the King and the House of Representatives, the Prime Minister being empowered to initiate legislation and to exercise statutory powers except where these are reserved to the King.

Relations between the Authorities: The King may request further consideration of legislation by parliament before giving his assent; submit proposed legislation to a referendum by decree; and dissolve the House of Representatives if a Bill rejected by parliament is approved by referendum. He may also dissolve the House of Representatives by decree, but the succeeding House may not be dissolved within a year of its election. The House of Representatives may defeat the Government either by refusing a vote of confidence moved by the Prime Minister or by passing a censure motion; either eventuality shall involve the Government's collective resignation.

Judiciary: The Judiciary shall be independent. Judges shall be appointed on the recommendation of the Supreme Council of the Judiciary presided over by the King.

Revision: Revision of the Constitution shall rest with the Prime Minister and Parliament and shall require approval by referendum.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The Supreme Court (Majlis el Aala), created on September 27th, 1957, is responsible for the interpretation of the law and regulates the jurisprudence of the courts and tribunals of the Kingdom. The Supreme Court sits at Rabat and is divided into four Chambers:

- 2 Civil Chambers.
- 1 Criminal Chamber.
- 1 Administrative Chamber.

President: M. AHMED BAHNINI.

There are 20 Counsellors and 4 General Advocates.

Three Courts of Appeal. The Fez Court covers all the former Southern Zone and comprises:

5 Regional Tribunals.

23 Sadad Tribunals.

The Court of Appeal at Tangier comprises:

3 Regional Tribunals.

16 Sadad Tribunals.

The Court of Appeal at Rabat comprises:

5 Regional Tribunals.

42 Sadad Tribunals.

The Sadad Tribunals pass judgment, subject to appeal, in the cases with relation to the personal and successional statutes of Muslim Moroccans and of Moroccan Jews, and the Regional Tribunals pass judgment in these cases without appeal.

Labour Tribunals settle, by means of conciliation, disputes arising from rental contracts or services between employers and employees engaged in private industry. There are 14 labour tribunals in the Kingdom.

A special court was created in 1965 in Rabat to deal with corruption among public officials.

ROADS

On the coastal plain there is a graded motor road from Muscat north-west to Khor Fakkam and thence inland across the desert to Sharjah (260 miles). The Oil Company and the Development Department also maintain a network of graded motor roads in the interior linking Muscat with the Sharqiyah to the south-east, with Nizwa to the south-west, and with Ibri and Buraimi to the north-west, covering approximately 500 miles. The coast road is being improved to as far north as Sohar.

SHIPPING

Muscat is the largest port with a good natural harbour. It is the port of call for ships on the Basra-Bombay mail route. The number of ships entered and cleared in 1964 was 166 and in 1965 was 174. The British India Steam Navigation Co. runs a fortnightly cargo mail service from Basra to Bombay, calling at all main ports in the Gulf, including Muscat, which is also served by cargo steamers of the F. Strick & Co. Line.

Other ports, for country craft only, are Matrah, Murbat, Sohar, Kaburah and Sur.

CIVIL AVIATION

There are two landing fields (Bait-al-Falaj and Azaibah) near Muscat, and Gulf Aviation Co. Ltd. operates a twice-weekly passenger service to Bahrain, Dubai, Abu Dhabi and Doha. Use of the airfield is subject to at least seventy-two hours' notice and the permission of the Muscat Government.

There are R.A.F. airfields at Salala and Masira Island in the south and the Oil Company operates flights from airfields in the interior.

NEPAL

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Nepal is a landlocked state in the Central Himalayas between India and the Tibetan Autonomous Region of the Chinese People's Republic. The climate varies sharply with altitude. The central Vale of Katmandu is warm and sunny in summer with an average annual temperature of about 52°F (11°C). The official language is Nepali spoken in varying dialects. Over 50 per cent of the population are Hindus and the remainder mainly Buddhist. The flag is red with a blue border, the upper section is charged with a crescent moon and the lower section with a sun in splendour. The capital is Katmandu.

Recent History and Government

Nepal promulgated her first Constitution in 1959 but considerable opposition to the elected government developed, and in 1960 the King took over the administration, dissolved Parliament and suspended parts of the Constitution. A new Constitution based on the Village Councils or Panchayats was introduced in 1962. Under this system the National Assembly consists partly of elected members and partly of nominated members, on the lines of the Pakistan Constitution.

In 1961 Nepal signed a Border Agreement with China defining the Himalayan frontier and a new road links Katmandu and Lhasa, Tibet. In January 1966 Nepal became a member of the International Finance Corporation.

Defence

Nepal has a great fighting tradition and many Nepalis serve with the British Gurkha regiments. Nepal has its own Army of 10,000 men and can recall mercenary units for national service at need.

Economic Affairs

Nepal lies on the southern flanks of the high Himalayas. Much of the country is heavily forested and too steep for cultivation, yet in 1963, 88 per cent of the population lived on agriculture. The agricultural settlements are confined to the Katmandu Valley and wider sections of the river valleys and there is a small exportable surplus of foodstuffs. Nepal has received considerable sums in aid from both the Eastern and Western Blocs. Many irrigation, flood control and hydro-electric projects are in hand. The Third Three-Year Plan, launched in September 1965, aims to double the national income within 15 years. A Land Reform Act which places a ceiling on land holdings and provides tenancy rights was introduced in 1966.

Transport and Communications

There are short sections of motorable roads around Katmandu and a mountain road links the capital with the Indian railhead at Rabaul. Heavy goods on this route are transported by a ropeway from Hetaura to Katmandu. New roads, including routes up to the Himalayan passes and a highway to Tibet, are under construction; but coolies are still the principal means of transport supplemented by ponies, mules and yaks in the more open upper valleys. There are regular air services to India and the larger towns in Nepal. Nepal has telegraph links with both India and Pakistan. In 1964 the Government assumed control from the U.S. of the 26-mile Katmandu-Hetaura ropeway. A 65-mile highway between Katmandu and Kodari was opened in 1965. In April 1966, construction started on an Indian-aided 640-mile East-West Highway through the southern foothills.

Social Welfare and Education

State Welfare services and educational facilities are limited. Existing hospitals and health services are to be extended under the three-year development plan. Primary school pupils total 346,000. There are 660 middle schools. Efforts are being made to increase the number of schools, but the illiteracy rate is still very high. There is one university.

Tourism and Sport

Tourism is being developed by the construction of new tourist centres in the Katmandu valley and regular air services link Katmandu with Pokhara Lake. Here magnificent views of the snow peaks can be obtained and walking and riding parties arranged. Mountaineering requires large-scale organisation and Sherpa porters may be engaged. Big game hunting can be found in the "Terai" of southern Nepal.

Visas are not required to visit Nepal by nationals of India.

Public Holidays

1967: May 4 (Buddha Jayanti), June 11 (King Mahendra's Birthday), July 1 (King Tribhuvan's Birthday), August 30 (Janai Purnima), September 7 (Krishna Jayanti), October 15 (Ghatasthapana), October 20-28 (Dashain), November 13-14 (Thihar), December 16 (Constitution Day).

1968: January 11 (Prithvi Javanti), February 19 (Ba Sant Panchami), February 19 (Shivarati), March 25 (Holi), March 30 (Ram Nawam), April 13 (New Year's Day).

Weights and Measures

Nepal uses the Indian system of weights but has other measures of its own.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The principal unit of currency is the Nepali Rupee (N.R.) which is divided into 100 Pice.

Notes: 1, 5, 10, 100 N.R.

Coins: .01, .02, .04, .05, .10, .20, .25, .50, 1 N.R.

Exchange rates: 21.4 N.R. = £1 sterling.

7.6 N.R. = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

(Promulgated December 1962)

The Constitution of Nepal comprises a constitutional monarchy with executive power vested in the King but ordinarily exercised on the recommendation of a Cabinet consisting of a Prime Minister, selected by the King from among the membership of the National Panchayat or Assembly, and not more than 14 Ministers appointed on the recommendation of the Prime Minister. The Cabinet is responsible to the Panchayat but the King has power to grant or withhold assent to Bills at his discretion.

The Constitution also provides for a State Council which will declare upon the succession or appoint a Regency Council, besides giving advice to the King in times of emergency.

Membership of the National Panchayat is based on the popular elections to local Panchayats, from each of which members choose among themselves representatives for District Panchayats, who may advance by similar stages to Zonal and so to the National Assembly. This system is designed to ensure effective public participation in Government while by-passing the need for political parties. The National Panchayat will be a perpetual body, one-third of the members retiring every two years. Proceedings will be secret but a summary of the proceedings is to be published without delay. Members of the Panchayat are above the law, and any member may introduce legislation, except on financial and military affairs.

Besides enumerating a number of fundamental rights, including the right against exile, the Constitution lays down a series of fundamental duties of the citizen.

The National Panchayat was formed on April 14th, 1963, New Year's Day.

THE CONSTITUTION

The latest constitutional changes for Surinam and the Netherlands Antilles are embodied in the Charter of the Kingdom of the Netherlands, which came into force on December 29th, 1954. Under the Charter the Netherlands, Surinam and the Netherlands Antilles (and Netherlands New Guinea) were constituted as a single realm under the House of Orange.

The Netherlands, Surinam and the Netherlands Antilles each enjoy full autonomy in domestic and internal affairs and are united on a footing of equality for the protection of their common interests and the granting of mutual assistance.

Whenever the Netherlands Council of Ministers is dealing with matters coming under the heading of joint affairs of the realm (in practice mainly foreign affairs and defence) the Council assumes the status of Council of Ministers of the Kingdom. In that event the two Ministers Plenipotentiary appointed by the Government of Surinam and the Netherlands Antilles respectively, take part with full voting powers in the deliberations.

A legislative proposal regarding affairs of the realm and applying to Surinam and the Netherlands Antilles as well as to the Netherlands is sent simultaneously with its submission to the Netherlands Parliament, the States-General, and to the parliamentary bodies of Surinam and the Netherlands Antilles. The latter bodies can report in writing to the States-General on the draft Kingdom Statute and designate one or more special delegates to attend the debates and furnish information in the meetings of the Chambers of the States-General. Before the final vote on a draft the Ministers Plenipotentiary have the right to express their opinion thereupon. If they state their disapproval of the draft, and if, in the Second Chamber a three-fifths majority of the votes cast is not attained, the discussions on the draft are suspended and further deliberations take place in the Council of Ministers of the Kingdom. When special delegates attend the meetings of the Chambers this right devolves upon the delegates of the parliamentary body designated for this purpose.

Executive power in internal affairs is vested in a nominated Council of Ministers, who are responsible to the legislature (Staten). NEW ZEALAND

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

New Zealand lies in the South Pacific Ocean 1,000 miles south-east of Australia. It consists of North Island and South Island, separated by the narrow Cook Strait, and the very small Stewart Island in the south. It also administers a number of Pacific islands. The climate is moderate with an average temperature of 52°F (12°C) except in the far north where higher temperatures are reached. The language is English and the Maori population also uses its own tongue. Thirty-five per cent of the population are Anglicans, 22 per cent Presbyterian and 15 per cent Roman Catholics, with the remainder belonging to other Christian denominations. The flag is the blue ensign, charged with four red stars edged in white in the fly. The capital is Wellington on North Island.

Recent History

Since the war New Zealand has taken an increasing part in world affairs. It has contributed to Asian development through the Colombo Plan. It is a member of the Anzus Pact (Australia, U.S.A. and New Zealand) and of the South East Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO). In 1965 New Zealand and Australia established a free trade agreement, under which duties on selected commodities will be progressively reduced to nil by 1974. In 1962 Western Samoa, formerly administered by New Zealand as a United Nations Trusteeship Territory, attained independence. In 1965 the Cook Islands attained full internal self-government, but retained many links, including common citizenship, with New Zealand. In 1966 the government of Mr. Holyoake was re-elected for a further three-year term.

Government

New Zealand is a self-governing member of the Commonwealth and Queen Elizabeth II is Queen of New Zealand and Head of State. She is represented by a Governor-General who is aided by an Executive Council. The Legislature is unicameral; it consists of a House of Representatives of 80 members (including four Maoris), elected for a term of three years. Voting is by universal adult suffrage, only Maoris being entitled to vote at elections for the four Maori members of Parliament.

Defence

The total strength of regular forces in March 1966, was 12,852—Army 5,549, Navy 2,922, Air Force 4,381.

Economic Affairs

Although the external economy is heavily dependent on the pastoral and agricultural industries (wool, meat and dairy produce are the main exports), factory production now makes up almost two-thirds of total production. Exotic forests, under controlled management, provide a continuing supply of timber for the growing pulp and paper industry. Coal production is sufficient for all local needs and an oil refinery, using imported crude oil, supplies most of the country's petroleum and related products. Light industry continues to expand, the principal branches being food-processing and canning, transport equipment, wood and cork products, textiles and footwear, apparel and made-up textile goods. Hydro-electric power resources are being further developed, and a steel industry, based on the smelting of local iron sands, is being set up. Farms are generally large and highly mechanized.

Transport and Communications

New Zealand's transport services are modern. There are 3,251 miles of railways and 58,000 miles of roads. There are forty ports, the chief of which are Auckland, Wellington, Lyttelton (the port of Christchurch) and Dunedin. Much traffic between North and South Island is by air; there are also roll-on roll-off ferry services linking Wellington with Picton and Lyttelton. The main centres are joined by an air service network, and New Zealand is linked to most major Pacific countries by international airlines.

Social Welfare

New Zealand has a comprehensive social welfare system administered by the Department of Social Security. A tax is levied on all incomes to finance the services, which provide medical care and benefits for old age, blindness, widowhood, orphanhood, unemployment and sickness, as well as superannuation and family benefits. There are reciprocal agreements with Australia and the United Kingdom.

Education

State education is free and, between the ages of seven and fifteen, compulsory. Pre-primary education lasts from three to seven and primary education from seven to twelve after which children pass on to secondary schools until the age of eighteen. Private schools take about 12 per cent of primary and 16 per cent of secondary pupils. Special educational services cater for children in remote areas and for the physically handicapped. There are seven universities. Capital spending on education over the period 1966-70 is estimated at £120 million.

Tourism

New Zealand's tourist attractions are chiefly natural: high mountains, lakes, hot springs and beaches. There are abundant opportunities for outdoor recreation and New Zealand is particularly well-known for its fishing.

Visas are not required to visit New Zealand by nationals of Belgium, Denmark, France, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Monaco, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom.

Public Holidays

1967: June 5 (Queen's Birthday), October 30 (Labour Day), December 25 (Christmas Day), December 26 (Boxing Day).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), April 12-15 (Easter), April 25 (Anzac Day).

Weights and Measures

Imperial weights and measures are in use.

THE CONSTITUTION

Executive Council

The powers, duties and responsibilities of the Governor-General and the Executive Council under the present system of responsible government are set out in Royal Letters Patent and Instructions thereunder of May 11th, 1917. In the execution of the powers and authorities vested in him the Governor-General must be guided by the advice of the Executive Council; but if in any case he sees sufficient cause to dissent from the opinion of the Council, he may act in the exercise of his powers and authorities in opposition to the opinion of the Council, reporting the matter to Her Majesty without delay, with the reasons for his so acting.

In addition to the Governor-General, the Executive Council consists of all the ministers of the Crown. Two members, exclusive of His Excellency or the presiding member, constitute a quorum. Authority is given in the Civil Lists for the appointment of one or two Maoris or half-castes as members of the Executive Council representing the Maori race.

House of Representatives

The number of members constituting the House of Representatives is eighty—seventy-six Europeans and four Maoris. They are designated "Members of Parliament".

Quinquennial Parliaments, instituted under the Constitution Act, were abolished by the Triennial Parliaments Act, 1879, which fixed the term at three years. General elections have been held at three-yearly intervals since 1881, with a few exceptions.

Since the abolition of plural voting in 1889 and the introduction of women's suffrage in 1893 every person twenty-one years of age or over has had the right to exercise a vote in the election of members for the House of Representatives. Since 1957 to be registered as an elector a person must be a British subject or Irish citizen, ordinarily resident in New Zealand at some period, having resided continuously in New Zealand for at least a year and who has resided continuously for three months or more in the electoral district for which he claims to vote. A system of compulsory registration of all electors except Maoris was introduced at the end of 1924; it was introduced for Maoris in 1956.

There are 76 European electoral districts and four Maori electoral districts. Only Maoris may vote in Maori district elections. A Maori half-caste is entitled to be registered as an elector of a Maori or a European electoral district.

By the Electoral Amendment Act, 1937, which made provision for a secret ballot in Maori elections, Maori electors were granted the same privileges, in the exercise of their vote, as European electors.

For the system of local government administration a modified form of franchise exists, a ratepaying qualification being necessary for the exercise of votes on financial issues.

RADIO AND TELEVISION

New Zealand Broadcasting Corporation: P.O. Box 98, Wellington, f. 1962; Chair. C. A. MCFARLANE; Members REEVES HARRIS, R. J. LAURENSEN, J. B. PRICE, D. F. C. SXTON, G. E. STOCK, R. K. TRIMMER; Dir.-Gen. of Broadcasting G. H. STRINGER.

The New Zealand Broadcasting Corporation is a financially self-supporting, statutory body, controlling both sound and television broadcasting in New Zealand. It came into existence in 1962, having previously been a government department. The three-man Corporation is appointed by the Governor-General.

RADIO

The Corporation operates throughout the country 43 medium-wave stations broadcasting commercial, part-commercial and non-commercial programmes. The Corporation is the sole purchasing authority of programmes and there are no programme contractors involved in the commercial transmissions. The Service is financed partly from radio licence fees and partly from the sale of advertising. Two short-wave transmitters broadcast non-commercial programmes mainly to the Pacific Islands, the Ross Dependency and Australia (Radio New Zealand).

In 1966 there were 644,447 radio licences.

TELEVISION

There are four television stations operated by the New Zealand Broadcasting Corporation: Auckland, Wellington, Christchurch and Dunedin. They broadcast 50 hours weekly and Saturday afternoons, with commercial programmes on alternate nights. Occasional extra programmes during the day are transmitted. Six repeater stations are either in service, or planned, to extend the present transmissions to other parts of the country.

There were 470,000 television licences in 1966.

NICARAGUA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The largest country of the Central American isthmus, Nicaragua, is the most sparsely populated. Bounded by the Pacific Ocean to the west and the Caribbean to the east, the country is bisected by a mountain range, with swampy marshland near to the Caribbean. Nicaragua's neighbours are Honduras to the north and Costa Rica to the south. The climate is tropical, with a mean average temperature of 78°F (25.5°C). The rainy season extends from May to October. The national language is Spanish and English is widely understood. There is no state church but there are many Roman Catholics. The flag consists of three stripes—blue, white, blue—with the Republic's coat of arms in a triangle at the centre. Managua is the capital.

Recent History

Nicaragua took part in the second world war and in 1945 attended the San Francisco Conference, becoming one of the founder members of the United Nations. In 1956 General A. Somoza, who had led the country for twenty years, was assassinated. His son, Louis A. Somoza, succeeded him as President and remained in this office until his retirement in February 1963. He was succeeded by René Schick Gutiérrez who died in August 1966. Dr. Lorenzo Guerrero assumed the presidency until the elections of February 1967 when Gen. Anastasio Somoza Debayle was elected President after a campaign marked by violent protests from the opposition.

Government

Nicaragua is headed by a President, elected for five years by universal suffrage. Assisted by a Council of eleven Ministers, the President exercises executive power but is responsible to the Chamber of Deputies and Senate. Deputies and Senators are elected for six-year terms.

Defence

A member of the Organization of American States and of the Organization of Central American States, Nicaragua has an army of 300 officers and 3,500 other ranks. There are 7,000 reserves who also perform police duties. In 1965 Nicaragua concluded a military bloc alliance with El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras.

Economic Affairs

Nicaragua is primarily an agricultural country. Cotton and coffee dominate the export list, with cotton accounting for about half the annual exports; sugar, cattle, timber and gold are also important. The National Development Institute lends state money to exploit the mineral resources (silver, copper, iron as well as gold). Urban industry is on a relatively modest scale, but increasing; it includes a petroleum refinery, textile mills, tobacco, cement and soluble coffee plants, dairies and a fairly wide range of processing plants. The National Economic and Social Development Plan, 1965-69, aims at an average increase of 7 per cent in G.D.P. Early in 1966 a medium-term Plan for Immediate Action was put into force; it is aimed at stimulating agricultural and industrial production.

Transport and Communications

There are some good main roads, the most important being the 229-mile North-South stretch of the Pan American Highway. State railways (270 miles) join important towns and private lines (60 miles) serve the banana plantations. Several rivers are navigable to small craft and steamers serve towns on Lake Nicaragua. LANICA, the state airline, operates internal and international services. Improvements costing 12 million córdobas are to be carried out at Las Mercedes airport, Maragua, in 1967.

Social Welfare

There is a compulsory national health insurance scheme for wage-earners in Managua, and health expenditure ranks second only to education in the budget. A campaign against malaria has been successful.

Education

Primary education is available to children between six and 13. It is not compulsory. The Government runs about 2,023 primary schools and eleven secondary schools. Private schools number over 100 primary and 22 secondary. There are many commercial schools and two universities.

Tourism

The mountain peaks, the occasionally active volcanoes, the Huellas de Acahualinca outside Managua displaying ancient footprints of men fleeing from the volcanic lava, the mineral baths of Tipitapa and abundant sea, lake and river fishing—these are the principal tourist attractions of Nicaragua.

Visas are not required to visit Nicaragua by nationals of Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras.

Sport

Baseball and basketball are widely played. Swimming and fishing are popular.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), May 27 (Army Day), September 14 (Battle of San Jacinto), September 15 (National Independence Day), October 12 (Columbus Day), December 8 (Immaculate Conception), December 25 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), February 1 (Air Force Day), April 12-15 (Easter).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is officially used, although the following Spanish and local measures are in general use also:

Length: cuarta = 8.13 inches vara = 2.76 feet
cuadra = 91.9 yards
legua = 2.6 or 3 miles
Weight: libra = 1.014 lbs.
arroba = 25.362 lbs.
quintal = 101.44 lbs.

NICARAGUA—(INTRODUCTORY SURVEY, STATISTICAL SURVEY)

Volume: liquid gallon = 0.888 gallons
 Area: manzana = 1.74 acres caballeria = 27.9 acres
 legua cuadrada = 12 sq. miles Capacity: fanega = 24 medios medio = 500 cu. inches

THE CONSTITUTION

The present Constitution of Nicaragua was promulgated in November 1950. Legislative power is vested in a Congress of two houses. The upper house consists of 16 Senators, elected for six years, and the lower house of 42 Deputies, also elected by popular vote for a term of six years. Ex-Presidents of the Republic are life members of the Senate.

Executive power is vested in the President, elected for five years, who exercises his functions through a Council of Ministers. A decree issued in 1959 stated that the person who held the office of President of the Republic in the preceding term may not be elected President for the following term.

NIGER

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Niger is a landlocked state in West Africa stretching from Algeria and the Tropic of Cancer in the north to Nigeria in the south. Mali and Upper Volta lie to the west and Chad to the east. The climate is hot and dry with an average temperature of 84°F (28°C). The official language is French and the principal native languages are Taurecheg, Poular and Haouassa. About 85 per cent of the population are Muslims, most of the remainder follow animist beliefs and there is a small Christian minority. The flag is a horizontal tricolour of orange, white and green, the central white stripe being charged with an orange disc. The capital is Niamey.

Recent History

Formerly part of French West Africa, Niger became a self-governing Republic within the French Community in 1958. Independence outside the Community was attained in 1960. Close economic and political ties with France have been retained and a Treaty of Co-operation was signed in 1961. Niger is a member of the United Nations, the Conseil de l'Entente and the Organisation Commune Africaine et Malgache (OCAM). In 1964 agreement was reached with the other bordering countries for development of Lake Chad.

Government

Niger is a Republic with an elected President who is head of the executive and is assisted by a Council of Ministers, which he appoints. The unicameral National Assembly of 50 members is elected for a five-year term by universal adult suffrage on the single party system. The country is divided for local government into sixteen Departments or "Cercles", each with an Administrator appointed by the President.

Defence

National armed forces on a small scale were created in 1961 and consist of Infantry and an Air Force. France provides assistance in training and equipment. Niger has mutual defence arrangements through the Conseil de l'Entente and the defence pact of the former Union Africaine et Malgache (now OCAM).

Economic Affairs

The economy is agricultural and 90 per cent of the people are dependent on agriculture and the raising of livestock. Livestock is the main source of wealth. The herds of cattle, sheep and goats are large but often of poor quality. Much of the land is desert. The chief crops are millet, sorghum, manioc and groundnuts. Mineral deposits are sparse but iron, tin and limestone are mined in small quantities. Industry is on a small scale and accounts for only two per cent of production.

Transport and Communications

There are no railways. Two highways cross the country from east to west and from north to south giving access to neighbouring countries. The river Niger is navigable for 187 miles and forms one of the main arteries of transport. There are five airports used by four airlines.

Social Welfare

There are two hospitals, twenty-one medical centres and a number of clinics and dispensaries.

Education

Education is free but there are insufficient schools and only about 6 per cent of the children of school age receive education. In 1961 there were 298 schools. Scholarships are provided for higher education in France and Senegal.

Tourism

There is an abundance of wild life and hunting is the chief tourist attraction. Lake Chad also provides game fishing.

Visas for visits to Niger are not required by subjects of the following countries: Andorra, Central African Republic, Chad, Congo (Brazzaville), Dahomey, France, Gabon, Guinea, Ivory Coast, Mali, Mauritania, Monaco, Senegal, Togo, Upper Volta.

Sport

There is very little organised sport but football is popular.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), May 4 (Ascension Day), May 15 (Whit Monday), June 20 (Birth of the Prophet), August 3 (Independence Day), August 15 (Assumption), November 1 (All Saints Day), December 18 (Republic Day), December 25 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 2 (Id ul Fitr), March 10 (Id ul Adha), March 31 (Muslim New Year), April 9 (Ashoura), April 12 (Good Friday), April 15 (Easter Monday).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rate

The unit of currency is the Franc Communauté Financière Africaine (Franc CFA).

Notes: 50, 100, 500, 1,000, 5,000 Francs CFA.

Coins: 1, 2, 5, 10, 25 Francs CFA.

THE CONSTITUTION

(November 1960)

Preamble: Affirms principles of democracy, human rights and civil liberties. The Republic is a secular state and sovereignty belongs to the people who exercise it through their representatives or by means of referenda. There is universal adult suffrage. French is the official language.

Head of State: The Head of State is the President, who is elected for a term of five years by direct, universal suffrage and is eligible for re-election. He appoints the ministers, who are not members of the National Assembly. He is President of the Council of Ministers, head of the administration and armed forces. He may put legislation to a referendum.

Executive Power: Executive power is vested in the President and the Council of Ministers.

Legislative Power: Legislative power rests with the National Assembly, which is elected at the same time as the President. It normally holds two sessions annually. Legislation may be introduced by either the members or by the President, who may demand a second reading of a Bill.

Judicial Power: The Supreme Court has four Chambers, a constitutional chamber, a civil section, the audit section and the High Court of Justice. The High Court of Justice is composed of deputies elected by and from the National Assembly and has power to impeach the President or Ministers.

Economic and Social Council: An advisory body.

Conseil de l'Entente: In May 1959 Niger joined with the Ivory Coast, Dahomey and Upper Volta to form the Conseil de l'Entente.

FEDERATION OF NIGERIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Federation of Nigeria is a West African coastal state within the Gulf of Guinea, with Niger to the north and flanked by Dahomey and Cameroon. The climate is tropical in the south with an average temperature of 90°F (32°C) and high humidity. It is drier and semi-tropical in the north. Rainfall reaches more than 150 inches in parts of the south-east. The official language is English. Hausa, Ibo and Yoruba are spoken in the north, east and west respectively. Mohammedanism is the main religion in Northern and part of Western Nigeria. Some of the population follow animist beliefs and about a quarter are Christians. The flag consists of vertical bands of green, white and green. The capital is Lagos.

Recent History

Formerly a British Colony and Protectorate, Nigeria became a Federation in 1954. The first All-African Executive Council was elected in 1958 and independence was attained in 1960. In 1961 the British-administered Trust Territory of the Northern Cameroons voted by plebiscite to join the Federation and was incorporated into the Northern Region. During 1963 a new Region, The Mid-West, was inaugurated as a result of plebiscites in parts of the Western Region. The N.C.N.C. party won elections held in February 1964 for its first parliament. In October 1963 Nigeria became a Republic within the Commonwealth. The Census of November 1963, which cancelled a census held the previous year, showed a very large increase in population and caused sharp political controversy. In January 1966 civil Government was brought to an end by the overthrow and death of two Regional Premiers and of the Federal Prime Minister, Alhaji Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa. A Military Government was set up by the Army Commander, Major-General Aguiyi-Ironsi. The federal system was abolished by Major-General Ironsi in May 1966, and a unitary form of Government was introduced. Inter-communal violence, which was prevalent throughout the year, resulted in dislocation of the country and the breakdown of central authority. Major-General Ironsi was killed in July 1966 and his successor, Lieutenant-General Gowon, revived the federation. A rift developed between the Federal Government and the Military Governor of the Eastern Region, Lt. Col. Odumegwu-Ojukwu, over long-term constitutional arrangements, particularly concerning the allocation of the country's financial resources. Some agreement was reached at a meeting of the Military Governors at Aburi, Ghana (January 1967). On March 17th the Federal Government issued a constitutional decree containing the basis for a new constitution. However, the Eastern Regional Government continued to press its claims, e.g. for separate collection of revenue in the East and for Eastern administration of ten federal statutory bodies. In April, a separate Court of Appeal was set up in the Eastern Region. The Federal Government banned flights to Enugu and placed fiscal restrictions on the Eastern Region.

Government

The Federation of Nigeria comprises the four groups of provinces—Northern, Eastern, Western and Mid-Western. The constitutional decree of March 1967 vests executive and legislative power in the Supreme Military Council, composed of the Military Governors of the four regions, the Military Administrator of the Federal Territory, the heads of services and the Inspector-General of Police. In important matters, the concurrence of all four military Governors is necessary. The Military Governors exercise executive and legislative powers in their own regions, enjoy the right to appoint judges for their regions, and their authority is limited only by the provision that they do not employ their regional powers to endanger the continuance of the federation.

Defence

The Army has five battalions. A small Navy carries out coastal defence and anti-smuggling patrols. A small Air Force is being built up with assistance from Federal Germany. The total armed strength of Nigeria was estimated at 11,500 in 1966. It is planned to divide the Army into area commands, corresponding to the present regions. (March 1967.)

Economic Affairs

Agriculture is the mainstay of the economy and provides about 80 per cent of all exports. The chief products are cocoa, palm oil and kernels, groundnuts, cotton and rubber. There is extensive exploitation of the forests for various timbers. Minerals include tin, columbite, coal, iron ore and crude mineral oil, all of which are processed in Nigeria. The value of exports of oil has risen steeply in recent years, reaching £N93 million in 1966. Industry is diversified, and brewing, aluminium products, cement and cigarettes are important. The First National Development Plan envisages the expenditure of £809 million by 1968 and includes a scheme for a hydro-electric dam across the river Niger. Nigeria became an associate member of the European Common Market (EEC) in July 1966. Centrally collected revenue is divided between the Federal Government, the Regional Governments and a Distributable Pool used on a fixed percentage by each Region. The former retains 70 per cent of import and excise duties, except on petrol and tobacco, a percentage of the royalties on tin and oil, and the income from company taxation. The regions receive the full export duties on their own produce, import and other duties on petrol and tobacco, personal taxes (except in Lagos), some taxes on agriculture, and some of the royalties on tin and oil.

Transport and Communications

There are 2,000 miles of railways and over 40,000 miles of roads. The Niger and other rivers are navigable for over 4,000 miles. The chief ports are Lagos and Port Harcourt. An internal air network links the principal towns, and international services are provided by Nigerian Airways and nine foreign lines.

Social Welfare

The National Provident Fund provides against sickness, retirement and old age. A scheme of retirement pensions and other benefits covers Government employees.

Education

Education in the Regions is the responsibility of the Regional Governments. The Federal Government is responsible for education in Lagos and the Universities of Ibadan and Lagos. In 1964, there were 14,976 primary schools with 2,849,488 pupils. There are five universities. A sixth university is to be built at Port Harcourt.

Tourism

Tourism is being developed and the Nigeria Tourist Association was set up in 1963. The country has fine coastal scenery, thick forests and a stimulating climate on the northern plateau. Nigerian traditional art has exceptional richness and diversity.

Visas are not required to visit Nigeria by nationals of Cameroon, Chad, Dahomey, Ireland, Ivory Coast, Morocco, Niger, Togo, United Kingdom and Commonwealth countries.

Sport

Football, boxing, wrestling, athletics, tennis and swimming are the most popular sports. Two Nigerian boxers have been world champions.

Public Holidays

1967: June 20 (Birth of the Prophet), October 1 (Independence Day), December 25-26 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 2 (Id ul Fitr), March 10 (Id ul Adha), March 27 (Youth Day, Eastern Region only), April 12-16 (Easter).

Weights and Measures

Imperial weights and measures are officially in force and a variety of native weights and measures are used in local commerce.

Currency and Exchange Rate

The unit of currency is the Nigerian Pound of 20 Shillings.

Notes: 5s, 10s, £N1, £N5.

Coins: ½d, 1d, 3d, 6d, 1s, 2s.

THE CONSTITUTION

A new Constitutional Decree was published in Lagos on March 17th, 1967, to replace all earlier Decrees. The following are its principal provisions:

1. Legislative and executive power is vested in the Supreme Military Council. The Chairman of the Council is the head of the Military Government. The Supreme Military Council is composed of the Regional Military Governors and the Military Administrator of the Federal Territory; the Heads of the Nigerian Army, Navy and Air Force, the Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces and the Inspector-General of Police or his Deputy.

2. The Supreme Military Council can delegate powers to a Federal Executive Council, having the same composition with the addition of the Deputy Inspector-General of Police. The Federal Attorney-General and the Secretaries to Federal and Regional Governors, as well as other appropriate officials, may attend the meetings of either Council in an advisory capacity.

3. On certain matters of legislation, the concurrence of all four Military Governors is required. These matters include any decrees affecting or relating to the territorial integrity of a Region, or altering entrenched clauses of the 1963 Constitution, or affecting the Federation in respect of trade, commerce, transport, industry, communications, labour, the public service or public finance (including approval of new capital projects in Federal estimates), or affecting external or security affairs, or affecting the professions and higher education.

4. Special powers are given to the Supreme Military Council to override Regional legislation, with the concurrence of at least three Military Governors, if that legislation impedes the exercise of Federal authority or constitutes a danger to the continuance of Federal Government in Nigeria.

5. The creation of new Regions will be treated as an entrenched clause of the Constitution.

6. Certain additional matters covered by the new Decree include: the revived power to appoint local authority police; one Federal Supreme Court judge will be appointed by each Region; decrees made since January 1966 may be repealed or amended by individual Military Governors; the new Decree cannot be challenged in a court of law; power of appointment to higher Civil Service posts is in the hands of the Supreme Military Council, acting on the advice of the Public Service Commission.

POLITICAL PARTIES

(Banned, May 1966, until 1969)

In the elections of December 1964 the chief political parties formed two groups, the Nigerian National Alliance (N.N.A.) and the United Progressive Grand Alliance (U.P.G.A.).

Northern People's Congress (N.P.C.): Kaduna; f. 1946; dominant party in Northern Nigeria; aims: regional development and self-government based on a progressive Emirate system; Pres. (vacant); Gen. Sec. Alhaji AHMAN GALADIMAN PATEGI.

With the N.P.C., the following parties formed the N.N.A.:

Nigerian National Democratic Party (N.N.D.P.): f. 1964; a coalition of U.P.P. and some N.C.N.C. members; Pres. (vacant); Gen. Sec. A. M. A. AKINLOYE; publ. Imole Owuro (Morning Star).

Mid-West Democratic Front (M.D.F.): Benin; f. 1963; comprises the Mid-West branch of the United People's Party, and the Mid-West People's Congress; formally allied to the Northern People's Congress; won 11 seats in the Mid-West House of Assembly, February 1964.

NIGERIA—(POLITICAL PARTIES, JUDICIAL SYSTEM)

Niger Delta Congress: Port Harcourt; N.N.A. faction led by HAROLD BIRIYE.

Dynamic Party: Enugu; Aims: benevolent dictatorship; Leader Dr. CHIKE OBI.

National Convention of Nigerian Citizens (N.C.N.C.): National Headquarters, 2 Ikododu Road, Yaba; f. 1944 as National Council of Nigeria and the Cameroons, name changed March 1962; dominant party in Eastern and Mid-West Nigeria; Aims: creation of a "Federal Republic of Nigeria", socialism and a higher standard of living, freedom and security; Pres. Dr. MICHAEL I. OKPARA; Nat. Sec. FREDERICK S. McEWEN; Admin. Sec. CHUDI AKUNYILI; publ. The Cock (bi-weekly).

With the N.C.N.C., the following parties formed the U.P.G.A.:

Northern Elements' Progressive Union: Kano; principal opposition party in Northern Nigeria; Leader MALLAM AMINU KANO; publ. The Daily Comet.

Action Group Party (A.G.): Oke-Ado, Ibadan, P.O. Box 136; f. 1950; formerly the dominant party in W.

Nigeria; aims: democratic socialism, regional autonomy within the Federation of Nigeria; Federal Pres. Alhaji ADEGBENRO; Federal Sec. S. G. IKOKU.

United Middle Belt Congress: Jos; opposition party of Northern Nigeria; Aims: minimum wage; nationalisation of tin mines, systemisation of tax structures, creation of a "Middle Belt State"; Leader J. S. TARKA.

Niger Delta Congress: Port Harcourt; U.P.G.A. faction led by Prince J. D. FUBARA DAKABAL.

The following parties fought the elections outside the major alliances:

Socialist Workers' and Farmers' Party (S.W.A.F.P.): Lagos; f. 1963; pro-Soviet; Leader Dr. TUNJI OTEGBENYE.

Marxist-Leninist Party of All Nigerian Toilers: Ibadan; f. 1964; Leader MICHAEL IMOUDU.

Niger Delta People's Party: Benin; f. 1965; Leader Prince T. N. PERETU.

Warri United Party: Warri; f. 1965; Chair. JAMIDI AWANI.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The High Courts of Justice are superior Courts of Record and have unlimited jurisdiction in the first instance except in certain cases which are reserved to the Federal Supreme Court, for example, disputes between any of the component parts of the Federation involving any question as to the existence or extent of any legal right, and matters arising under any Treaty or affecting Consular Officers or any international organisation outside Nigeria. The High Courts also have jurisdiction to hear appeals from Magistrates' and Native Courts.

The Magistrates' Courts have original jurisdiction in a large variety of civil and criminal cases, some also have jurisdiction to hear appeals from Native Courts. The offices of Chief Magistrate have been retained in all areas.

Customary Courts have been retained throughout the Federation. The law administered in those Courts is, generally speaking, the Native Law and Custom prevailing in the area of their jurisdiction.

The Federal Supreme Court is the final Court of Appeal in Nigeria, consisting of the Chief Justice and eight Justices of the Supreme Court.

The Judges of the Federal Supreme Court and of the High Courts of Justice are appointed by the President. Judges of the High Courts of the Provinces are appointed by the Governor of each region.

PAKISTAN

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Islamic Republic of Pakistan consists of the Provinces of West and East Pakistan, separated by over 1,000 miles of Indian territory. West Pakistan is bordered by India to the east and Afghanistan and Iran to the west. It has a short frontier with China in the far north-east. The climate is hot and dry with an average temperature of 80°F (27°C) except in the mountains where the winters are cold. East Pakistan occupies the eastern part of the old, pre-1947 Province of Bengal. It is almost entirely surrounded by Indian territory. The climate in East Pakistan is tropical with an average temperature of 80°F (27°C) and monsoon rainfall of 60 to 100 inches from June to September. The national languages are Urdu in the West and Bengali in the East; English is extensively used. The state religion is Islam, embracing nearly 85 per cent of the population, the remainder being mainly Hindu, Christian and Buddhist. The flag is dark green with a vertical white bar in the hoist, charged with a crescent moon and five-pointed star. The national capital is the new city of Islamabad (created July 1965). The capital of West Pakistan is Lahore and that of East Pakistan is Dacca.

Recent History

Pakistan was created as a sovereign, independent Muslim State under its founder-leader Mahomed Ali Jinnah by the partition in 1947 of the former British India into the states of India and Pakistan. The partition started a period of frontier and religious battles and movements of population in which hundreds of thousands of Muslims and Hindus lost their lives. For some years Pakistan operated a parliamentary form of government through political parties but this system ceased in 1958 when the Constitution was abrogated and martial law imposed. Field Marshal Mohammed Ayub Khan was appointed Martial Law Administrator and later assumed the Presidency. In 1959 a new concept of Basic Democracies was introduced as the foundation of a new form of democratic local and national government. In 1962 a new Constitution embodying this principle was proclaimed and a measure of party freedom restored. There has been a long and still unsettled (May 1967) dispute with India over the mountain territory of Kashmir, but a further dispute over the distribution of the waters of the Six Rivers of the Indus Basin was settled in 1960 with the signing by Pakistan and India of the Indus Waters Treaty. In 1963 an agreement was signed with China demarcating the border between China and Pakistan. This led to closer relations with China in other matters. In January 1965 President Ayub Khan was re-elected for a further five years. Increasing border incidents between India and Pakistan culminated in the outbreak of hostilities in August 1965. A peace meeting arranged in January 1966 at Tashkent, U.S.S.R., through Soviet mediation, led to the signing of a Declaration providing for the withdrawal of troops to the pre-hostilities positions, under UN observation.

Government

Pakistan is a Republic based on the principal of Basic Democracies. This is a four-tiered system of electoral units, the Basic Democracies being elected by universal adult suffrage, and in turn choosing the President and the members of Provincial and National Assemblies. Executive power is vested in the President, assisted by a Cabinet nominated by him. The central Legislature is the National Assembly of 156 members including six women. The Provinces of West and East Pakistan each have a Governor appointed by the President and a Provincial Assembly of 155 members including five women.

Defence

The armed forces consist of an Army, Navy and Air Force. About 45 per cent of the Budget is devoted to defence. Pakistan is a member of the Central Treaty Organisation (CENTO) and of the South-East Asia Treaty Organisation (SEATO).

Economic Affairs

Pakistan is an agricultural country, about 90 per cent of the population being directly dependent on agriculture. Extensive irrigation works have been undertaken in both West and East Pakistan. The principal crops are rice, jute, wheat and cotton. Minerals include limestone, coal and rock salt. There are many jute and cotton mills and heavy industries are being developed. In 1964 Pakistan took part in setting up the Regional Co-operation for Development, an organisation for mutual assistance between herself, Iran and Turkey. The second Five-Year Plan, which ended in 1965, exceeded its target by achieving a growth rate of 29 per cent. A third Five-Year Plan (1965-70) is in progress. The Indus Basin water harnessing scheme, now under construction, will replace waters supplied by the Ravi, the Beas and the Sutlej.

Transport and Communications

Pakistan's rail and road systems, which were developed before Partition, have had to be adjusted to the new frontiers although some rail transit facilities have been negotiated with India. There are 5,327 miles of railways in West Pakistan and 1,712 miles in East Pakistan. Inland waterways are very important in East Pakistan where 2,670 miles are navigable. The principal port of West Pakistan is Karachi, that of East Pakistan Chittagong. There are regular air services between the two Provinces and internal services are being extended, by both helicopters and aeroplanes. International air transport is provided by Pakistan International Airways Corporation (PIA) and twenty foreign lines.

Social Welfare

Social welfare services are run mainly through the Development Schemes and Urban Community Projects. The National Council of Social Welfare provides care for children, women, delinquents and the handicapped. Government support is given to voluntary bodies providing social relief.

A rural works programme which was started in East Pakistan in 1962 was extended to West Pakistan in 1964 with continuing success. The Report of the Commission on the Eradication of Social Evils in July 1965 was accepted by the Government. The recommendations allow for major reforms.

PAKISTAN—(INTRODUCTORY SURVEY, STATISTICAL SURVEY)

Education

Education is provided by both Government and private bodies. There are still insufficient schools, but a ten-year programme aims to provide places for three out of every five children. In 1963 there were 58,294 primary schools with 6.05 million pupils and 7,421 secondary schools with 2.06 million pupils. There are many vocational and teacher-training colleges and ten universities.

Tourism

The Himalayan hill stations of West Pakistan provide magnificent scenery, a fine climate and excellent opportunities for field sports, mountaineering and winter sports.

Visas are not required to visit Pakistan by nationals of Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, German Federal Republic, Greece, Iran, Japan, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Tunisia and Turkey. The period of exemption is three months.

Sport

Pakistan's principal sports are hockey, cricket, football, wrestling and squash rackets. Polo originated in Chitral; athletics and swimming are also popular.

Public Holidays

1967: June 21 (Eid-i-Millad-un-Nabi), August 14 (Independence Day), September 11 (Anniversary of Death of Quaid-i-Azam), October 27 (Revolution Day), December 25 (Birthday of Quaid-i-Azam and Christmas).

1968: January 6 (Jamatul-Wida), January 12-13 (Eid-ul-Fitr), March 21-22 (Eid ul-Azha), March 23 (Pakistan Day), April 21 (Muharram (Ashura)).

Weights and Measures

The Imperial System of measures is in force.

1 maund = 82.27 lb.

1 seer = 2.057 lb.

1 tola = 180 grains

Currency and Exchange Rates

The unit of currency is the rupee, which is divided into 100 paisa.

Notes: 1, 5, 10, 100, 500 Rs.

Coins: 1, 2, 5, 10, 25, 50 Paisa; 1 Rupee.

Exchange rate: 13.33 Rs. = £1 sterling

4.76 Rs. = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

Promulgated February 1962

PREAMBLE

Pakistan shall be a democratic State, based on Islamic principles of social justice and upholding the free rights of the people. The territories included in Pakistan shall be in the form of a Federation with the Provinces enjoying such autonomy as is consistent with the unity and interests of Pakistan as a whole. The "Islamabad Capital Area", in West Pakistan, shall be the principal seat of the Central Government and the "Dacca Capital Area", in East Pakistan, shall be the principal seat of the Central Legislature. The national languages shall be Bengali and Urdu; English may continue to be used until 1972.

HEAD OF STATE

The President shall be elected for a five-year term of office, by Basic Democracies consisting of the Electors representing each basic electoral unit. He is not normally eligible for re-election after eight years in office. He may only be removed from his post by vote of not less than three-quarters of the members of the National Assembly; if the motion fails to secure the necessary votes the original signatories of the motion shall lose their seats in the Assembly. In case of incapacity the Speaker of the National Assembly shall act as President.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

Only three candidates, after approval by a joint session of the Provincial and Central Legislatures, will be allowed to contest the Presidency.

CENTRAL GOVERNMENT

All executive authority is vested in the President and he has power to issue ordinances when the National Assembly is not in session. No bill may become law without his assent and he may submit any disputed matter to a referendum of the members of the Presidential Electoral College. The President may appoint a Council of Ministers, whose members may participate in the proceedings of the National Assembly, although they cannot vote. The President may also appoint Parliamentary Secretaries from among the members of the National Assembly.

The Central Legislature shall consist of the President and a single House, the National Assembly of Pakistan. The National Assembly shall have 156 seats; 150 elected seats whose members are drawn equally from each province and six especially reserved for women, three from each province. The life of the Assembly shall be five years and it shall meet in two ordinary sessions a year. The Speaker and two Deputy Speakers shall be chosen from the members.

PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT

Each province shall have a Governor, appointed by the President. The Governor may appoint Provincial Ministers and Parliamentary Secretaries under the same conditions as those applying to the Central Government. The Ministers may only be dismissed with the concurrence of the President. The Provincial Assemblies shall have 155 members, of which 5 seats shall be exclusively reserved for women. The Assemblies are elected for five years and the Speaker and two Deputy Speakers elected from among the members.

ELECTORS

The 80,000 members of the Basic Democracy Councils, elected by the people, form the electoral college for Presidential and provincial elections. They are termed "electors"; the minimum age for electors and Members of Parliament and Assemblies is 25 years. The Constitution lays down that each Province will have not less than 40,000 territorial electoral units. These electoral units will be grouped into 150 Provincial constituencies and 75 central constituencies in each province.

The Constitution can be amended by a two-thirds majority in Parliament, unless the President disagrees. A three-quarters majority of the total vote will override the President in which case he may refer the matter to a national referendum. The President has the power to dissolve Parliament, but must then seek re-election within 120 days.

ELECTORAL SYSTEM

The Electoral system is indirect and is based on the territorial Electoral Unit. Each Province shall be divided into an equal number of Units, not less than 40,000, who shall each elect an Elector by universal adult suffrage. These Electors form the Basic Democracies, who elect the members of the Provincial Assembly and National Assembly, following election of the President.

The arranging of the Electoral Units and subsequent units rests with an Electoral Commission consisting of a Chief Commissioner and two High Court Judges, one from each province, who are appointed by the President.

JUDICIARY

The Judiciary shall consist of the Supreme Court and the Provincial High Courts. The Supreme Court shall have three functions: original jurisdiction in any dispute between the Central Government and a Provincial Government or between the two provincial governments; appellate as the final Court of Appeal; and advisory in matters of law. The Chief Justice shall be appointed by the President and the Judges by the President after consultation with the Chief Justice.

The Provincial High Courts shall consist of a Chief Justice and as many Judges as may be determined by law.

FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS BILL

The Fundamental Rights Bill (formerly the Constitution Amendment Bill) approved by the National Assembly in December 1963, has the following provisions:

- 1 The country shall be known as the Islamic Republic of Pakistan and all legislation repugnant to the Quran or the Sunnah shall be barred.
- 2 All fundamental rights enshrined in the Constitution shall become "justiciable" or enforceable in the courts, with the exception of 31 laws promulgated under the martial law regime.
- 3 The jurisdiction of the High Court and the Supreme Court apply to the tribal areas.

TRANSPORT

RAILWAYS

Commissioner of Railways: S. B. AZID, Ministry of Communications, Railway Wing, Rawalpindi.

Chairman of West Pakistan Railway Board: N. A. QUREISHY

Chairman of East Pakistan Railway Board: M. K. MOHI-UDDIN.

Pakistan has two large rail systems: the Pakistan Eastern Railway in East Pakistan and the Pakistan Western Railway in West Pakistan. Both of these are State-owned and in 1962 were placed under the Provincial Governments. They have a total route mileage of 7,039 miles. The Pakistan Eastern Railway is mostly narrow gauge and the Pakistan Western Railway mostly broad gauge.

ROADS

The total of surfaced roads in 1962-63 was 11,806 miles, 10,275 miles in West Pakistan and 1,531 miles in East Pakistan. There are over 50,000 miles of fair-weather tracks.

Roads fall under the sphere of Provincial subjects. Central Government assistance comes from the Central Road Fund, financed from a share of the excise and customs duty on sales of petrol, from direct 50 per cent grants on certain arterial roads, and from development loans.

RIVERS, CANALS AND IRRIGATION

A score of large canals and hundreds of small ones criss-cross the territory of West Pakistan watered by the rivers Sutlej, Ravi, Chenab, Jhelum, Indus and Swat. Many new canals and water works are being constructed.

In East Pakistan there are 5,000 miles of navigable waterways.

In February 1959 the East Pakistan Inland Water Transport Authority was set up to take over control of river conservancy and pilotage services from the Joint Steamer Companies. Schemes for the increase in the number of power driven craft and improvement of facilities have been drafted at an estimated cost of £2,200,000.

In September 1960 the Indus Basin Development Fund (see Chapter, Indus Waters Treaty, in Vol. I) was established to finance irrigation in Pakistan (and India).

PANAMA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Republic of Panama is a narrow strip of territory at the southern end of the isthmus separating North and South America. It is bounded to the west by Costa Rica and to the east by Colombia in South America. The Caribbean Sea is to the north and the Pacific to the south. The climate is hot and humid. Spanish is the official language and Roman Catholicism the religion of most of the people. The flag carries four quarters: white with a blue star, blue, white with a red star and red. The capital is Panama City.

Recent History

In December 1959 Panamanian demonstrators entered the Canal Zone, leased in perpetuity to the United States, and attempted to hoist the Republic's flag. The quarrel was settled by negotiations with the United States. In 1960 Roberto F. Chiari was elected President of the Republic. There were further disturbances in the Zone, involving loss of life, in January 1964 and diplomatic relations with the United States were broken off. A peace committee was subsequently set up under the Organization of American States (O.A.S.) and diplomatic relations with the U.S.A. were resumed in April 1964. In December 1964 the U.S.A. announced plans to survey an alternative canal route either in Panama or an adjoining state and it is now estimated that a new sea level canal may be open in the early 1980s. In May 1964 Presidential elections were won by Marco Robles. In September 1965 Presidents Johnson and Robles announced a new treaty to replace that of 1903, which will effectively recognize Panama's sovereignty throughout the present canal zone and any future canal area; a new defence agreement will maintain U.S. base rights. In June 1966 a protocol was signed for Panama's entry into certain subsidiary organs of the Organization of Central American States and negotiations are under way for Panama's entry into the Central American Market.

Government

The President and the Chamber of Deputies are elected for a four-year term by universal adult suffrage. The President is assisted by a Cabinet of Ministers.

Defence

There is a National Police Force but a military force is assembled only in emergencies.

Economic Affairs

About a quarter of the national revenue is derived from the Canal Zone by way of lease fees and labour services. The economy is based on the land with rice, sugar and bananas as principal crops. Cocoa, hemp, coconuts and maize are grown. Industry is mainly concerned with the manufacture of sugar and alcoholic beverages. Shrimp fishing is important. There are timber resources, notably mahogany. Chief exports are refined petroleum, bananas and shrimps, with the United States as virtually the sole customer. Much revenue comes from shipping registration fees (see next paragraph).

Transport and Communications

There is a government-owned railway and two others which are United States-owned. Roads extend for some 6,000 kilometres of which about 4,000 are earth roads. The merchant marine is one of the world's largest with over six million gross tons (1965) (most of the vessels are foreign-owned but registered in Panama).

Social Welfare

Social welfare is being developed with insurance benefits for unemployment, sickness and retirement. Employees contribute to the scheme, which is Government operated.

Education

There is compulsory education for children between seven and fifteen years. There are two universities.

Tourism

There is some tourism though most travellers are in transit through the Panama Canal. Panama City on the Pacific coast is the main resort.

Visas are not required to visit Panama by nationals of Spain and the United Kingdom.

Sport

Baseball and basketball are the most popular games.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), October 12 (Discovery of America), November 2 (All Souls' Day), November 3 (Separation from Colombia), November 4 (Day of the National Flag), November 10 (First Independence), November 28 (Independence from Spain), December 8 (Immaculate Conception), December 25 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 2 (Day of National Mourning), February 27 (Carnival), March 1 (Constitution Day), April 12 (Good Friday).

Weights and Measures

Both the Metric and the Imperial Systems of weights and measures are in use.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The monetary unit is the Balboa of 100 Cents (at par with the U.S. Dollar).

Coins: 5, 10, 25, 50 Cents; 1 Balboa.

Notes: U.S.A. notes are in circulation.

Exchange rate: 2.80 Balboa = £1 sterling.

THE CONSTITUTION

Under the Constitution the President is elected by direct vote for a four-year term and is ineligible for re-election for the two succeeding terms. He is assisted in the government of the country by a Cabinet of Ministers.

The legislative body is the Chamber of Deputies of 53 members—appointed in the ratio of one Deputy to every 15,000 inhabitants. At the time of the elections two substitutes are elected for each deputy.

The Constitution contains a national bill of rights on liberal and progressive lines; there is universal suffrage for all those over 21.

Education is compulsory and free, and religious toleration is guaranteed under the Constitution.

COLÓN ZONE

The Colón Free Zone, an area of 96 acres, is an autonomous agency of the Government of Panama, situated less than half a mile from the Piers of Cristóbal, the Atlantic Port for the Panama Canal, on the Caribbean Sea. Foreign merchandise may be landed without application of customs or tariff duties. It may be processed before re-exportation, which is also without duties. The Free Zone was created in 1948 and started operations in 1953. In 1965 imports and re-exports amounted to $249m.

Panama Railroad (U.S.-owned, a part of the Panama Canal Company as renamed July 1st, 1951): Cristóbal, Canal Zone; operating 47 miles of main track from Panama City to Colón on a route roughly parallel to the Canal; additional 77 miles of track operated in the Canal Zone (5-ft. gauge). In the fiscal year 1965 the railway carried 648,000 passengers and 196,000 tons of freight; Pres. Major-Gen. ROBERT J. FLEMING, Jr.; Dir. Transportation and Terminals Bureau AXTON T. JONES; Man. Railroad Division DONALD R. BRAYTON.

ROADS

There are some 3,880 miles of roads in Panama, of which about a third are paved. The two most important highways are the National, which runs from Panama City westwards to Concepción in the Province of Chiriquí, and eastwards as far as Chepo; and the Boyd-Roosevelt or Trans-Isthmian, linking the cities of Panama and Colón. The Pan-American Highway to Mexico City opened in 1963 with 340 miles in Panama. A highway to San Juan, Costa Rica, is due for completion in 1967.

SHIPPING

The Panamanian Merchant Marine is one of the world's largest and, in 1964, a total gross tonnage of some 6.4 million was registered under the Panamanian flag.

A number of lines make regular calls at Panamanian ports, including: Grace, Furness Withy, Holland America, New Zealand, Pacific Steam Navigation, Royal Mail, Shaw Saville and United Fruit.

PANAMA CANAL ZONE—(THE CONSTITUTION, THE GOVERNMENT, ETC.)

THE CONSTITUTION

Occupation and use of the Canal Zone was granted to the United States by the Republic of Panama under Articles II and III of the 1903 Treaty. In effect, the Canal Zone is a United States Government reservation devoted to the protection, maintenance and operation of the Panama Canal in which private enterprise is not permitted except that directly related to the waterway and its operation.

A new treaty was announced on September 24th, 1965, under which the Canal Zone will be fully integrated into Panama.

The Code of Laws applicable within the Canal Zone is enacted by the Congress of the United States.

Administration is in the hands of the Panama Canal Company and the Canal Zone Government. The two units are headed by one man who is President of the Company and Governor of the Canal Zone. His appointment as Governor is made by the President of the United States subject to confirmation by the Senate and he is ex-officio President of the Company.

THE GOVERNMENT

CANAL ZONE GOVERNMENT

Governor: Brig.-Gen. WALTER P. LEBER, Balboa Heights, C.Z.

The Canal Zone Government performs the usual functions of city, county and state governments, including police, schools, customs, ports, immigration, roads, health and justice.

PANAMA CANAL COMPANY

President of the Board: Brig.-Gen. WALTER P. LEBER.

Chairman: STANLEY R. RESOR.

Secretary: W. M. WHITMAN.

The Company's activities involve operating the Canal and the Panama Railroad. The Company is required to recover all costs of operation and maintenance, pay the net cost of the Canal Zone Government, and pay interest on the net investment of the United States in the Canal Company.

JUDICIARY AND RELIGION

Judicial System:

Magistrates' Courts: Balboa and Ancon. Jurisdiction in criminal cases where the fine and punishment, except for a few specified offences, does not generally exceed $100 or 30 days in jail or both, and in civil cases where the claim is under $500.

U.S. District Court: Ancon; hears appeals from the Magistrates' Courts; Civil and Criminal cases in excess of the limitations of the Magistrates' Court are tried in the District Court. Appeals from the District Court are filed with the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, and some of these may be reviewed by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Pardon and Parole Board: five members appointed by the Governor; considers submissions for pardon and parole.

Religion: All religious affiliations, in proportions corresponding approximately to those of the U.S.

RADIO AND TELEVISION

There is one radio station (SCN) and one television station (SCN-TV), both operated by the U.S. Armed Forces as part of the Southern Command network.

FINANCE

Banks: First National City Bank: New York; branch in the Canal Zone.

Chase Manhattan Bank: New York; branch in the Canal Zone.

Insurance: There are no companies with business offices in the Canal Zone.

PANAMA CANAL

Opened 1914; 50 miles long; the average ship takes 8 hours to go through the Canal. Terminal ports are Cristóbal on the Caribbean and Balboa on the Pacific.

Railways: Panama Railroad runs cross-isthmus services from Cristóbal to Ancon.

Civil Aviation: Panama National Airport, Tocumen, by agreement also serves as the commercial airport for the Canal Zone.

Tourism: Panama Canal Information Officer, Balboa Heights, C.Z.; about 250,000 persons visited the Canal in 1965.

PARAGUAY

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Paraguay is a landlocked state in central South America. Bolivia lies to the north, Brazil to the east and Argentina to the south and west. The climate is sub-tropical with a temperature range of 65°–100°F (18°–38°C). The official language is Spanish. Guaraní is also spoken. Roman Catholicism is the established religion and embraces 89 per cent of the population. There is a small Protestant minority. The flag consists of horizontal stripes of red, white and blue, the white stripes being charged with the national arms and a lion. The capital is Asunción.

Recent History

Paraguay suffered heavy losses in the Chaco War with Bolivia in the 1930s. The country has a long history of political revolt and only since the election of General Alfredo Stroessner as President in 1954 has there been comparative stability. In 1955 the President assumed extensive powers and opposition leaders went into exile. In 1963 General Stroessner was re-elected and many opposition politicians have since returned to Paraguay. In May 1967 elections were to be held to form a National Constituent Convention, to approve a new Constitution.

Government

Paraguay is a Republic and executive power is exercised by the President, assisted by a Council of State. The Legislature is the unicameral Chamber of Deputies of sixty members elected for a five-year term. The President has power to dissolve the Chamber of Deputies and to remove the Councillors of State, but in the first case an election must be called within two months. He may also call a state of siege, renewable every 90 days, if the working of the Constitution is endangered.

Defence

There is an Army and Air Force consisting of about 8,000 men, and inland waters are patrolled by naval units.

Economic Affairs

The economy is agricultural, dominated by livestock-breeding. The forests yield valuable timber. The chief export crops are cotton, tobacco, coffee, sugar-cane and maize. The principal industries are meat canning and the treatment of hides and skins. Trade is mostly with Argentina and the U.S.A.

Transport and Communications

There are 309 miles of railways and 750 miles of roads. A direct bus service links Asunción with Buenos Aires, Argentina. There are some 440 miles of Pan-American Highway and the Trans-Chaco Highway extends from Asunción to Bolivia. A new road is planned to link it with Salta. The river Paraguay is navigable from Asunción to Concepción, and beyond for small vessels, and there is much traffic along the river Parana through Argentina to the Atlantic at Buenos Aires and Montevideo. In 1967 Paraguay and Argentina agreed to grant free navigation to merchant vessels of the two countries on the Rivers Plate, Paraguay and Paraná. There is a modern airport at Asunción for internal and international air transport.

Social Welfare

A bilateral co-operative health service is in force with the U.S.A. and there are a number of large health centres. A five-year malaria eradication programme has been launched.

Education

Primary education is free and where possible compulsory but there are insufficient schools, particularly in the remote parts of the country. In 1965 there were about 2,950 schools with some 398,000 pupils. There is one State and one Catholic university.

Tourism

Tourism is undeveloped but with the growth of air transport and the construction of new international highways efforts are being made to promote it.

Visas are not required to visit Paraguay by nationals of Argentina, Belgium, Brazil, Chile, Denmark, Ecuador, Finland, France, German Federal Republic, Italy, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Mexico, Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom, United States and Uruguay.

Sport

Football is the most popular sport.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), May 14/15 (Independence), May 25 (Corpus Christi), June 12 (Peace of Chaco), August 15 (Founding of Asunción), September 29 (Battle of Boquerón), October 12 (Discovery of America), November 1 (All Saints' Day), December 8 (Our Lady of Caacupé), December 25 (Christmas Day), 1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), February 3 (St. Blaise's Day), March 1 (Heroes' Day), March 12 (Good Friday).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The currency unit is the Guaraní of 100 Céntimos.

Coins: 5, 10, 25, 50 Céntimos.

Notes: 1, 5, 10, 50, 100, 500, 1,000, 5,000, 10,000 Guaraníes.

THE CONSTITUTION

THE Constitution of 1940 established a uni-cameral legislature. Under its general provisions, the Republic of Paraguay is stated to be indivisible, independent and democratic. The State is responsible for primary education, which shall be free and compulsory. The principle of habeas corpus is recognised, and neither the death penalty nor the confiscation of property may be imposed for political offences. Voting is compulsory for all males over 18 years, with the exception of non-commissioned officers in the services, who are not permitted to vote. Women were accorded civil rights in 1954. While the development of the country's economy is stated to be the responsibility of the State, free competition shall, nevertheless, be encouraged.

The Executive: The President, who must be a Paraguayan by birth, a Catholic, and over forty years of age, must be elected by direct general suffrage six months before he takes office. He serves for five years and is eligible for a second term.

He is responsible for the administration of the country, for the sanctioning and promulgation of the laws, and for the conduct of foreign affairs. He appoints the members of the Supreme Court and of the diplomatic corps, with the consent of the Council of State. Members of the Tribunal of Accounts and other officials of the judiciary are also appointed by him, with the consent of the Supreme Court. He is solely responsible for the appointment of his Ministers and other higher officials of the administration.

At the opening of each annual session of the Chamber of Representatives, the President must give an account of the work accomplished by his government. He has power to prolong ordinary sessions, or convene extraordinary sessions of the Chamber. He sees that taxes are collected, and orders their expenditure in accordance with the budget law. He negotiates and signs international agreements and treaties, after these are submitted to the Council of State and the Chamber of Representatives for approval; and, likewise with the advice of the Council of State and the authorisation of the Chamber, he declares war and establishes peace. In the event of public internal disturbance or foreign conflict endangering the working of the Constitution and the authorities created by it, the President may declare the whole or part of the national territory to be in a state of siege after advising the Chamber of the circumstances. A law shall regulate the application of the state of siege. He may also dissolve the Chamber and remove the Councillors of State, but he is obliged, in the first case, to call elections within two months.

During the parliamentary recess, the President is empowered, after consultation with the Council of State, to enact decrees with the force of law; but these must be approved by the Chamber in their next ordinary session.

To the Executive alone belongs the right to initiate expenditure, and recruit or mobilize troops.

The law shall determine the number and functions of the various ministries, which shall not in any case be fewer than five. Ministers must authenticate and legalise the acts of the President by their signatures.

The Council of State: This Council acts as a kind of second House. It is composed of the Ministers in charge of government departments, the Rector of the National University, the Archbishop of Paraguay, one representative of commerce, two of agriculture, one of industry, the Presidents of the Banco Central del Paraguay and Banco Nacional de Fomento, and two retired senior officers chosen, one from the army and the other from the navy. The Council passes judgment on drafts of decrees with the force of law; on matters of international policy submitted by the Executive; and on financial and economic matters, for the consideration of which it may seek the assistance of technical commissions. It approves appointments of members of the Supreme Court and diplomatic representatives, and may also form a tribunal to judge members of the Supreme Court.

The Legislature—The Chamber of Representatives: The sixty members of the Chamber are elected by direct suffrage for a five-year period. The ordinary sessions of the Chamber are held from April 1st to August 31st of each year. Representatives are not permitted to hold administrative posts in public service enterprises or enterprises holding concessions from the State.

The Chamber legislates on municipal organisation, on taxes and contributions in general, and on banking and monetary matters. It authorises loans, passes the annual budget law, regulates river and air navigation, considers international agreements and treaties, and authorises the Executive to make war or peace.

Laws may originate with the Executive or in the Chamber. If a law, after being approved by the Chamber, is totally rejected by the Executive, it cannot be re-considered by the Chamber during the session of that year. If only partially vetoed by the Executive, it is returned to the Chamber, when it may be passed in its original form by a two-thirds vote in its favour.

The Judiciary: Members of the Supreme Court and other judges and magistrates discharge their duties for five years, but the Constitution provides that the law shall establish the conditions and requisites for their irremovability. Members of the Supreme Court may be tried by the Chamber of Representatives before the Council of State for misfeasance of functions; while members of the Tribunal of Accounts and magistrates of the lower courts may be tried before the Supreme Court for misfeasance or dishonesty.

The Tribunal of Accounts examines and approves, or withholds approval of, expenditures of public money.

Amendment of the Constitution: No total reform of the Constitution may be made for ten years after its promulgation. After that period, the need for a new Constitution must be voted for by two-thirds of the members of the National Assembly. The Assembly may, by the same fraction of votes, declare the need for introducing amendments to the Constitution, which must be submitted to a plebiscite at the time of the presidential elections. On the inauguration of his second term of office in 1953, President Chaves indicated that his government would set up a Constituent Assembly to consider the drafting of a new Constitution.

Elections were held in May 1967 to elect 120 delegates from all recognized parties to form a National Constituent Convention which will meet from May 24th to approve a new Constitution.

PERSIAN GULF STATES—BAHRAIN

THE CONSTITUTION

The Ruler is assisted by a Council of Administration, which is composed of the heads of some Government Departments and certain members of the Ruling Family. There are also four urban municipalities—Manama, Muharraq, Rifaa and Hedd—and two rural municipalities—Sitra and Jidhafs—which are administered by councils, half of whose members are elected by male and female rate-payers and half of whom are nominated by the Government. The Municipal Councils in turn nominate five members to the eight-man Health and Education Councils, the remaining three members being selected by the Government. These bodies, together with other committees responsible for such matters as Electricity, Rural Affairs, Water Conservation and Agriculture are given a fairly free hand in the administration of the respective Departments.

A committee set up by the Ruler is at present (1966) considering constitutional changes.

Bahrain is linked by treaties with Great Britain, which has undertaken to protect it against foreign aggression and to conduct its external affairs. Treaties have been signed between Bahrain and Britain in 1820 (through the East India Company), 1861 and 1892.

THE GOVERNMENT

Ruler: Sheikh ISA BIN SULMAN AL-KHALIFA, K.C.M.G.

Crown Prince: Sheikh HAMED BIN ISA AL-KHALIFA.

Secretary to the Bahrain Government: G. W. R. SMITH, M.B.E.

COUNCIL OF ADMINISTRATION

(May 1967)

President: Sheikh KHALIFA BIN SULMAN AL-KHALIFA (Pres. of Finance and Pres. of Electricity Board).

Members:

Sheikh MUBARAK BIN HAMAD AL-KHALIFA (Pres. of Health Council and Judge of Joint Court).

Sheikh DAJ BIN HAMAD AL-KHALIFA, O.B.E. (Pres. of Law Courts).

Sheikh MOHAMED BIN SULMAN AL-KHALIFA (Head of Police and Public Security and Minister of Education).

G. W. R. SMITH, M.B.E. (Secretary to the Government).

SALIM AL-URAYIDH (Registrar, Bahrain Courts).

Secretary: YUSUF AL-SHRAWI.

Chief Judge of the Bahrain Courts: Sheikh DAJ BIN HAMAD AL-KHALIFA, O.B.E.

Registrar, Bahrain Courts: SALIM AL-URAYIDH.

Judicial Adviser to Bahrain Courts: WASFI NIMR.

Judge of the British Courts: W. J. PALMER.

The Bahrain local courts exercise jurisdiction over Bahrain nationals, natives of other Persian Gulf Sheikdoms, and nationals of Saudi Arabia, Muscat and Oman, the Yemen, Iran, Iraq, the United Arab Republic, the Lebanon and a number of other Muslim countries.

The Criminal Law is contained in various Codes, Ordinances and Regulations, which have been brought into force for the British Courts, and, with certain exceptions, for the Bahrain local courts.

The British jurisdiction has been regulated by a number of British Orders in Council. Under these orders British jurisdiction extends to all those persons not included in the list above.

Judges of the British Court are qualified lawyers appointed by the Secretary of State. There is a Registrar, who is also a qualified lawyer, who may try criminal cases within certain limits. Appeals lie from the Registrar to the Judge. Appeals from a Judge of the Court lie to the Chief Court for the Persian Gulf.

A Joint Court, consisting of a Judge or Registrar of the British Court and a nominee of the Ruler deals with cases involving local subjects and foreigners, and appeal lies to a Joint Court of Appeal. Few cases are now heard by this court.

ROADS

Director of Public Works: T. D. LEWIS.

Most inhabited areas of Bahrain are linked by bitumen-surfaced roads. Public transport consists of taxis and privately owned bus services. A modern network of dual highways is in course of development.

In 1966 there were 10,395 vehicles including 5,655 private cars, 384 buses and 768 taxis.

SHIPPING

President of Ports and Customs Advisory Board: Sheikh MOHAMED BIN SULMAN AL-KHALIFA.

Port Manager: Sheikh DAJJ BIN KHALIFA AL-KHALIFA, P.O.B. 453, Bahrain.

Numerous shipping services link Bahrain and the Gulf with Britain and with Europe (Strick Line, V.N.S. "Kerk" Line, Hansa Line, Nationale Compagnie Havraise Peninsulaire and Compagnie Maritime Belge, Kuwait Shipping Company, Iraqi Maritime Transport Corporation, Lauro Line, Yugo-Linea, Polish Ocean Lines); with the East and West Coasts of U.S.A. (Concordia Line, Nedlloyd Line, Hoegh Line); with South and East Africa (KPM Line); with Pakistan, India, Japan and the Far East and Australia (British & India Steam Navigation Company, Maersk Line, Everett Johnson Line, "K" Line of Japan, etc.). Though predominantly cargo operators, most of the foregoing lines have some passenger accommodation available; the British India Line operate a mail service between Bombay, Karachi, Bahrain and other Gulf Ports, carrying passengers in Saloon and Deck classes.

The deep water harbour of Mina Sulman was opened in April 1962; it has six berths capable of taking vessels of draughts up to 30 ft. In the vicinity is a slipway, on which may be slipped vessels of up to 1,000 tons and 220 ft. in length. A trawler basin is the centre of a flourishing shrimping industry, the packaged produced being exported primarily to Europe and North America.

Since 1958 Bahrain has been a free transit area.

CIVIL AVIATION

Muharraq Airport has a first-class runway, capable of taking the largest aircraft in use. A modern airport terminus was opened in December 1961.

Gulf Aviation Co. Ltd.: P.O. Box 138, Bahrain Island; f. 1950; services from Bahrain to Kuwait, Abu Dhabi, Muscat, Dubai and Sharjah and daily flights from Bahrain to Doha and Dhahran; the fleet consists of one F27, five DC-3s, two Beechcraft B80 and one chartered Trident.

QATAR

The Sheikhdom of Qatar is a peninsula on the west coast of the Persian Gulf. The capital is Doha.

STATISTICS

Area: 4,000 square miles.

Population: 60,000 approx.; Doha (capital) 45,000.

Oil: Qatar Petroleum Co. Production ('000 metric tons), (1958) 8,000, (1959) 7,900, (1960) 8,200, (1961) 8,381, (1962) 8,800, (1963) 9,096, (1964) 9,978, (1965) 9,158, (1966) 9,059.

The Shell Co. of Qatar began commercial production of oil in November 1965, shipped from a terminal at Malul Island. Production (1966) 4,799,178 metric tons.

Currency: The Qatar/Dubai Ryal of 100 Dirhams; £1 = 13.33 Qatar/Dubai Ryals.

Development: A large proportion of oil revenue is being used to develop Doha; a power station, piped water, a 130-bed hospital and schools have been provided. The building and construction trades are thriving, and a cement factory is under consideration. Improvements in electricity and water supplies are in progress.

External Trade (1963): Imports: £10m. approx.; Exports (almost entirely of oil): £22m.

Education: 50 boys' primary schools and 27 girls' primary schools, a secondary school, a technical training centre, and a teachers training college. All education is free.

THE CONSTITUTION

Qatar is an independent Sheikhdom linked by treaty with Great Britain, which has undertaken to protect it against foreign aggression and to conduct its external affairs. The Ruler exercises complete control over internal affairs. He is assisted by the Deputy Ruler and Minister of Finance, the Minister of Education, the Director-General of the Government, and the recently-constituted Advisory Council.

THE GOVERNMENT

Ruler: Sheikh ARMED BIN ALI AL THANI (succeeded October 1960, upon the abdication of his father Sheikh ALI BIN ABDULLAH BIN QASIM AL THANI).

Deputy Ruler and Heir to the Throne: Sheikh KHALIFA BIN HAMAD AL THANI.

Minister of Education: Sheikh JASIM BIN HAMAD AL THANI.

Director-General of the Government: Dr. HASSAN KAMEL.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Qatar courts exercise jurisdiction over Qatar subjects and nationals of all Arab States, including other Gulf Sheikhdoms and over Iranians. The Sharia Court has jurisdiction in personal status matters.

British jurisdiction extends to all those not included in the above categories. Appeals from H.B.M. Court lie to the Chief Court for the Persian Gulf.

In matters regulated by the Labour Law, the Qatar Labour Court has jurisdiction over all persons, irrespective of nationality.

RELIGION

The indigenous population are Muslims of the Sunni sect.

TRANSPORT

ROADS

There are some 450 miles of surfaced road linking Doha and the oil centres of Dukhan and Umm Said with the northern end of the peninsula, and with Salwa on the Saudi Arabian border, and many more of rough tracks across the desert. About 9,000 cars and lorries form the chief means of transport.

PIPE LINES

Oil is transported by pipe-line from the oilfield at Dukhan to the loading terminal at Umm Said.

Natural gas is brought by pipe-line from Dukhan to Doha where it is used as fuel for a power station and water distillation plant.

SHIPPING

Umm Said is the chief port, from which the country's oil is exported. Zakrit is a shallow harbour for the import of goods from Bahrain but is rarely used.

The only British line to call regularly at Umm Said is the Strick Line, whose ships provide a service approximately every ten days to the Persian Gulf. A passenger service to other parts of the Gulf, India and Pakistan is operated by the British India Steam Navigation Co.

At Doha itself only local craft could enter the shallow harbour. A channel is now being dredged into Doha Bay and in 1965 a project was initiated to build a pier to increase the port's facilities in order to accommodate ocean-going vessels.

CIVIL AVIATION

Doha airport has one 8,000 ft. runway, and is equipped to a fair international standard.

Industry: pearling, fishing and boat building.

Currency: 1 Qatar/Dubai Ryal = 100 Dirhams.

1 Bahrain Dinar = 1,000 mils.

£1 sterling = 13.33 Qatar/Dubai Ryals.

£1 sterling = 1.328 Bahrain Dinars.

Following the devaluation of the Indian Rupee in June 1966, the External Rupee (13.3 = £1) was replaced as the official currency by the Bahrain Dinar in Abu Dhabi, and by the Qatar/Dubai Ryal in the other six Trucial States.

Revenue (1965 estimates—£ sterling): Abu Dhabi 11 million, Other States 2.5 million.

Abu Dhabi Development Plan: plans are now being drawn up for a new jetty, an airport, a bridge and system of metalled roads, including a road to Buraimi.

External Trade: Dubai has a lively entrepôt trade. Imports: (1962) £8.4m., (1963) £8.7m., (1964) £15,231,905, (1965) £17,883,836. Exports: (1962) £2.1m., (1963) £1m., (1964) £1,458,320, (1965) £2,663,436.

Education: boys' primary-intermediate schools in all states; girls' schools in Dubai, Sharjah and Ras al Khaimah; trade schools in Sharjah and Dubai; the two oil companies operate training centres for employees in Abu Dhabi. There is an agricultural school in Ras al Khaimah and a school attached to the Trucial Oman Scouts. There is some secondary education for boys in Dubai and Sharjah.

THE CONSTITUTION

The Rulers of the Trucial States have absolute control over their own subjects. Foreign relations are handled by the British Government, to whom they are bound by treaties.

The Trucial States Council, on which all the Rulers are represented, meets at least twice a year to discuss problems of mutual interest.

THE GOVERNMENT

Ruler of Sharjah: Sheikh KHALID BIN MUHAMMAD AL QASIMI (succeeded 1965).

Ruler of Ras al Khaimah: SAQR BIN MUHAMMAD AL QASIMI (1948).

Ruler of Umm al Quwain: AHMED BIN RASHID AL MU'ALLA, M.B.E. (1929).

Ruler of Ajman: RASHID BIN HUMAID (1928).

Ruler of Dubai: RASHID BIN SAID AL MAKTUM (1958).

Ruler of Abu Dhabi: ZAID BIN SULTAN (1966).

Ruler of Fujairah: MUHAMMAD BIN HAMAD AL-SHARGI (recognised March 1952).

TRUCIAL STATES COUNCIL

P.O.B. 1565, Dubai.

Members: The seven Rulers of the Trucial States.

Secretary-General: AHMED ADI BITAR.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Trucial States' subjects and citizens of all Arab and Muslim states with the exception of Commonwealth countries are subject to the jurisdiction of the local courts. The remainder are under British jurisdiction, except that in Abu Dhabi all Traffic and Workmen's Compensation cases are heard in the Ruler's Court.

In the local courts the rules of Islamic law generally prevail. A modern code of law is being produced for Abu Dhabi.

In Dubai there is a court run by a qadi, while in some of the other states all legal cases are referred immediately to the Ruler or a member of his family, who will refer to a qadi only if he cannot settle the matter himself. In Abu Dhabi a professional Jordanian judge presides over the Ruler's Court.

The British courts are presided over by professional British judges. Appeal lies to the Chief Court for the Persian Gulf.

A legal adviser to the Rulers of the six Northern Trucial States was appointed in 1964.

RELIGION

Most of the inhabitants are Muslims of the Sunni and Shiite sects.

OIL

ABU DHABI

Abu Dhabi Marine Areas Ltd.: Oil has been found in commercial quantities 60 miles offshore from Abu Dhabi on the Umm Shaif structure, 20 miles east of Das Island, only a mile long and half a mile wide, the operating headquarters and tanker loading terminal. A new field at Zakum will be brought into production in 1967 with an annual capacity of 12 million tons. Production (July-Dec. 1962) 779,395 metric tons; (1963) 2,342,154 metric tons; (1964) 2,920,000 metric tons; (1965) 4,300,000 metric tons; (1966) 5,050,000 metric tons.

Abu Dhabi Petroleum Company Ltd.: Export of oil from the Murban Field started on December 14th, 1963. The terminal is at Jebel Dhanna. The annual production capacity was raised to 12 million tons during 1965 by the connection of Bu Musa field to Jebel Dhanna. Production in long tons: (1964) 5,929,000; (1965) 8,928,097; (1966) 12,054,000.

DUBAI

Concession agreements were signed in 1963 with Dubai Marine Areas Ltd., in which British Petroleum has a 50 per cent interest, and Dubai Petroleum Co., in which Continental Oil Co. is the main shareholder; the latter made its first successful strike in June 1966.

RAS AL KAIMAH

Agreements were signed in 1964 for oil exploration by the Southern National Gas Co. and Union Oil Co.

SHARJAH, AJMAN, UMM AL QUWAIN

John Mecom Ltd. have held concessions in these areas since 1964.

TRANSPORT

ROADS

There is no proper system of roads except in Dubai town, in which recently 10 miles of asphalt road have been constructed, but the desert tracks are often motorable. In 1965 plans were made for a £1 million all-weather metalled road to be built from Dubai to Ras al Khaimah, to be financed by the new Trucial States Development Office. The oil companies have constructed roads in the areas in which they operate. Motor vehicles are in general use for passengers and goods. Camels and donkeys are used in the less accessible areas.

SHIPPING

Dubai is the main port. The British India Steam Navigation Co. Ltd. maintain a weekly scheduled service to Dubai on the Bombay-Basra run. The ships of British India Line and F. Strick & Co. call at Dubai and Abu Dhabi several times a month. Other lines which call regularly are D. D. G. Hansa, Everett Star Line, Holland-Persian Gulf, Maersk Line, and Jugolinjya.

PERU

(REPÚBLICA DEL PERÚ)

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Peru is an Andean country situated on the Pacific coast of South America. It is bordered by Ecuador and Colombia to the north, Brazil and Bolivia to the east and Chile to the south. The climate varies with altitude, average temperatures being some 20°F (7°C) lower in the mountains than in the coastal region. The official language is Spanish and Quechua and Aymara are widely spoken by the Indian population. A large proportion of the population is Roman Catholic and there is a Protestant minority. The flag consists of vertical stripes of red, white and red. The capital is Lima.

Recent History

A long-standing frontier dispute with Ecuador was settled in Peru's favour in 1945. A military coup took place in 1948, establishing General Manuel Odria as President. In 1963 President Fernando Belaúnde Terry was elected after an interlude of military government. Dr. Fernando Schwalb López Aldana became Premier in January 1964, although the government coalition did not have a working majority in either House, and he resigned in September 1965, when Dr. Daniel Becerra de la Flor became Premier. President Belaúnde Terry suspended constitutional guarantees in July 1965 as a result of disorder among the Indians in the Andes, but they were subsequently restored.

Government

Executive power is vested in the President, assisted by a Cabinet. The Legislature or Congress consists of the Senate of 45 members and the Chamber of Deputies of 140 members. Both Presidential and Congressional terms of office are six years. Voting is compulsory for men and women between the ages of twenty-one and sixty, thereafter voluntary. The country is divided into 24 Departments administered by Prefects.

Defence

Armed forces consist of an Army, Navy and Air Force. The Army numbers about 30,000 men. All male citizens from eighteen to twenty-four years of age are liable to compulsory military training and some, chosen by ballot, have to do regular service for two years.

Economic Affairs

Peru has a diversified agricultural economy, the chief crops being potatoes, sugar, barley, maize and cotton. Livestock is raised particularly in the mountains. Fishing has become very important and now constitutes the main industry. Large scale irrigation and power schemes are being undertaken, including Tinajones, Olmos, Majes and Mantaró; these will greatly extend cultivable land and provide an important source of energy. Minerals include petroleum, iron ore, and copper. The chief industries are fish and fishmeal, petroleum products, cement and sugar. The principal exports are copper, cotton, fish and fishmeal, and sugar. Trade is mainly with the U.S.A. A National Economic and Social Development Plan for 1967-70, recently announced, envisages an annual growth rate of 6 per cent; first priority will be given to agriculture, with investment also in mining and industry.

Transport and Communications

Transport is made difficult by the terrain, internal air services being an important means of transport. There are 2,000 miles of railways. The road system is centred on the 2,121-mile long Peruvian section of the Pan American Highway which is crossed by the Trans-Andean Highway running from Lima. A new 300 mile road, part of the Trans-Andean Highway, connecting Lima and Callao with the headwaters of the Amazon, is due for completion in 1980. European shipping lines call regularly at Peruvian ports, the chief of which is Callao. Air transport is provided by Aerolíneas Peruanas SA and twenty-one other airlines.

Social Welfare

Social insurance is compulsory and benefits cover sickness, disability and old age. Labour legislation guarantees conditions of employment. Special schemes are in force for women and children.

Education

Primary education is free and where possible compulsory between the ages of six and fourteen. There are a number of fee-paying schools. Secondary education is both public and private. There are twenty-seven universities.

Tourism

Peru is famous for the relics of Inca and pre-Inca civilizations. There is spectacular mountain scenery including Lake Titicaca, situated at an altitude of 12,500 feet, and forest and jungle areas. Many of the towns have interesting examples of Spanish Colonial architecture and culture.

Visas are not required to visit Peru by nationals of the following countries: Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Denmark, France, German Federal Republic, Italy, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Philippines, Portugal, Spain, Switzerland, United Kingdom and United States.

Sport

Football is the most popular sport and basketball, baseball, horse-racing and bull- and cock-fighting are widely followed. There are opportunities for hunting and deep-sea fishing.

THE CONSTITUTION

THE Republic of Peru, formerly the chief Spanish viceroyalty in South America, declared its independence on July 28th, 1821, but it was not until 1824, when all Spanish forces were obliged to leave, that the country gained its freedom from Spanish rule.

The present Constitution was promulgated on April 9th, 1933. It has been amended from time to time.

Under the general guarantees some of the functions of the modern State are defined. Mines, lands, forests, waters, and, generally, all natural sources of wealth belong to the State. Conditions of their exploitation, either by the State or by means of concessions to private persons, will be fixed by law. In industry, the State will support profit-sharing schemes, and will legislate concerning the organisation of industry, safety measures for workers, accident compensation, minimum wages, maximum hours and general conditions of work. In agriculture, the State will favour the preservation of the small rural property and may expropriate, with compensation, and subdivide land which is not being exploited economically.

Article 53 provides that the legal existence of political parties with international connections is not recognised, and those belonging to such parties may not hold political office.

Liberty of conscience and of beliefs is inviolable, and no one may be persecuted for his ideals. Freedom of the press is guaranteed, but compensation may be sought through legal channels by an injured party against the editor and author of a publication. Article 65 provides for the censorship of public spectacles. The principle of habeas corpus is recognised.

When the security of the State demands, the Executive may suspend wholly or in part, in the whole or in a part of the national territory, certain constitutional guarantees of the individual. If such suspension is decreed while Congress is in session, the Executive must inform Congress immediately. The suspension will be only for thirty days, and another decree will be needed for any further extension. The powers of the Executive during the suspension of guarantees will be fixed by law.

Voting for men and women between the ages of 21 and 60 is compulsory; after 60, voting is optional.

The Legislative Power. The Constitution provides for a bi-cameral legislature. Both the Senate of 45 members, and the Chamber of Deputies, consisting of 140 members, are elected for six years. Congress begins its sessions on July 28th, and continues in ordinary session for 120 days. The President, with the agreement of his Cabinet, may convoke extraordinary sessions. Congress legislates, interprets, modifies and repeals laws; examines alleged infringements of the Constitution; imposes and repeals taxes; and approves or rejects the national and departmental budgets. However, any Congressional action to impose or repeal taxes or vote expenditure must be taken on the initiative of the Executive Power. Congress authorises the Executive to negotiate State loans and provide funds for amortisation. It approves or rejects the President's recommendations for the advancement of higher officers of the armed forces, and establishes the strength of those forces; and approves or withholds approvals of treaties negotiated by the Executive.

The Executive Power. The President is elected for a six-year term, which begins on July 28th of the year of election. First and Second Vice-Presidents are elected simultaneously with the President. The last-named is not eligible for re-election until after the lapse of at least one presidential term. This provision of the Constitution may not be reformed or repealed, and any person attempting to do so must retire from office, and will be permanently incapacitated from holding any public office. The President may not command the armed forces without the permission of Congress. On taking up such a command, he becomes subject to military laws and regulations. His tasks include the drafting of laws and the making of resolutions and decrees promulgating laws; the maintenance of internal order and external security; the convoking of presidential and congressional elections, and of extraordinary sessions of Congress. It is his duty to see that the resolutions of the Judicial Power are carried out. He organises and distributes the armed forces, administers the finances of the State, negotiates treaties, appoints and removes the members of his Cabinet and, with the approval of his Cabinet, appoints members of the diplomatic corps, and selects candidates of Peruvian birth for archbishoprics and bishoprics, whose names are submitted to the Vatican.

The Judiciary. The Supreme Court, with its seat in Lima, consists of the President and 10 members, whose appointments have to be approved by Congress. Higher Courts function in certain departments determined by law, and Courts of First Instance in provincial capitals. There are justices of peace in all towns. Members of the Higher Courts are nominated by the President from a list submitted by the Supreme Court. Appointments to the lower courts must be ratified by the Supreme Court.

The Constitution provides that in each ministry there shall be one or more Consultative Commissions consisting of specialists in the various branches of activity of the ministry; and also provides for a Council of National Economy whose members shall represent the interests of consumers, capital, labour and the liberal professions.

Regional Administration. The country is divided into 24 Departments administered by Prefects. The Departments are divided into provinces, which in turn are divided into districts.

Municipal Councillors are nominally elected by direct vote, and foreigners are eligible, but for some years municipal bodies have been appointed without election. The Municipal Elections Law provides for elections every 3 years.

Indigenous Communities. The Constitution recognises the legal existence and juridical personality of the indigenous communities, whose property may not be alienated except in the public interest, when compensation must be given. The State is responsible for the civil, penal, economic and administrative laws regulating these communities.

Reconstruction work is being continued along the whole length of the Pan-American Highway which runs southward from the Ecuadorian border along the coast to Lima and on to Chile.

The 500-mile Trans-Andean Highway to the Amazon head waters was completed in 1943, running from Lima to Pucallpa on the River Ucayali via Oroya, Cerro de Pasco, and Tingo Maria.

A three-year road modernisation programme in and around Lima was announced in May 1964. Major road projects include a scheme for a 278 km. link from the Trans-Andean Highway connecting the Tarapoto cotton centre with three ports on the coast. The 2,241 km. East Andean Highway is under construction and is due for completion by 1980; work has begun on the 235 km. section from Río Nieva to Tarapoto and this is due to be ready in 1971.

REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Philippine archipelago lies in the Pacific Ocean east of South-East Asia. The principal islands are Luzon in the north and Mindanao in the south. The island chain stretches 1,150 miles from north to south and is 690 miles wide. Borneo is to the south-west and New Guinea to the south-east. The climate is maritime and tropical with high humidity. Rainfall is abundant and typhoons frequently inflict damage. There are numerous language groups. Pilipino (Tagalog), based on Malayan, is the native national language. English is widely spoken and some Spanish. Ninety per cent of the population is Christian (80 per cent Roman Catholic) and 5 per cent Muslim. The flag consists of two equal horizontal bands of blue and red with a gold sun and three stars on a white triangle next to the staff. Quezon City has been designated the new capital, but Manila remains the capital until the new Government buildings have been erected. Both cities are on Luzon island.

Recent History

Japanese forces occupied the islands during the second World War. In 1946 independence was granted and a republic set up thus ending four centuries of rule by Spain, the United States and Japan. Guerrilla bands challenged the central government and not until 1954 was peace fully established. The Philippines has aligned itself with the United States and is a member of the South-East Asia Treaty Organisation (SEATO). The Philippines has taken a mediatory role in the dispute between Indonesia and the Federation of Malaysia. General Elections were held in November 1965, and Ferdinand Marcos (Nacionalista) was elected President.

Government

The Government system is similar to that of the United States. The President is elected by all literate voters of twenty-one years and over for a four-year term. Legislative power is vested in Congress comprising the Senate and the House of Representatives. The 24 members of the Senate are elected for a six-year term, one-third of the membership being renewable every two years. The House of Representatives has 104 members and holds office for four years.

Defence

The National Defence Force comprises an Army, Navy and Air Force totalling 50,000. There is a 12,000-strong Constabulary to maintain internal order. A 2,000-man engineer battalion with security support is in operation in Viet-Nam, to give non-military assistance only.

Economic Affairs

The economy is mainly agricultural with sugar, copra, rice, hemp and timber as the main products. Deposits of chrome, iron, gold and other minerals are exploited. Industry is confined mainly to textile manufacturing, motor car assembly and processing of important raw materials. The Government encourages cottage industries and has introduced steel manufacture. Chief exports are sugar, copra and timber. In 1964 there was a mineral production value record of 479 million Pesos.

Transport and Communications

There are railways on several of the larger islands but these carry mainly freight. The most widely used inland transport are the bus services. Shipping plays a considerable part in carrying passengers and cargo between the islands. There are 77 national and 282 municipal ports. PAL, Fairways and Air Manila, as well as foreign airlines, maintain domestic and international services and there is an international airport at Manila.

Social Welfare

Government social insurance provides cover for retirement and life. Employed persons contribute to the scheme from their wages. Public health services such as inoculation and vaccination are provided free in the State Dispensaries.

Education

There is free education in all primary schools of which there are 34,600 with over five million pupils. 1,174,000 students are enrolled in the 2,286 private schools, universities and colleges. Instruction is in English. There are 27 universities and 374 private colleges.

Tourism

Tourism is being developed and in 1965, 84,015 visitors spent 17.6 million U.S. dollars. Chief attractions are the warm climate, the tropical setting of the islands and the cosmopolitan city of Manila.

Sport

Basketball is the most popular game, closely followed by baseball. Cock-fighting is legal.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), June 12 (Independence Day), July 4 (Philippine-American Friendship Day), November 30 (National Heroes' Day), December 25 (Christmas), December 30 (Rizal Day).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), April 9 (Bataan Day), April 11 (Maundy Thursday), April 12 (Good Friday).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The monetary unit is the Philippine Peso = 100 Centavos.

Notes: Pesos 1, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100; Centavos 50.

Coins: Pesos 1; Centavos 1, 5, 10, 20, 25, 50.

Exchange rate: 10.00 pesos = £1 sterling.

3.85 pesos = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

THE present Constitution states that the Philippines is a republic in which sovereignty is vested in the people. It contains provisions guaranteeing to all freedom of speech, of the press and of religion, the right of people to assemble peaceably and petition the Government for the redress of grievances, the right of habeas corpus which shall not be suspended except in cases of invasion, insurrection or rebellion; it states that no person shall be held to answer for a criminal offence without due process of law. All citizens over 21 years of age, able to read and write, may vote, subject to certain residential qualifications.

CONGRESS

Legislative power is vested in a Congress consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives. The Senate is composed of 24 members who hold office for six years, one-third of whom is elected every two years; and the Lower House of not more than 120 members, who hold office for four years. Regular sessions of Congress may not last for more than 100 days, but special sessions, of not more than 30 days' duration, may be called at any time by the President to consider general legislation or matters specified by him.

The Congress provides for a Commission on Appointments consisting of 12 senators and 12 members of the House of Representatives chosen from the political parties represented in Congress. The Commission assists the President in appointing heads of executive departments and bureaux, superior officers of the army, diplomatic and consular representatives, and members of the Supreme and Lower Courts.

THE EXECUTIVE

The President, who is elected by direct vote, holds office for four years and may not serve for more than eight consecutive years. In the event of his death or incapacity, his duties devolve on the Vice-President. He has control of all executive departments, supervises local governments, and sees that the laws are carried out. He is commander-in-chief of the armed forces, is responsible for maintaining order, and may in the event of civil disturbance or invasion suspend the writ of habeas corpus and place the whole or a part of the country under martial law. Congress alone has the power to declare war.

The President must submit within 15 days of the opening of each regular session of Congress a budget of receipts and expenditures. He has a limited veto, which may be over-ruled by a two-thirds vote in each House. He may, with the concurrence of two-thirds of the members of the Senate, make treaties with foreign powers.

THE JUDICIARY

The Supreme Court is composed of a Chief Justice and 10 associate justices, and may sit in plenary session, or in two divisions. Its members and the judges of inferior courts hold office up to the age of 70, subject to their good conduct.

AMENDMENT OF THE CONSTITUTION

Congress assembled in joint session may, by the vote of three-quarters of all members of the Senate and the House of Representatives, voting separately, propose amendments to the Constitution, or call a convention for that purpose.

THE CONSTITUTION

The country is under the control of the Metropolis, though it has financial and administrative autonomy. The budget has to be approved by the Minister for the Overseas Provinces, and no public loan may be contracted in any foreign country. The Governor-General is appointed by the President of Portugal. There is a Legislative Council and an Economic and Social Council. The functions of the Legislative Council include the approval of the Provincial Budget, the supervision of the Province's economic development programme, and legislation, which may be initiated both by the Governor-General and by members of the Legislative Council. The Economic and Social Council advises the Governor-General in the exercise of his functions, and pronounces on all bills before they are debated in the Legislative Council.

By special decrees of February 1955 and April and October 1961, the Province was divided into 15 districts as follows: Kabinda, Uíge, Zaire, Luanda, Cuanza Norte, Cuanza Sul, Malange, Lunda, Benguela, Huambo, Bié, Cuando Cubango, Moxico, Moçamedes and Huila. Each district is again divided into regions supervised by an administrator who acts as the resident magistrate.

THE GOVERNMENT

Minister for Overseas (Lisbon): Prof. Dr. JOACHIM MOREIRA DA SILVA CUNHA.

Governor-General: Lt.-Col. CAMILO AUGUSTO DE MIRANDA REBOCHO VAZ.

Legislative Council. Composed of 34 elected members (15 elected by direct popular vote) and two ex-officio members (the Procurator of the Republic and the Director of the Provincial Finance and Accounts Services).

Economic and Social Council. Composed of eight elected members, four government appointments and six permanent members (the Commanders-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, the Principal of the University and the Directors of the services of Civil Administration, Economy and Education).

POLITICAL PARTIES

União Nacional: Luanda; Portuguese government party.

Conferência das Organizações Nacionais das Colónias Portuguesas (CONCP): Brazzaville, Congo Republic; f. 1961; central organization for MPLA, Angola, FRELIMO, Mozambique, PAIGC, Guinea, CLSTP, São Tomé.

Frente Nacional de Libertação de Angola (Angolan National Liberation Front): Kinshasa, Congo; f. 1962 by union of the União dos Populações de Angola and the Angolan Democratic Front; have set up a Government-in-exile; Leader HOLDEN ROBERTO.

Movimento Popular de Libertação de Angola (Angola Popular Liberation Movement): B.P. 2353, Brazzaville, Congo Republic; Leader MARIO DE ANDRADE; Sec.-Gen. VIRIATO CRUZ.

These two parties have been declared illegal.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Courts of First Instance. These administer the Legal Code of Metropolitan Portugal. Cases may be finally referred to the Court of Second Instance and the Supreme Court in Lisbon.

RELIGION

Most of the population follow traditional beliefs.

THE CONSTITUTION

The administration of Mozambique was established by Law 2066 of June 27th, 1953. Under this Law, the Governor-General, the highest authority, appointed by the Minister for the Overseas Provinces, is assisted by a Legislative Council and a Government Council (replaced in 1964 by an Economic and Social Council). In the Legislative Council there are elected and nominated representatives of the industrial, commercial and agricultural interests of the country, religious and cultural associations, and municipalities. There are also representatives of the native population.

THE GOVERNMENT

Governor-General: General COSTA ALMEIDA.

Legislative Council. Composed of 27 elected members and two ex-officio members (The Procurator of the Republic and The Director of the Provincial Finance and Accounts Services).

Economic and Social Council. Set up in 1964 in place of the Government Council to assist the Governor-General in his executive and legislative functions.

POLITICAL PARTIES

União Nacional: Lourenço Marques; Portuguese government party.

Frente de Libertação de Moçambique (FRELIMO) (Mozambique Liberation Front): P.O. Box 15274, Dar es Salaam, Tanzania; Pres. Dr. E. C. MONDLANE; Admin. Sec. SILVERIO NUNGU.

Comissão Revolucionário de Moçambique (COREMO) (Mozambique Revolutionary Commission): Lusaka, Zambia; f. 1965 as fusion of three nationalist parties; Pres. J.-C. GWAMBE.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Courts of First Instance. These administer the Legal Code of Metropolitan Portugal. Cases may be finally referred to the Court of Second Instance and the Supreme Court in Lisbon.

RELIGION

The population is mainly Animist, but there are about 750,000 Moslems and 860,000 Christians (660,000 Roman Catholics).

THE CONSTITUTION

The Overseas Provinces are all administered under Statutes provided for in the Organic Law for Overseas Provinces of 1963. Each province is under the control of the Metropolis, but it is financially and administratively autonomous. The Budgets are organized and voted annually by the Legislative Councils of the Provinces, and no public loan may be contracted in a foreign country. A governor is appointed to each province by the President of Portugal. According to the 1963 Political and Administrative Statutes, the Legislative Council is formed by eleven elected members, with three nominated members (the Secretary-General, the Public Attorney and the Director of the Treasury and Financial Departments).

PUERTO RICO

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The island of Puerto Rico lies 50 miles east of Hispaniola (Haiti and the Dominican Republic) in the outer Caribbean. The climate is maritime-tropical with temperatures ranging from 63°F (17°C) to 96°F (36°C). The official language is Spanish and English is widely spoken. Eighty-five per cent of the population are Roman Catholics, the remainder belonging to Protestant denominations. The flag consists of five alternating red and white horizontal stripes, with a blue triangle containing a white star next to the staff. The capital is San Juan.

Recent History

Formerly a colony of the U.S.A., Puerto Rico was given the right to elect its own executive in 1947. In 1952 a Constitution was promulgated by which the island attained the status of a "Commonwealth" associated with the United States. In recent years a programme of widespread industrialisation has been introduced. The high rate of emigration to the United States has caused problems for both countries, but with improved economic and social conditions on the island emigration has slowed down.

Government

Executive power is vested in a Governor, elected for a four-year term, and a Cabinet of nine Secretaries. The Legislature is the bi-cameral Congress consisting of the Senate of 32 members and the House of Representatives of 64 members elected for four-year terms. A Resident Commissioner represents Puerto Rico in the U.S. House of Representatives. Puerto Ricans are citizens of the United States with civil but not political rights. The United States Government is responsible for the island's foreign policy.

Defence

Defence is the responsibility of the United States and Puerto Ricans are liable for U.S. military service.

Economic Affairs

An intensive programme of industrialisation has changed the country's economy from an agricultural to a mixed one. The main crops are sugar, tobacco and coffee. Industry now provides a greater income than agriculture and includes cigars, alcohol and chemicals, food processing and household appliances. Trade is overwhelmingly with the United States. Tourism is an important source of revenue.

Transport and Communications

There are no railways on Puerto Rico. Roads total about 5,000 miles. There are ten ports, the chief ones being San Juan, Ponce and Mayaguez. Internal and international air services are provided by Caribair and ten foreign lines.

Social Welfare

Puerto Rico is included in the U.S. social security programme and also has a system of its own covering health, accident, disability and unemployment. Twenty-eight per cent of the budget is devoted to social welfare and public health.

Education

Education is compulsory from the age of six to sixteen. In 1966 there were 640,544 pupils in public schools and 67,808 pupils in private schools. There are three universities. Thirty three per cent of the budget is devoted to education.

Tourism

There has been a sharp increase in tourism in recent years and it now forms a major source of income ($120 million in 1965). Attractions include the mountain scenery in the interior and game fishing in coastal waters. There are several luxury hotels on the island.

Visas are not required to visit Puerto Rico by nationals of Canada.

Sport

Baseball, basketball, boxing and cockfighting are the most popular sports.

Public Holidays

1967: May 30 (Memorial Day), July 4 (U.S. Independence Day), July 17 (Birthday of Luis Muñoz Rivera), July 25 (Constitution Day), July 27 (Birthday of José Celso Barbosa), September 4 (Labor Day), October 12 (Discovery of America), November 11 (Veterans' Day), November 19 (Discovery of Puerto Rico), November 23 (Thanksgiving Day), December 25 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 6 (Epiphany), January 11 (Birthday of Eugenio Mario de Hostos), February 22 (Birthday of George Washington), March 22 (Emancipation of the Slaves), April 12 (Good Friday), April 16 (Birthday of José de Diego).

Weights and Measures

The United States system is officially in force and some old Spanish weights and measures are used in local commerce.

Currency and Exchange Rate

U.S. currency is used in Puerto Rico. The unit of currency is the Dollar of 100 cents.

Coins: 1, 5, 10, 25, 50 Cents; 1 Dollar.

Notes: 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100, 500, 1,000, 5,000, 10,000 Dollars.

Exchange rate: U.S.$2.80 = £1 sterling.

THE CONSTITUTION

On July 3rd, 1950, the United States Congress adopted an Act (Public Law No. 600) which was to allow "the people of Puerto Rico to organise a government pursuant to a constitution of their own adoption". This Act was submitted to the voters of Puerto Rico in a referendum and was accepted in the summer of 1951. A new Constitution was drafted in which Puerto Rico was styled as a commonwealth, or estado libre asociado, "a state which is free of superior authority in the management of its own local affairs", though it remained in association with the United States. This Constitution, with its amendments and resolutions, was ratified by the people of Puerto Rico on March 3rd, 1952, and by the Congress of the United States on July 3rd, 1952; and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico was established on July 25th, 1952.

Under the terms of the political and economic union between the United States and Puerto Rico, United States citizens in Puerto Rico enjoy the same privileges and immunities as if Puerto Rico were a member state of the Union. Puerto Rican citizens are citizens of the United States and may freely enter and leave that country.

The Congress of the United States has no control of, and may not intervene in, the internal affairs of Puerto Rico. The United States Congress is, however, responsible for the defence and the foreign policy of the island.

Puerto Rico is exempted from the tax laws of the United States. While it has no representation in the United States Congress, the Puerto Rican Resident Commissioner to the United States enjoys the privileges of membership, without voting, in the House of Representatives of the United States Congress.

There are no customs duties between the United States and Puerto Rico. Foreign products entering Puerto Rico—with the single exception of coffee, which is subject to customs duty in Puerto Rico, but not in the United States—pay the same customs duties as would be paid on their entry into the United States.

The United States social security system is extended to Puerto Rico except for unemployment insurance provisions. Laws providing for economic co-operation between the Federal Government and the States of the Union for the construction of roads, schools, public health services and similar purposes are extended to Puerto Rico. Such joint programmes are administered by the Commonwealth Government.

Amendments to the Constitution are not subject to approval by the U.S. Congress, provided that they are consistent with the U.S. Federal Constitution, the Act of 1900 (amended 1917 and 1947) defining federal relations with Puerto Rico, and Public Law No. 600. Subject to these limitations, the Constitution may be amended by a two-thirds vote of the Puerto Rican Legislature and by the subsequent majority approval of the electorate.

The Constitution starts with a definition of democracy and continues with a Bill of Rights.

BILL OF RIGHTS

No discrimination shall be made on account of race, colour, sex, birth, social origin or condition, or political or religious ideas. Suffrage shall be direct, equal and universal for all over the age of 21. Public property and funds shall not be used to support schools other than State schools. The death penalty shall not exist. The rights of the individual, of the family and of property are guaranteed. The Constitution establishes trial by jury in all cases of felony, as well as the right of habeas corpus. Every person is to receive free elementary and secondary education. Social protection is to be afforded to the old, the disabled, the sick and the unemployed.

PUERTO RICO—(THE CONSTITUTION, THE GOVERNMENT, POLITICAL PARTIES, ETC.)

THE LEGISLATIVE POWER

The Legislative Assembly consists of two houses, whose members are elected by direct vote for a four-year term. The Senate is composed of 32 members, the House of Representatives of 64 members. Senators must be over 30 years of age, and representatives over 25 years of age. The Constitution guarantees the minority parties about a quarter of the seats in the Legislature.

The Senate elects a President and the House of Representatives a Speaker from their respective members. The sessions of each house are public. A majority of the total number of members of each house constitutes a quorum. Either house can initiate legislation, though Bills for raising revenue must originate in the House of Representatives. Once passed by both Houses, a Bill is submitted to the Governor, who can either sign it or return it, with his reasons for refusal, within ten days. If it is returned, the Houses may pass it again, in which case the Governor must accept it.

The House of Representatives, or the Senate, can impeach one of its members for treason, bribery, other felonies, and "misdemeanours involving moral turpitude". A two-thirds majority is necessary before an indictment may be brought. The cases are tried by the Senate. If a representative or senator is declared guilty, he is deprived of his office and becomes punishable by law.

THE EXECUTIVE

The Governor, who must be at least 35 years of age, is elected by direct suffrage and serves for four years. He is responsible for the execution of laws, is commander-in-chief of the militia, and has the power to proclaim martial law. At the beginning of every regular session of the assembly, in January, he presents a report on the state of the treasury, and on proposed expenditure. To assist him, the Governor chooses his Secretaries of Departments, subject to the approval of the Legislative Assembly. These are led by the Secretary of State, who replaces the Governor at need.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

The island is divided into 77 municipal districts for the purposes of local administration. The municipalities comprise not only urban areas but also the surrounding neighbourhood.

Municipalities are governed by a mayor and a municipal assembly, both elected for a four-year term. The mayor of San Juan is not directly elected, but is chosen by the municipal assembly.

TRANSPORT

RAILWAYS

There are no railways in Puerto Rico.

ROADS

There are about 5,000 miles of paved roads in Puerto Rico. The roads for the most part follow the coast, linking the more important towns; there are, however, some six or seven roads crossing from north to south through the mountains. These include three routes from San Juan in the north to Humacao in the south-east, Guayama in the south, and Ponce, again on the south coast, though farther west.

SHIPPING

There are three ports in the island, San Juan, Ponce and Mayaguez. These are used primarily for the export of agricultural produce, especially sugar to the United States. Imports, again largely from the United States, come in chiefly through San Juan, which is a natural all-weather harbour and one of the largest and finest in the Caribbean region.

RHODESIA

(SOUTHERN RHODESIA)

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Rhodesia lies in south central Africa with Mozambique to the east, Zambia to the north-west, Botswana to the south-west and South Africa to the south. Climate is tropical, modified considerably by altitude. The official language is English; the African peoples speak Bantu dialects. About 20 per cent of the population are Christian. Of the European and Coloured population, 33 per cent are Anglican, 11 per cent Presbyterian, 15 per cent Roman Catholic, 9 per cent Dutch Reform and 9 per cent Methodist. Most of the Africans follow traditional beliefs, while the Asians are almost equally Moslem or Hindu. The flag is an ensign with a sky blue background, with the Union Jack in the top left corner and the Rhodesia badge, consisting of a green shield with a gold pick and a red lion between two thistles. The capital is Salisbury.

Recent History

Since 1923 Rhodesia has been a self-governing colony of the United Kingdom; before that it was administered by the British South Africa Company. In 1953, as Southern Rhodesia, it joined with Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland in the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, a union which came to an end in December 1963, when the Federation was dissolved prior to the achievement of independence by Northern Rhodesia (Zambia) and Nyasaland (Malawi). The name was changed from Southern Rhodesia to Rhodesia on October 24th, 1964, following the granting of independence to Zambia (formerly Northern Rhodesia). In November 1965 the Rhodesian government declared its independence, an act regarded as illegal by Britain, which dismissed Mr. Smith's government by Order-in-Council. The United Kingdom imposed heavy restrictions on exports to Rhodesia, suspended aid and Commonwealth Preferences, and banned imports of Rhodesian tobacco, sugar and chrome. The United Nations imposed a voluntary embargo on oil exports to Rhodesia and called on all countries to do their utmost to break off economic relations with Rhodesia. By a Security Council resolution of April 1966 Britain was empowered to use any means to prevent delivery of oil for Rhodesia to Beira in Mozambique. In May, talks began in London to try to find agreed terms for a Conference to settle the dispute. In December 1966 Mr. Wilson met Mr. Smith aboard H.M.S. Tiger in the Mediterranean in a final attempt to reach a settlement. The Working Document signed by both leaders was subsequently rejected by the Rhodesian cabinet, and later in December the UN Security Council adopted a British resolution calling on member countries to boycott all Rhodesian export staples except coal and manufactured goods, to prevent the export of military equipment, oil, aircraft and motor vehicles to Rhodesia, and to withhold economic and financial assistance from the illegal government. By May 1967 no other nation had recognized the independent government.

Government

Rhodesia is constitutionally self-governing within the British Commonwealth, with a Governor as representative of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, the Head of State. By the Declaration of Independence made on November 11, 1965, full powers of internal and external affairs were unilaterally assumed, and an Officer Administering the Government was appointed as Head of State. The Executive consists of a Cabinet of 12 Ministers. The Legislative Assembly consists of 65 members, 15 of whom are elected on a Lower Roll. In February 1967 a commission was set up to advise the Government on the constitutional framework best suited to Rhodesia.

Defence

Upon the dissolution of the Federation, the six squadrons and headquarters of the Royal Rhodesian Air Force returned to the command of Rhodesia, as did all Army units which were stationed there, plus a squadron of the Special Air Service Regiment. The Rhodesia Army consists of headquarters, supporting units and two Regular and eight Territorial and Reserve Battalions. In April 1966, regular troops were estimated at 4,300, police 6,400 and reserves 28,500. The Rhodesian forces have high standards of equipment, mobility and training, but supplies of arms and spares from Britain ceased in November 1965.

Economic Affairs

Rhodesia's minerals include notably gold, asbestos, coal and chrome, but copper and other minerals are mined. Wankie colliery is the largest coal-mine in the world. Manufactures now surpass mining in importance, particularly tobacco and food processing, metals, engineering and textiles. Agriculture is dominated by tobacco. Tea, maize, potatoes and sugar are other main crops, and there is much stock-raising. Maize, groundnuts, cotton and Oriental tobacco are the chief crops grown by African farmers, who have exclusive rights to just over half the land area of Rhodesia; European owners hold about 35 per cent of all cultivable land. The dam on Lake Kariba provides most of the country's electricity. Most trade between Britain and Rhodesia has ceased since the declaration of independence, and trade with many other countries has been curtailed. This has led to considerable diversification of the Rhodesian economy and an energetic search for new outlets.

Transport and Communications

Good rail services link Salisbury with South African and Portuguese ports, particularly Beira and Lourenço Marques in Mozambique, and with Lusaka and other towns to the north and west. Major trunk roads are likewise of high standard. International and domestic air services connect most of the larger towns. There are also numerous charter and private aircraft used by mining companies, farmers and others.

RHODESIA—(INTRODUCTORY SURVEY)

Social Welfare

The Social Welfare Department deals with child welfare and delinquency for all races. For Europeans, the Department also deals with marriage guidance, alcoholics, care of the aged, and relief of distress.

Education

Estimated expenditure for 1966-67 for African education is £6.97 millions, for non-African £6.6 millions. There were 654,000 African students in 1965 and 60,000 non-Africans. The target date for full primary education for all African children is 1969, with greatly improved opportunities for secondary schooling. The University College of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, at Salisbury, provides multi-racial higher education, awarding London University degrees.

Tourism

The principal tourist attractions are the Victoria Falls, the Kariba Dam and the Wankie Game Reserve and National Park. Zimbabwe Ruins near Fort Victoria and World's View in the Matopos Hills are of special interest. In the Eastern Districts around Umtali there is trout fishing and climbing. Safaris and game-watching holidays can be arranged.

Sport

The climate is suitable for almost every form of sport. Football, cricket, tennis, golf, baseball, swimming, athletics and horse-racing are catered for, and gliding, yachting, camping and game hunting are also popular.

Public Holidays

1967: May 15 (Whit Monday), May 24 (Commonwealth Day), June 10 (The Queen's Birthday), July 10 (Rhodes' Day), July 11 (Founder's Day), September 12 (Pioneer's Day), December 25 and 26 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), April 12-15 (Easter).

Weights and Measures

The Imperial system is in use.

Currency and Exchange Rates

Rhodesian currency, introduced on November 16, 1964.

The unit of currency is the pound (£) which is divided into 20 shilling (s) and 240 pence (d).

Decimal currency is planned for February 1970.

THE CONSTITUTION

SOUTHERN Rhodesia was opened to European colonisation by a pioneer column, organised by Cecil John Rhodes, which founded Salisbury on September 12th, 1890, and was administered by the British South Africa Company (founded by Rhodes in 1889) until 1923. In 1922 a referendum to decide whether the Colony should embark on self-government or enter the Union of South Africa resulted in a majority vote for self-government, and on September 12th, 1923, thirty-three years after the occupation, the country became a self-governing Colony of the United Kingdom.

The Constitution of 1923 conferred responsible government on the country and since that time Southern Rhodesia has been governed under a parliamentary system on the British model. Certain reserved powers remain vested in Her Majesty's Government, however, and in 1959 the Southern Rhodesia Government proposed that the Constitution should be revised, with a view to transferring to Southern Rhodesia the exercise of the powers vested in the British Government. Following consultations between the two Governments an Order in Council embodying a new constitution was made on December 6th, 1961. This eliminated all the reserved powers save for certain matters of a somewhat formal nature, to which reference is made under the next heading. It also conferred on Southern Rhodesia wide powers for the amendment of her own Constitution and contained a number of important additional features such as a Declaration of Rights and the creation of a Constitutional Council designed to give confidence to all the peoples of Southern Rhodesia that their legitimate interest would be safeguarded.

In 1964, it was agreed between the British and Southern Rhodesian Governments that the term 'Colony' should be dropped and that henceforward the country should be referred to as 'Southern Rhodesia'. In October 1964, following the independence of Zambia (Northern Rhodesia), the Southern Rhodesian Government dropped the prefix 'Southern'. Rhodesia is fully self-governing in respect of its internal affairs, but because it does not yet enjoy sole responsibility for its international relations it cannot be regarded as an independent sovereign state. However, the Rhodesian Government declared the independence of Rhodesia on November 11th, 1965, and assumed full powers over internal and external affairs.

The Cabinet and Legislative Assembly

The Cabinet consists of twelve ministers including the Prime Minister. In addition there are a number of parliamentary secretaries.

The Legislature consists of 65 members, 15 of whom are elected on a lower roll, from 15 electoral districts. Fifty are elected on an upper roll from constituencies. Members are all elected for a period of five years.

There will be no power of disallowance by the Sovereign of an Act passed by the Legislative Assembly except in the case of an Act which:

- (a) is inconsistent with any international obligations imposed on the Sovereign in relation to Southern Rhodesia; or
- (b) alters to the injury of the stockholders or departs from the original contract in respect of any stock issued under the Colonial Stock Acts by the Southern Rhodesia Government on the London market.

Such laws may be disallowed within six months of their being passed.

Constitutional Safeguards

With the introduction of the new constitution in November, 1962, the right of the British Government to veto changes in the constitution has been replaced by safeguards entrenched in the new constitution. The British Government will retain power for amendments affecting the position of the Sovereign and the Governor, international obligations and undertakings by the Southern Rhodesia Government affecting loans. The Legislature has power to alter the constitution by two thirds majority of the total members of Parliament. The specially entrenched sections of the constitution can only be amended by a two thirds majority of the legislature's total membership in addition to a majority vote cast in a referendum of each of the four principal racial groups (namely European, African, Asian and Coloured), or after the Queen has assented to the amendment.

The specially entrenched sections are those relating to the Declaration of Rights, Appeals to the Privy Council, the Constitutional Council, the Judiciary, increasing franchise qualifications, securing Civil Service pensions and the Boards of Trustees of Tribal Trust Land, their powers and terms of trust. In addition if any racial limitation on the ownership or occupation of land is more restrictive than that existing on the day prior to the introduction of the new constitution, it will be treated as an entrenched section.

The Constitutional Council

Composition

The Constitutional Council consists of a Chairman and eleven members, which must include two Europeans, two Africans, one Asian, one Coloured, and two persons who are either advocates or attorneys of not less than 10 years' standing. The chairman is appointed by the Governor on the advice of the Chief Justice. The members are appointed by an electoral college which includes the Chief Justice and puisne judges of the High Court and the President of the Council of Chiefs.

Qualifications

Members must be, inter alia, over thirty-five years of age, Southern Rhodesian citizens and resident in the country for ten of the previous fifteen years.

Functions

The Constitutional Council reports to the Governor and the Speaker of the Legislature on all Bills (except money Bills) passed by the Legislature and informs them whether the Bill conflicts with the provisions of the Declaration of Rights. This is done within 30 days after the passing of the Bill, unless an extension of time is granted. In the event of there being a conflict with the Declaration of Rights the Bill may only be presented to the Governor for assent after a two thirds majority vote in the legislature, or after a simple majority vote together with a delay of six months.

The Declaration of Rights

An entrenched section of the Constitution, this sets out the fundamental rights and freedoms to be enjoyed by the people of Southern Rhodesia. Such rights apply without distinction to race, colour or creed. They afford protection from infringement by the Legislature, Executive, corporate bodies or private persons. The courts will enforce the rights and there is an ultimate appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

The Franchise

Voters must be citizens of Southern Rhodesia, over twenty-one years of age, with two years continuous residence in the country and three months residence in the constituency or electoral district immediately preceding application for enrolment. Voters must be able to complete the application for a voter's form, unassisted and in English. Additional qualifications are:

RHODESIA—(THE CONSTITUTION)

"A" Roll

(a) Income of £792 during each of two years preceding date of claim for enrolment or ownership of immovable property of value £1,650 or (b) (i) Income of £528 during each of two years preceding date of claim for enrolment, or ownership of immovable property of value of £1,100; and (ii) completion of a course of primary education of prescribed standard or (c) (i) Income of £330 during each of two years preceding date of claim for enrolment, or ownership of immovable property of value of £550; and (ii) four years secondary education of prescribed standard or (d) Appointment to the office of Chief or Headman.

"B" Roll

(a) Income at the rate of £264 per annum during the six months preceding date of claim for enrolment or ownership of immovable property of value £495 or (b) (i) Income at the rate of £132 per annum during the six months preceding date of claim for enrolment, or ownership of immovable property of value of £275; and (ii) two years secondary education, or (c) Persons over thirty years of age with: (i) Income at the rate of £132 per annum during the six months preceding date of claim for enrolment or ownership of immovable property of value of £275; and (ii) completion of a course of primary education of a prescribed standard or (d) Persons over thirty years of age with income at the rate of £198 per annum during the six months preceding the date of claim for enrolment; or ownership of immovable property of value £385 or (e) All kraal heads with a following of 20 or more heads of families or (f) Ministers of Religion.

There is no limit to the number of persons who can register but in elections in constituencies "B" Roll votes will not count for more than 25 per cent of the "A" Roll votes cast, and vice versa in electoral districts.

Where there are three or more candidates standing for election in any constituency or electoral district, a voter may use a preference vote for the candidate of his second choice. In the event of the candidate polling the most number of votes but not getting an overall majority, the bottom candidate drops out and the preference votes on his ballot papers are added to the remaining candidates.

Tribal Trust Land.

The Native Reserves and the Special Native Area, which existed prior to the bringing into operation of the new Constitution have now been placed in one category described as 'Tribal Trust Land.' This land, which is reserved in the Constitution for occupation by tribes on a basis of communal tenure, comprises some 40 million acres out of a total land area of 96 million acres. The land is vested in a Board of Trustees, which is a corporate body with perpetual succession and power to sue and to be sued. The Board cannot be abolished nor can its powers be diminished, nor can the terms of its Trust be varied unless the Bill designed to accomplish any of these objectives obtains a two thirds majority in Parliament, and is agreed to by each of the four principal racial communities.

INDEPENDENCE CONSTITUTION

(November 1965)

With the assumption of independence, the Constitution of Rhodesia, 1965, was issued to replace that of 1961, and provisions under the Southern Rhodesia Order in Council, 1961, are held to be of no effect.

The Colonial Laws Validity Act, 1965, and the Powers of Disallowance and the Reservation of Bills have been repudiated under the new Constitution. Orders in Council and royal instructions through the Governor are likewise repudiated.

The form of Government remains a constitutional monarchy, with Her Majesty the Queen represented as Head of State by the Officer Administering the Government. Executive powers vested in him include the appointment and accreditation of Diplomatic Representatives, the ratification of international treaties, the proclamation of martial law or state of emergency, the declaration of war and peace and the conferment of honours and precedence. Temporary provisions gave the Officer Administering the Government complete freedom of constitutional amendment for the first six months of the independence period.

The Legislature is made the Sovereign legislative power in and over Rhodesia, and no Act of Parliament of the United Kingdom is held to extend to Rhodesia unless extended thereto by Act of the Legislature of Rhodesia. The Legislature has power to amend the Constitution by a two-thirds majority of the total membership of Parliament, without the need of referendum among the four racial groups or approval by the Queen on British Ministerial advice, as stipulated in the 1961 Constitution.

In respect of the Delimitation of Constituencies and Electoral Districts the 1965 Constitution follows closely the 1961 Constitution. The new Constitution has removed some of the safeguards on judicial independence, however, and appeals to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council are no longer provided for. Ultimate appeal under the Declaration of Rights is to the Appellate Division of the High Court of Rhodesia, not to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council as before. In the Constitutional Council it is no longer provided that two of the members shall be African. In regard to the Tribal Trust Land Board, agreement by the four principal racial communities to changes in the powers and terms of trust is no longer needed, such changes being subject to a two-thirds vote of Parliament, the Speaker's certificate, and the assent of the Officer Administering the Government.

The following Emergency Regulations are in force: Maintenance of Law and Order; Censorship of Publications; Postal and Radiocommunications; Dissemination of Information; Control of Goods and Services; African Affairs; Control of Government Employees. These give the Government powers of intervention in a wide range of private and public affairs. The state of emergency declared prior to Rhodesia's declaration of independence in November 1965 has been periodically renewed ever since that time.

Subsequent Amendments: In September 1966 the Constitutional Amendment Act became law, having passed all the parliamentary stages by two-thirds majorities. Under its terms the Rhodesian government is given power to detain or restrict individuals in the interests of defence, public safety or public order, without recourse to proclamation of a state of emergency. These powers are held not to contravene the human rights explicitly protected under the 1961 Constitution. Persons detained in special centres may be obliged to perform tasks of forced labour. Other powers granted under the Act include the enablement to control and regulate publication of information about restricted persons and detention camps, the ability to detain individuals without a special order, pending consideration of the issue of such an order, and the ability to acquire property in satisfaction of any tax, rate or due. The widening of the powers of the tribal courts is a further feature of the new Act. Customary law is made applicable to all Africans in Rhodesia, whether or not indigenous to the country, while the tribal courts are held to be non-discriminatory even when members of the court are interested parties. Finally, a number of regulations increase the government's control over tribal trust land.

In October 1966 another Act, the African Affairs Amendment Act, became law. This widened the authority of Rhodesian chiefs by giving them administrative powers in tribal areas.

In February 1967 a five-man Commission was set up by the government to advise on "the constitutional framework which is best suited to the sovereign independent status of Rhodesia and which is guaranteed to protect and guarantee the rights and freedoms of all persons and communities in Rhodesia and ensure the harmonious development of Rhodesia's plural society, having regard to the social and cultural differences amongst the people of Rhodesia, to the different systems of land tenure, and to the problems of economic development."

RWANDA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Rwanda is a small, landlocked state in Central Africa just south of the equator, bounded by the Congo (Kinshasa) to the west, Uganda to the north, Tanzania to the east and Burundi to the south. The climate is tropical with an average temperature of 73°F (23°C). French is used for official purposes and Rwanda is the native language. About half the population follow animist beliefs, most of the remainder being Roman Catholic. There are Protestant and Muslim minorities. The flag consists of vertical stripes of red, green and yellow, the yellow band bearing a black letter R. The capital is Kigali.

Recent History

Rwanda was formerly part of the Belgian-administered Trust Territory of Ruanda-Urundi. Tribal dissensions have long been rife and in 1959 led to serious disturbances and the establishment of a state of emergency. In 1961 it was decided by referendum to abolish the monarchy and set up a Republic. Internal autonomy was granted in 1961 and full independence followed in 1962. Tribal strife broke out again in December 1963 and large-scale killings (estimated at 20,000) were carried out by the Hutu against their former overlords the Tutsis. During 1964-65 large numbers of displaced Rwandese were resettled in neighbouring countries. President Kayibanda was re-elected in 1965 for a second four-year term.

Government

Rwanda is a Republic, executive power being exercised by the President assisted by a Cabinet of 13 Ministers. Legislation is carried out by the Legislative Assembly of 44 members elected by universal adult suffrage. General elections were held in 1965. The country is divided into ten Prefectures.

Defence

Until independence in 1962 defence was the responsibility of Belgium. Since the withdrawal of Belgian troops a small national force has been built up.

Economic Affairs

The economy is agricultural, mainly at subsistence level. Coffee, cotton and pyrethrum are the principal crops. Livestock is widely raised and hides and skins are exported. Minerals include cassiterite (tin ore) and some gold, tantalite, wolfram and beryl. Industry is on a small scale and covers mainly food processing. Financial aid from Belgium and the United Nations has been necessary to balance the budget. Trade is chiefly with neighbouring states and with Belgium. Rwanda severed economic ties with Burundi after the failure of their economic union in December 1963. An economic stabilization plan, including devaluation of the Rwanda franc, was implemented in April 1966 and is expected to improve export returns and has doubled budgetary income.

Transport and Communications

There are no railways. The main roads are asphalted and there are highways linking Rwanda with Burundi. The rivers are not navigable but there is traffic on Lake Kivu. There are three airfields and regular flights are made to Burundi and Belgium.

Social Welfare

State schemes cover family allowances, accidents and pensions. The Government-assisted Native Welfare Fund provides community centres and medical services. Religious missions also provide socio-medical services.

Education

Schools are run by the State and by Missions but cannot yet provide education for all children. Over 350,000 children were at school in 1965. A few students go to the Congo or Belgium for higher education.

Tourism

Tourism has not been developed although there is attractive mountain scenery and colourful native dancing and drumming.

Sport

Football is the most popular sport.

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The monetary unit is the Rwanda Franc of 100 Centimes. It was devalued to half the former rate in April 1966. Coins: 10, 20, 50 Centimes.

Notes: 5, 10, 20, 50, 100, 500, 1,000 Francs.

Exchange rate: 280.00 RF = £1 sterling.

100.00 RF = $1 U.S.

Free rate: 336.00 RF = £1 sterling.

120.00 RF = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

(promulgated December, 1962)

The Republic of Rwanda was proclaimed in October 1961, following the abolition by public referendum of the Mwami Monarchy).

The Republic. Rwanda is a democratic, social and sovereign State. There is equality among citizens, who exercise national rights through their representatives.

Civil Rights. Fundamental liberties as defined in the Declaration of Human rights are guaranteed.

The Executive. Executive power is exercised by the President and his Ministers. The President is elected for four years by direct universal suffrage and may be re-elected. The President, who nominates and dismisses Ministers, presides over the Council of Ministers; negotiates and terminates all treaties; promulgates laws; may suspend but not dissolve the National Assembly; exercises the prerogative of mercy; and is the Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces.

Legislative power. Exercised jointly by the National Assembly and the President. The National Assembly, which is elected by universal direct suffrage, votes laws and the budget.

The Judiciary. The Supreme Court is the guardian of the Constitution. It has sole jurisdiction over penal matters affecting the President, Ministers or Deputies if indicted by a three-quarter majority of the National Assembly.

Revision of the Constitution. Both the President and the National Assembly may initiate Constitutional reforms.

THE CONSTITUTION

Under the Treaty of Peace with Japan all powers of administration, legislation and jurisdiction over the Ryukyu Islands were granted to the United States.

An Executive Order of June, 1957, provides the constitutional provisions under which there is established the United States Civil Administration of the Ryukyu Islands (USCAR) headed by a High Commissioner, with a Civil Administrator. USCAR acts primarily as an advisory and guiding body although it has the ultimate authority.

The Government of the Ryukyu Islands (GRI) is composed of local residents and is headed by a Chief Executive, elected by members of the Legislature. The Government consists of an Executive, and elected Legislature and a Judiciary. The functions of the three branches are quite separate. Elections for the Legislature are held in November every third year, following which, the newly-elected legislators choose the Chief Executive.

SAUDI ARABIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Saudi Arabia occupies the greater part of the Arabian peninsula bounded by Yemen and the Red Sea to the west and by the Persian Gulf and the Persian Gulf Principalities to the east. Jordan, Iraq and Kuwait are to the north and Muscat and Oman and the Federation of South Arabia to the south. Much of the country is desert. In summer temperatures range from 100°–120°F (38°–49°C) in coastal regions and humidity is high. Temperatures sometimes reach 130°F (54°C) in the interior. Winters are mild, except in the mountains. The language is Arabic. The great majority of the population are Sunni Moslems, and in the Najd there is a preponderance of members of the Wahhabi sect. The flag is green bearing a white religious Arabic inscription above a white sword. The royal capital is Riyadh.

Recent History

Saudi Arabia has been a member of the Arab League since 1945. King Saud ibn Abdul Aziz succeeded his father in 1953 and at times tried to mediate between the conflicting interests in the Arab Middle East. In 1962, following the outbreak of civil war in the Yemen, Saudi Arabia supported the deposed Imam while forces of the United Arab Republic aided the newly declared Yemeni Republic. As a result, Saudi Arabia broke off diplomatic relations with the United Arab Republic in November 1962. Relations with the U.A.R. improved in 1963. Early in 1964 full executive powers passed into the hands of Crown Prince Faisal, the Prime Minister since 1962. In November 1964 the Council of Ministers asked King Saud to resign in favour of his brother. King Faisal continued in the office of Prime Minister, and now rules the country directly through the Council of Ministers.

Government

Constitutionally, the King rules in accordance with the Sharia, or sacred law of Islam. A Council of Ministers is appointed by the King, and decisions of the Council of Ministers are reached by majority vote but require royal sanction. The principal administrative divisions are Najd, Hijaz, 'Asir, Najran, and Eastern Province. The organs of local government are the General Municipal Councils, the District Council and the tribal and village Councils.

Defence

Saudi Arabia has a regular army, and a military academy to train officers. The United States has military agreements with Saudi Arabia.

Economic Affairs

Saudi Arabia is the second largest producer of crude oil in the Middle East, and the income from oil constitutes nearly 85 per cent of the Government's total revenue receipts. There is little industry but the Government is planning to construct a steel plant in the Hejaz and an oil refinery at Jeddah, and in 1965 negotiations with a Japanese firm for setting up a petrochemical industry were undertaken. Apart from oil her chief activity is agriculture. The products are dates, wheat, barley, fruit, hides, wool. Camels, horses, donkeys and sheep are raised. Another source of revenue is the income from religious pilgrims, who come from all parts of the Moslem world to the holy cities of Mecca and Medina. A large-scale survey of water resources is under way over an area of 244,000 square miles in the Nefud basin.

Transport and Communications

There is a railway from Dammam to Riyadh and in 1963 contracts were awarded for the rebuilding of the Hejaz railway from Damascus to Medina. Asphalted roads link Jeddah to Mecca and Medina, Medina to Yanbu, Taif to Mecca, Riyadh to al-Kharj, and Dammam to Hofuf. A new road was recently opened between Riyadh and Jeddah. The road flanking the Trans-Arabian Pipeline from Dhahran to the Mediterranean is being rebuilt. Saudi Arabian Airlines operate internal and external air services. The principal ports are Jeddah, on the Red Sea, and Ras Tanura and Dammam, on the Persian Gulf.

Social Welfare

Oil revenues have enabled the Saudi Arabian government to provide free medicine and medical care for all citizens and foreign residents.

Education

Elementary, secondary and higher education is free but not compulsory. Instruction is given to girls as well as boys. There are two universities, one secular and one religious.

Tourism

All devout Moslems try to pay at least one visit to the holy cities of Medina, the burial place of Muhammad, and Mecca, the birthplace of Muhammad. Over 290,000 pilgrims visited Saudi Arabia in 1966.

Visas are not required for visits to Saudi Arabia by nationals of Kuwait.

Sport

The main sports are football, bicycle racing, hawking and horse-riding.

Public Holidays

1967: May 20 (Independence Day), June 22 (Birth of the Prophet), September 23 (Unification Day).

1968: January 2 (Id ul Fitr), March 11 (Id ul Adha), March 22 (Arab League Day), March 31 (Muslim New Year).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is increasingly used, and was adopted as the official system in 1964.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The currency unit is the riyal of 20 qursh.

Notes: 1, 5, 10, 50, 100 riyals

Coins: $\frac{1}{4}$, $\frac{1}{2}$, 1, 2, 4 qursh; $\frac{1}{2}$, 1 riyal.

Exchange rate: 12.6 riyals = £1 sterling

4.5 riyals = $1 U.S.

STATISTICAL SURVEY

A population census was taken in 1964 but the results have not been released. Some estimates put the total population as low as 3.5 million (1967).

SAUDI ARABIA-IRAQ NEUTRAL ZONE

The Najdi (Saudi Arabian) frontier with Iraq was defined in the Treaty of Mohammara in May 1922. Later a Neutral Zone of 7,000 sq. km. was established adjacent to the western tip of the Kuwait frontier. No military or permanent buildings were to be erected in the zone and the nomads of both countries were to have unimpeded access to its pastures and wells. A further agreement concerning the administration of this zone was signed between Iraq and Saudi Arabia in May 1938.

SAUDI ARABIA-KUWAIT NEUTRAL ZONE

A Convention signed at Uqair in December 1922 fixed the Najdi (Saudi Arabian) boundary with Kuwait. The Convention also established a Neutral Zone of 5,770 sq. km. immediately to the south of Kuwait in which Saudi Arabia and Kuwait have since held equal rights. The final agreement on this matter was signed in 1963.

AGRICULTURE AND INDUSTRY

Agriculture (estimates, metric tons): Wheat 15,000, Maize 21,000, Millet and Sorghum 6,000, Barley 13,000, Rice 2,000, Dates 200,000. Other crops include alfalfa, vegetables, coffee and henna.

Livestock: Sheep 3,600,000, Goats 1,900,000, Asses 22,000.

Industry: Building, Date Packing, Cement, Soap, Sugar, Rugs, Marble, Gypsum, Nails, Soft Drinks, Industrial Gases.

THE CONSTITUTION

After Ibn Sa'ud had finally brought the whole of present-day Saudi Arabia under his control in 1925, the territory was made into a dual kingdom.

Six years later, in 1932, the realm was unified by decree and became the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. Saudi Arabia as a whole has in practice been developing, in the last six years or so particularly, from monarchical towards ministerial rule. The power of the Cabinet was further increased in May 1958, when several ministries were delegated to the Crown Prince. In December 1960, however, the Crown Prince resigned and King Sa'ud assumed the Prime Ministership. In 1962, Prince Faisal resumed the Prime Ministership. In 1964 King Sa'ud was relieved of his duties and his brother Prince Faisal was proclaimed King.

The organs of local government are the General Municipal Councils, the District Council and the tribal and village councils. A General Municipal Council is established in the towns of Mecca, Medina and Jeddah. Its members are proposed by the inhabitants and must be approved by the King. Functioning concurrently with each General Municipal Council is a General Administration Committee, which investigates ways and means of executing resolutions passed by the Council. There are also elected district councils under the presidency of local chiefs, consisting of his assistant, the principal local officials and other important persons of the district. Every village and tribe has a council composed of the sheikh, who presides, his legal advisers and two other prominent personages. These councils have power to enforce regulations.

The principal administrative divisions are as follows:

Najd: capital Riyadh. Najd is subdivided as follows:

1. The principality of Riyadh, to which are associated Wadi al-Dawasir, al-Aflaj, al-Hariq, al-Kharj, al-'Aridh, al-Washm and Sudair.
2. The principality of al-Qasim, comprising 'Unaizah, Buraidah, al-Ras and their villages, and al-Mudhanab and its dependencies.
3. The Northern principality (capital Hayil). This includes the tribes of Shammar, 'Anzah, al-Dhafir and Mutair, the town of Taima in the south and some northerly towns.

Hijaz: capital Mecca. Includes the principalities of Tabuk, al-'Ula, Dhaha, al-Wajh, Amlaj, Yanbu', Medina, Jeddah, al-Lith, al-Qunfundhah, Baljarshi and Tayif.

'Asir: capital Abha. Includes Abha, Qahtan, Shahr, Rijal Alma', Rijal al-Hajr, Banu Shahr, Mahayil, Bariq and Bisha.

Najran and its villages.

Eastern Province (Al Hasa): capital Dammam. Includes Hofuf, Al-Mubarraz, Qatif, Dhahran, Al-Khoobar and Qaryat al-Jubail.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Justice throughout the kingdom of Saudi Arabia is administered according to Islamic law by a Chief Judge who is responsible for the Department of Sharia Affairs. Sentences in the kingdom are given according to the Koran and the Sunna of the Prophet.

The judicial system provides for three grades of court and a Judicial Supervisory Committee.

The Judicial Supervisory Committee. The Committee consists of three members and a president appointed by the King. It supervises all the other courts and is situated at Mecca.

Chief Justice, Mecca: Sheikh ABDULLAH IBN HASSAN.

Courts of Appeal (Courts of Cassation). There are several courts of appeal in Hijaz and Najd, having jurisdiction to hear appeals from the Mahkamat al-Sharia al-Koubra.

Mahkamat al-Sharia al-Koubra. The competence of these courts extends to all cases not covered by the above. They are situated in Mecca, Medina and Jeddah. Appeal may be made to the Courts of Cassation.

Mahkamat al-Omour al-Mosta'alah. These courts, which are held throughout the country, deal with cases of minor misdemeanours and actions in which the value does not exceed S.R. 30. Other branches of these courts deal exclusively with affairs of the Bedouin tribes with the same competence. The decisions of these courts are final.

RELIGION

Arabia is the centre of the Islamic faith and includes the holy cities of Mecca and Medina. Except in the Eastern Province, where a large number of people follow Shi'a rites, the majority of the population are of the Sunni faith. The last fifty years have seen the rise of the Wahhabi sect, who originated in the eighteenth century, but first became unified and influential under their late leader King Ibn Sa'ud. They are now the keepers of the holy places and control the pilgrimage to Mecca.

Mecca: Birthplace of the Prophet Muhammad; seat of the Great Mosque and Shrine of Ka'ba visited by a million Muslims annually.

Medina: Burial place of Muhammad; second sacred city of Islam.

Grand Mufti: His Holiness MOHAMMED IBN IBRAHIM.

THE PRESS

In 1964 new National Press Institutions took over from private firms the operation and control of newspapers and periodicals.

TRANSPORT

RAILWAYS

Saudi Government Railroad: Dammam; Gen. Man. ABDUL AZIZ AL-QURAISHI.

The Arabian American Oil Co. (Aramco) constructed the railway between Dammam and Riyadh on behalf of the Saudi Arabian Government, which now owns and controls the railway. Passenger trains now run daily from Dammam to Abqaiq, Hofuf, al-Kharj and Riyadh, but goods trains run three times a week from Dammam to Riyadh. Mileage and gauge: 363 route miles of 4 ft. 8½ in. gauge. Restoration of the derelict Hejaz Railway from the Jordan border to Medina is hoped to be completed in 1967.

ROADS

Asphalted roads link Jeddah to Mecca, Jeddah to Medina, Medina to Yanbu, Taif to Mecca, Riyadh to al-Kharj, and Dammam to Hofuf as well as the principal communities and certain outlying points in Aramco's area of operations. Work is proceeding on various other roads. Work is progressing on the trans-Arabian highway, which will link Dammam, Riyadh, Taif, Mecca and Jeddah. 217 miles of highway are in use at present and it is planned to increase this figure to 5,000 miles by 1969.

SHIPPING

The deep-water port of Jeddah is the main port of the kingdom and the port for pilgrims to Mecca. India is reached from Jeddah in ten days, services being operated by Turner and Morris Steamship Co. There is a frequent service by the Khedivial Steamship Co. between Saudi Arabia and Egypt. Yanbu, the port of Medina, has been extended and modernized, with new docks, storage space and a special Pilgrim centre; other ports on the Red Sea are Muwaih, Wejh and Rabigh. On the Persian Gulf there are the small ports of Al-Khobar, Qatif and Uqair, suitable only for small local craft and a deep-water port at Ras Tanura built by the Arabian American Oil Co. for its own use. Most of the super-tankers can now be accommodated at Ras Tanura, following the completion of extensions to the north and south piers between 1955 and 1959. The deep-water Dammam Port, which was also built by the Arabian American Oil Co. and is operated by the Saudi Government Railroad, lies approximately 12 km. from the coast and is connected to the mainland by a railway causeway. Expansion of the port was completed in 1961 at a cost of over U.S.$ 20 million.

SENEGAL

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Senegal lies on the west coast of Africa bounded to the north by Mauritania, to the east by Mali and to the south by Guinea and Portuguese Guinea. In the southern part of the country the State of The Gambia forms a narrow enclave extending some 200 miles inland. The climate of Senegal is tropical with a long dry season followed by a short wet season. Average annual temperature is about 84°F (29°C). French is the official language but there are numerous native tongues of which Wolof and Toucouleur are the most widespread. About 80 per cent of the population is Moslem, 10 per cent Christian, mostly Roman Catholic. The remainder follow traditional beliefs. The flag has three vertical bands of green, gold and red, the gold band bearing a five-pointed star. The capital is Dakar.

Recent History

Formerly a French Colony, Senegal became a self-governing republic within the French Community in 1958. In 1959 it joined with the former French Sudan to form the Mali Federation. The Federation became independent in June 1960 but two months later was dissolved, Senegal rejoining the French Community as an independent member. In December 1962 the Prime Minister, Mamadou Dia, failed in an attempt to overthrow the President by a coup d'état and was arrested, tried and imprisoned. The President has since incorporated the office and duties of Prime Minister within his own Presidential responsibilities, and in March 1963 a new Constitution was adopted confirming this presidential system of government. Senegal and Gambia maintain close relations, and in April 1967 signed a Treaty of Association providing for closer co-operation between the two countries. Senegal is a member of the Organisation Commune Africaine et Malgache (OCAM) and of the Organization for African Unity.

Government

The President is elected for a four-year term by universal direct suffrage and is eligible for re-election. He exercises executive power with the assistance of ministers nominated and chosen by himself. Legislative power is vested in the National Assembly which is also elected for a four-year term at the time of the presidential election.

Defence

Senegal is a member of the African Pacte de Défense Commune and maintains a regular army comprising infantry brigades, commandos and parachutists, an air force and a national gendarmerie for the maintenance of law and order. France provides technical and material aid while retaining the right to use specified military bases.

Economic Affairs

More than half the population is engaged in agriculture and stockraising. Groundnuts account for 74 per cent of the total value of exports. Industry is mainly concerned with the processing of groundnuts and other food crops and hides and skins. There are some small consumer and construction industries and an oil refinery in Dakar. Bauxite, phosphate, titanium and zirconium are mined. It is hoped to increase national production by 57 per cent under the current four-year plan.

Transport and Communications

The railway line running east to Mali was re-opened to traffic in 1963. The only other section runs north from Dakar along the coast. The road network is good with nearly 2,360 miles passable at all seasons. The Senegal river is used to transport goods both by Senegal and Mauritania. Dakar is the largest port in West Africa and serves both Senegal and Mauritania. There is an international airport at Dakar with an alternative at Thiès and more than a dozen smaller airports.

Social Welfare

Social services include a state medical service and certain family and maternity benefits for workers. There is a hospital at Dakar with 7 regional hospitals, 32 Health Centres and 40 maternity and infant centres.

Education

There is compulsory education for all children between six and fourteen years. Nearly 50 per cent of school-age children are provided for. There is one university.

Tourism

There is a wild game reserve in the Nikolo-Koba National Park. Dakar offers local tours and there are fine beaches. The island of Goré, near Dakar, is of great historical interest. Senegal is a member of the Office Inter-Etats du Tourisme Africain.

Visas are not required to visit Senegal by nationals of France.

Sport

Football is the most popular game. Many forms of sport are practised, particularly watersports, hunting, golf and riding. The African Friendship Games were held at Dakar in April 1963.

Public Holidays

1967: May 1 (Labour Day), May 4 (Ascension), May 14 (Whitsun), June 20 (Maouloud—festival of Prophet Mohamed), July 14 (Bastille Day), August 15 (The Assumption), November 1 (All Saints' Day), December 25 (Christmas).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 2 (Korité—end of Ramadan), March 10 (Tabaski—sheep festival), April 4 (Fête Nationale), April 15 (Easter Monday).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

THE CONSTITUTION

(Promulgated 7th March, 1963)

Preamble: Affirms the Rights of Man, liberty of the person and religious freedom. National sovereignty belongs to the people who exercise it through their representatives or by means of referenda. There is universal, equal and secret suffrage. French is the official language.

The President: The President of the Republic is elected by direct universal suffrage for a four-year term and is eligible for re-election. He holds executive power and conducts national policy with the assistance of ministers chosen and nominated by himself. He is Commander of the Armed Forces and responsible for national defence. He may, after consultation with the President of the National Assembly and with the Supreme Court, submit any draft law to referendum. In circumstances where the security of the State is in grave and immediate danger, he can assume emergency powers and rule by decree. The President of the Republic can be impeached only on a charge of high treason or by a secret ballot of the National Assembly carrying a three-fifths majority.

The National Assembly: Legislative power is vested in the National Assembly which is elected by universal direct suffrage for a four-year term at the same time as the Presidential election. The Assembly discusses and votes legislation and submits it to the President of the Republic for promulgation. The President can direct the Assembly to give a second reading to the bill, in which case it may be made law only by a three-fifths majority. The President of the Republic can also call upon the Supreme Court to declare whether any draft law is constitutional and acceptable. Legislation may be initiated by either the President of the Republic or the National Assembly.

Amendments: The President of the Republic and Deputies to the National Assembly may propose amendments to the Constitution. Draft amendments are adopted by a three-fifths majority vote of the National Assembly. Failing this they are submitted to referendum.

Judicial Power: The President appoints the members of the Supreme Court of Justice, on the advice of the Superior Court of Magistrates, which determines the constitutionality of laws. A High Court of Justice, appointed by the National Assembly from among its members is competent to impeach the President or members of the Government.

Local Government: Senegal is divided into seven regions, each having a Governor and an elected Local Assembly.

French Community: In June 1960 Senegal signed Agreements with France to become an independent member of the French Community.

Gambia-Senegal Treaty of Association: Signed April 1967 to promote and expand co-ordination and co-operation between the two countries; provisions include annual meetings of heads of governments, an Inter-State Ministerial Committee, and a permanent secretariat; committees, under the supervision of the Inter-State Ministerial Committee, deal with existing agreements covering foreign affairs and security, and the joint development of the Gambia River Basin.

SIERRA LEONE

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Sierra Leone lies on the west coast of Africa with Guinea to the north and east and Liberia to the south. The climate is hot and humid with an average temperature of 80°F (21°C); the rainy season lasts from May to October. English is the official language and Krio, Mende and Temne are widely spoken. The vast majority of the population follow animist beliefs and there are Muslim and Christian minorities. The flag consists of horizontal stripes of green, white and blue. The capital is Freetown.

Recent History

Formerly under British rule, Sierra Leone became independent in 1961. The new constitution gave women the franchise and abolished the division of the country into a Colony and a Protectorate. Elections were held in 1962 and won by the Sierra Leone People's Party led by Sir Milton Margai. In 1964 Sir Milton Margai died, and was succeeded as premier by his brother Mr. (now Sir) Albert Margai. Following disputed elections in March 1967, the army assumed control of the country and set up a National Reformation Council under the chairmanship of Colonel Andrew Juxon-Smith. Sierra Leone is a member of the Organization of African Unity.

Government

Sierra Leone is a member of the Commonwealth, and Queen Elizabeth II is Head of State. She is represented by the National Reformation Council, which has all the powers formerly vested in the Governor-General, the Prime Minister and Cabinet, and the House of Representatives. The country is divided into three Provinces.

Defence

The Royal Sierra Leone Military Forces consist of an Infantry Battalion and Headquarters with a total strength of 1,350. There is also the nucleus of a future Navy. Police number about 2,000.

Economic Affairs

The economy is based on agriculture and mining, the chief products being palm kernels, coffee, cocoa, rice, timber, diamonds, and iron ore. Diamonds are the nation's principal export. Industry is on a small scale, covering palm oil, furniture and weaving. A Ten-Year Plan was launched in 1962 to develop industry and plantation agriculture. Sierra Leone is a member of a free trade agreement with Guinea, Ivory Coast and Liberia, set up in 1965.

Transport and Communications

There are 358 miles of railways and 3,172 miles of roads.

Inland waterways total 493 miles, much of it navigable for only three months in the year. The chief ports are Freetown and Pepel. Internal air transport is well developed and international air services are provided by Sierra Leone Airways and seven foreign lines.

Social Welfare

There is no state scheme for social security, but the Ministry of Social Welfare provides Community Development Centres, Youth Clubs and Maternity Welfare Centres.

Education

Education is private but nearly all schools are Government-assisted. In 1965 there were 828 primary schools and 51 secondary schools with 135,000 and 13,550 pupils respectively. There are two university colleges.

Tourism

The Tourist Board was set up in 1962 to develop Sierra Leone's tourist potential. The main attractions are the wide, sandy beaches, the mountains and jungle and wild life.

Visas are not required to visit Sierra Leone by nationals of Belgium, Denmark, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, San Marino, Spain, Sweden, Turkey and United Kingdom and Commonwealth.

Sport

The most popular sports are football, cricket, athletics, lawn tennis and boxing. The National Sports Council supervises and encourages sport.

Public Holidays

1967: May 4 (Whit Monday), June 20 (Moulud-un-Nabi), August 2 (Bank Holiday), December 25 (Christmas Day), December 26 (Boxing Day).

1968: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 2 (Id el Fitr), March 10 (Id el Adha), April 12-15 (Easter), April 27 (Independence).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rate

The unit of currency is the Leone, subdivided into 100 cents.

Coins: 1 cent, 5 cents, 10 cents, 20 cents, 50 Leone (gold).
Notes: 1 Leone, 2 Leone, 5 Leone.

Exchange rate: 2 Leones = £1 sterling.

71 cents = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

Sierra Leone became an independent sovereign nation on April 27th, 1961, and is a member of the British Commonwealth.

The Constitution of 1961 was suspended in March 1967 by special decree, when the National Reformation Council took over all powers of the Governor-General, Prime Minister and Cabinet, and dissolved the House of Representatives. All political parties were dissolved, and a strict Press Law promulgated, making it an offence to print any symbol connected with former political parties, or to publish statements likely to cause public fear or disturbance.
